80,000 SEE WILLS OUTBOX FIRPO IN ALL OF TWELVE ROUNDS

$800,000 IN PAID ADMISSIONS

PRINCE OF WALES MISSED

Crowd Appears Disappointed When He Fails to Occupy Seat Reserved for Him.

By ELMER DAVIS.

Canon Chase was Luis Angel Firpo's best friend, after all. The militant reformer who got writs and applied for injunctions and tried to crash the gate of the White House in the effort to keep the big Argentine heavyweight from fighting Harry Wills, the New Orleans negro, at Boyle's Thirty Acres last night would have saved Firpo—if he had succeeded—a beating before 80,000 spectators which was far less to his credit than his knockout by Jack Dempsey in the second round a year ago.

Wills didn't knock Firpo out. The fight went the scheduled twelve rounds, and under the New Jersey boxing laws there can be no decision. But Wills outboxed Firpo in every one of the twelve rounds.

Once, in the second, Wills knocked Firpo flat for the count of five, just after they had broken away from a clinch. Wills's right caught Firpo on the jaw and the South American champion went down on his back.

After that Wills never put his opponent down, but he always had the better of him.

Teddy Mullins, Wills's manager, was inclined to ascribe the lack of a winning punch to an injury in Wills's right hand which, he said, had occurred in the fourth round.

Whatever the reason, Firpo was still on his feet at the finish, but he was also on Wills's shoulders during the largest part of the last round, and if he had gone three or four rounds longer Wills probably would have had him out.

So it is Wills and not Firpo who now ranks as the second best heavyweight in the world; Wills and not Firpo who will get a chance to tackle Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight championship some time next year. What Dempsey will do to Wills, or vice versa, is a job for the experts to speculate on through the long cold Winter evenings. Unless Wills has more of a wallop than he showed last night, Dempsey will probably hold the championship a while longer.

Receipts About $800,000.

It was one of Tex Rickard's traditional good shows. Nobody will know the exact attendance until the tickets have been counted, but so far as could be judged last night, the fight was watched by about 80,000 people and a large number of New Jersey politicians, and the gate amounted to perhaps $800,000.

The big open-air arena, Jersey City's pride, which was first built for Dempsey's fight with Georges Carpentier on July 4, 1921, looked absolutely full to observers who peered up from the brightly lighted ringside into the darkness that hung over the rising tiers of seats.

There were lights along the aisles and a full moon hung over Jersey City, but even so, the arena seemed dark by contrast with the blazing illumination of the ring.

Perhaps it was the darkness, certainly it would be regrettable to think it was the crowd's preoccupation with the first and dullest of the preliminaries, which prevented Jack Dempsey from being recognized as he came in during the preliminary and took his seat near the ringside. Dempsey was the most prominent of the numerous prominent persons in attendance.

The Prince of Wales didn't come, so far as any one knows. The evening papers had said he would be there and also said he wouldn't be there. However, Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten came with J. S. Cosden, in whose party the Prince was supposed to be.

Doubtless there were some in the crowd who felt that their evening was spoiled by his absence. There were more people who felt that the evening was spoiled because nobody was knocked out. They begged Wills in the later rounds to put him away, and when the twelfth round ended with both men on their feet, thousands of sportsmen who never took a good one on the jaw in their lives sent the retiring fighters away with a chorus of boos.

Punches Make Firpo Groan.

But it doubtless felt like a fight to Firpo and Wills—especially Firpo, who reeled about and staggered through the twelfth round, emitting a shout of "Hey" at frequent intervals.

Every time Wills hit him in that round, every time the battered Argentine staggered heavily into a clinch, a grunting shout of "Hey" burst from his labouring lungs.

"Send him to the hay, Harry," the crowd yelled, but the hay-making punch wasn't there. Wills had to be content with the knowledge that he had outboxed the Argentine by an overwhelming margin.

Dempsey last year took the fight to Firpo and fought the Argentine in his own style, exchanging wallops with no efforts to cover himself. In consequence

130 Filipino Strikers Arrested In Hawaiian Plantation Clash

LIHUE, Island of Kauai, T. H., Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—One hundred and thirty Filipino alleged sugar plantation strikers were brought to the Court House here today from the Lihue and Waimea jails under military guard, but their preliminary hearing was continued to permit the gathering of more evidence.

HONOLULU, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—Twenty persons dead, unnumbered injured lying in hospitals, officers under orders to shoot strikers as they approached, distracted widows with children trecking from jails to hospitals and morgues in search of missing strikers—this was the aftermath today of a clash between cane strikers and workers on the McBride plantations Tuesday at Hunepa, Island of Kauai. The dead included sixteen Filipinos and four policemen.

PRINCE AT FOX HUNT TAKES ALL BARRIERS

Three Women Suffer Falls in Three-Hour Chase of "Cubs"—No Brush Is Taken.

The Prince of Wales took a nap yesterday afternoon. It was the first definitely recorded daylight snooze of the royal visitor, and even the most ardent advocate of the strenuous life may forgive him for it when he learns that the Prince refused to succumb until he had gone a straight, unbroken twenty-eight hours without sleep.

It was up idle, restful twenty-eight hours that the Prince allowed to elapse between his time of rising at the Burden house at Syosset on Wednesday and his time of stretching out for a few hours of repose yesterday afternoon. No doubt the house man's hosts, his official entourage, and the servants all went to bed early during the hours that he rested, but it is doubtful if all the racket of the Defense Day celebration today had it been suddenly turned loose in his bedroom, would have awakened him, for this is what he had done between 10 A. M. on Wednesday and 1 P. M. on Thursday:

On Wednesday, a swim, a seven-chukker polo game, despite a battered eye; a luncheon, a tour of inspection of the blooded cattle on the Morgan estate, a dinner at Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt's Jericho place and a whole night of dancing there, lasting until the restless hounds were stirring for Thursday morning's sport.

Takes a Swim Instead of Sleep.

On Thursday, a swim (in lieu of sleep after the dance), a breakneck ride to the hounds after cub foxes, to be followed by breakfast and then six chukkers of polo. Nature won after the sixth chukker and the Prince, almost asleep in the saddle, nodded homeward on his horse, to tumble into bed.

He slept until late in the afternoon. Then he quietly left the Burden place for a destination unannounced. And late last night he still was playing somewhere, apparently having crowded ample recuperation into a short afternoon's nap.

In the fox chase the Prince jumped a series of fences without getting into any trouble. Once his horse hesitated at a second jump immediately after a first, but responded to a touch of the spur.

Shortly after daybreak the Prince joined sixty riders at the estate of Robert E. Tod in a "cub hunt," or chase after half-grown foxes. The Prince had danced until nearly daybreak at the home of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt at Jericho. He took a swim instead of a sleep and then started on the hunt.

Following a hundred hounds over many neighboring estates, the Prince, riding on Ghost, a white horse loaned by Harry de Leader, jumped five-rail fences, small streams and other obstacles, increasing his prestige for horsemanship, which had suffered by frequent accounts of his falls which had been cabled from the other side.

BRITAIN WILLING TO USE HER FLEET TO ENFORCE PEACE

RECALLS OUR WAR PROTEST

MOVE PLEASES THE FRENCH

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—The issue between the larger and smaller powers, the question of obligatory arbitration—which is now accepted at Geneva as the root of the question of security and disarmament—was clearly outlined this afternoon in the Committee of the Assembly on the Covenant and the Jurisdiction of the World Court. Opening the general discussion, Senhor Fernandes of Brazil repeated the statement frequently made here of late that the Ministers of the two great nations had appeared before the League and pledged their Governments to accept jurisdiction of the Court.

The next speaker was Sir Cecil Hurst, legal adviser to the British Foreign Office. While expressing with manifest sincerity the British desire to go the utmost possible length toward compulsory arbitration, he outlined certain difficulties.

He began by a quotation of MacDonald's words, so enthusiastic and so well guarded. "What is the problem? We must devise more successfully than we have done hitherto courts that are to operate under a system of arbitration. We must explore more fully than we have done hitherto matters that ought to be referred and can be referred to them. If it is the desire of the British Government to sign undertakings (for compulsory arbitration), put before taking so great a step it is proper that the clause be put in the most specific form possible."

Britain Would Use Fleet.

Sir Cecil proceeded to illustrate. The world was divided between two great and widely different systems of judicial proceeding, the Anglo-Saxon and the Continental. If the Court adopted either would those accustomed to the other be willing to submit to alien conditions? International law was as yet rudimentary and variously conceived in various countries. England was subject to a peculiar liability. The nation that fights on land injures in the main only its enemies. The nation that renders such service as England rendered in the late war must needs injure most of the neutral nations. The law in such cases was very ill defined. It might well happen that a naval country, operating by advice of the League Council under Article 16 or the draft treaty of mutual security, would find itself haled before the World Court and tried by an alien unaccustomed to the procedure.

Sir Cecil was more courteous and conciliatory than this brief summary may suggest. He began by accepting M. Boncour's eloquent declaration of yesterday against methods of the old diplomacy and for laying all cards on the table. He mentioned the difficulties only that they be more surely overcome.

"I am confident," he said in conclusion, "that we shall make real progress in this very complicated matter of rendering the jurisdiction of the court compulsory and thereby build up League machinery for dealing with differences before they eventuate in war."

M. Loucheur, who followed, spoke extemporaneously with the vigor of a great reconstruction Minister and with the polished address and wit of a practiced parliamentarian. He mentioned certain details of the Covenant which he gave acute reasons for thinking could be made at once more precise in wording, more supple and concrete in their applications. He made a genuine contribution to the work of the committee and imparted noble inspiration to undertake

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—The battle waged ever since the downfall of William Hohenzollern between the Republican Government of Germany and the House of Hohenzollern to determine what part of the latter's enormous holdings really belongs to it, and what part should revert to the German State, entered a phase rife with possibilities of sensational development today, when the Finance Ministry here declared that it intended to start a vigorous legal fight against what it considers the exorbitant and unjustified Hohenzollern demands.

This Governmental step follows the recent breaking off of negotiations between the Hohenzollerns and the German Government, due to the latter's belief that the ex-Kaiser's kin were altogether too unreasonable.

A great discrepancy existing between the Government's ideas and those of the Hohenzollerns as to the value of the vast Hohenzollern estates was clearly disclosed by the announcement made by the Finance Ministry today, to the effect that it estimates the yearly income from the estates under litigation at 5,700,000 gold marks, whereas the Hohenzollerns estimate it at only 1,000,000 gold marks. In other words, the German Government implies that the Hohenzollerns are trying to obtain property at a valuation which the Government considers little more than one-sixth of its actual value. The properties in dispute include some of the choicest castles, palaces and country residences accumulated by the Hohenzollerns during their overlordship in Germany, as well as about 200,000 acres of land.

SLAYERS AT JOLIET; NEAR WRECK IN AUTO

Prisoners Promptly Put in "Solitary"—Crowe Moves to Block Way to Parole.

Special to The New York Times.

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 11.—Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard A. Loeb slept tonight as life convicts behind the grim walls of Joliet penitentiary. Leopold was prisoner No. 9,305 while his companion in crime was No. 9,306.

The two slayers of Robert Franks entered the prison at 8:30 o'clock, after an exciting dash from Chicago in which they narrowly escaped death in the car in which they rode.

When the start was made from the Cook County jail a car driven by Deputy Sheriff Parks and manned by three other deputies took the lead. Revolvers were handy in their holsters and on the knees of the three deputies rested pump guns.

Then came the car in which Loeb and Leopold rode. It was piloted by its owner, Harold Reese. Beside him sat Deputy Sheriff Monarpenny. On the back seat were Leopold and Loeb. Between them was Hans Thompson, first assistant jailer. A chain which he held in his hand crossed his lap. Each end was shackled to a handcuff about the wrists of the prisoners.

Soon after the fleet had passed through Argo, the first car, which had been giving trouble because of overtight brakes, suddenly came to a halt. Its wheels were locked.

For an instant it looked as if the second automobile, bearing the slayers, would crash into it. This car was going more than fifty miles an hour. A deadly crash seemed unavoidable.

With a twist of the wheel Reese turned the car into a ditch containing the Interurban car tracks below the roadway. For several hundred feet the car bumped over the unballasted ties, careening dangerously from side to side. Then it came to a halt—jammed tight between the tracks.

The guards leaped from the convoying machines and surrounded the prisoners' car. A crowd began to gather, but the deputies motioned them back with their weapons. There was a delay of ten minutes before the machine could be pushed back to the road.

Another accident came before the cars convoying Loeb and Leopold had left Chicago. This occurred at Sacramento and Jackson Boulevards, in the city, when the first car in the convoy struck a civilian's machine a glancing blow and catapulted it against another car. Leopold and Loeb seemed to enjoy this thrill immensely.

Crowd Waiting at Prison.

A large crowd stood outside the prison as the convoy of automobiles, headed by Sheriff Hoffman's car, containing a dozen deputies armed with shotguns and rifles, drove into the driveway of the prison.

A shout rose as the door of the second car swung open and Deputy Jailer Thompson stepped out. A smile spread over the face of Leopold as he saw the crowd press around the outer prison entrance. Photographers' flashlights boomed. The crowd pushed to the side of the car as Leopold stepped to the running board.

Deputy Sheriffs Edfeld and Beck forced their way through the mass. Their shotguns flashed in the dim light cast through the open door as they shouted to all to move back. Stubbornly the crowd obeyed.

The clash of steel chains became audible as Leopold stepped heavily to the porch of the building. At the other end of the chain attached to his wrist was the arm of Loeb. The white hand was shaking as the youth clutched the door of the car and bowed his head. Loeb nearly fell as his feet touched the concrete floor. He stared wildly to either side as more guards pushed spectators back with the points of their guns.

Sheriff Hoffman thrust his hand through Leopold's arm while Westbrook and Deputy Thompson took hold of Loeb. The boys were literally dragged across the twenty feet to the door and into the outer hallway. The crowd closed in behind. The lock in the center door clanked and the key was turned. The iron barricade separating the 1,500 convicts from the outside world swung slowly on its pivots.

"Hello Babe," called a reporter to Leopold.

"Hello, Ty, glad to see you," replied the prisoner.

"How was the trip down?" he was asked.

"Pretty smart"—but further speech was cut off as he was pushed along.

An inner door slammed into place and the forms of the youths disappeared

B. M. T. HAS MONEY TO BUILD SUBWAYS

CALLS FOR NEW CONTRACTS

Revision of the Present Agreements With Municipality Would Be Necessary, He Says.

In a letter to Mayor Hylan, made public last night, Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation, offered to confer with city officials on "readjusting" the existing subway contracts with the city.

"We do not like the contracts any more than you do," said Mr. Dahl, "but, notwithstanding that fact, we have faithfully carried out all the provisions of the contract on our part. However, when two parties to a contract are dissatisfied with it the sensible and businesslike thing to do is to get together in an effort to readjust the contract. This we are perfectly willing to do. This we believe to be in the interest of the people of this community."

Mr. Dahl, after pointing out the city's difficulties in financing new subway construction, offers to meet the Mayor and the Board of Estimate "in an effort to work out a contract, fair and in the interests of the public, under which this company itself will be able to provide funds not only for the equipment but also for the construction of subways which are so urgently needed. We believe it is entirely possible to work out a plan whereby it will not be necessary for the City of New York to finance future subway construction. We are in position to make a firm commitment as to a substantial sum of money."

The Letter to the Mayor.

Mr. Dahl's letter follows:

Hon. John F. Hylan, Mayor, City of New York, City Hall, New York City.

Dear Sir:

On Feb. 27, 1919, there was submitted to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment "Report of the Committee on Finance and Budget of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment Relative to the Construction of Those Parts of the Dual System of Rapid Transit Railroads (Contracts No. 3 and No. 4) not yet placed under contract."

Acting upon this report the board passed a resolution which provided among other things as follows:

"Resolved, That this board does hereby declare and affirm its purpose to appropriate all necessary funds for the speedy completion of the Dual Subway System, when and as required."

That resolution was adopted over five years ago.

Under date of July 12, 1924, in a letter to Chairman Delaney of the Board of Transportation, I called attention to the urgent need of the City of New York living up to the obligations of its contract made in 1913 in three specific particulars:

1. Completion of the Fourteenth Street Eastern line.

2. Construction of the Nassau Street line.

3. Construction of shops and yards and full length platforms.

Stresses Need of Nassau Link.

Later, attention was directed to the compelling reasons for the immediate construction of the Nassau Street line. This can be completed in three years. It will allow 50 per cent. increase in rush hour service to the Fourth Avenue, Sea Beach, West End and Brighton lines. The City of New York can relieve its long suffering public promptly and effectively by the construction of the Nassau Street line. This will involve an expenditure of only about $12,000,000.

I now wish to emphasize that the obligation of the city to construct shops and yards is definitely fixed by the contract.

Since the date of the contract in 1913, no public official has denied the obligation of the city to supply shops and yards.

No one will deny that adequate shops and yards are necessary for the frequent and periodic inspection, repair and overhauling of cars in order to keep them in safe and efficient operating condition.

On various occasions your Honor has urged the importance both of a sufficient number of modern cars and of constant maintenance of equipment to a high degree of safety. With this we are in complete accord.

It is useless, however, to say additional new cars if there is no place to which to equip or maintain them. If there is inadequate maintenance or

DAWES IN WISCONSIN CALLS LA FOLLETTE 'MASTER DEMAGOGUE'

Speaking to Milwaukee Crowd, He Assails Radical Movement as Threat to Republic.

SEES LEADER INCITING MOB

ONLY ONE ISSUE, HE SAYS

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 11.—Robert M. La Follette is the real "reactionary" of present day politics, General Charles G. Dawes told an audience of 10,000 in the Milwaukee Auditorium tonight.

"La Follettism," the Vice Presidential candidate said, would mean a backward step for American civilization, a step into the days before the Bill of Rights, in the long journey that man has taken out of mob savagery, through despotism, into comparative freedom and safety. He characterized La Follette as a "master demagogue."

"Does he consider us a race of fools?" cried the General.

"What kind of Government would this be?" he asked, "if Congress had the right to pass a law taking property from one man and handing it to another, directing a man where he shall go to church and undertaking to encroach upon the individual rights recognized by all civilizations?"

General Dawes did not hesitate to denounce the followers of the Wisconsin leader in their own State, and to their faces, for it is certain that many La Follette sympathizers were in the audience.

"La Folettism in this campaign," shouted the General, "represents demagogism, animated by the vicious purpose of undermining the constitutional foundation of this Republic."

And again:

"Unless patriotic citizens arouse themselves in the face of this mobilization of extreme radicalism by an individual in a formidable attack upon the Constitution of the United States, the foundations of the Republic may be torn away."

General Dawes had this to say of the Democratic Party:

"There is no half-way ground. It is useless for any party to intervene in the battle alignment of those who favor the Constitution of the United States and those who would destroy its essential parts. They are in no man's land. They not only will not gain any recruits from either battle line, but they will be fortunate if by flight they escape with their political existence."

He warned those who are "justly discontented but who are patriotic at heart" not to be deceived by the "catch-all phrases of this master demagogue, endeavoring to amalgamate them with the Socialists, flying the red flag."

Text of Gen. Dawes's Speech.

The attack made by Robert M. La Follette upon the Constitution of the United States, behind which attack is masked a heterogenous combination, the largest portion of which are the Socialists, opposing the existing order of things and flying the red flag, is the culmination of the most dangerous era of demagogism through which this country has ever passed.

For a long time, political leaders and political platforms have been dodging fundamental issues which, in his conscience, the American citizen knows are now at stake.

Faced with an abnormal condition in this country which exists because of lax government, resulting in part from widespread demagoguery in legislative bodies and among those who are charged with the enforcement of law, patriotic Americans have framed in their hearts and conscience the great issues upon which they propose to fight, and fight, if need be, in defiance of the politicians. Political parties are not primarily responsible for the great issue of this campaign. The average American citizen has been aroused, and he himself has determined the issues and the politicians are following.

A people, like an individual, may for a time tolerate wrongful practices, but of nothing am I more certain than that the American people have a conscience and a will to do right. This very attack upon the Constitution of the United States, led by La Follette and the Socialists, has caused a great reaction in public sentiment in sup-

British Sailors Send Chiefs To Coolidge on Immigration

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The National Sailors' and Firemen's Union held a conference in London today concerning the new immigration regulations of the United States. Much alarm was voiced regarding the effect of these regulations that it was decided to send a commission of eight to see President Coolidge and the members of the American Government.

J. Havelock Wilson, President of the International Seamen's Union, will head the commission, which will sail for New York on board the steamer Berengaria on Oct. 4.

An interpreted by the union members, the American regulations would mean that British seamen in American ports would be prevented from going ashore from their vessels on leave. Mr. Wilson characterized the rules as altogether too severe.

COOLIDGE CONSIDERS SPEAKING IN WEST

Talk of an Itinerary That Will Take Him as Far as Jefferson City.

HAS ABOUT 65 INVITATIONS

He Is Told of Party Harmony in Bay State and Good Omen in Maine Result.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—President Coolidge may go as far West as Jefferson City, Mo., in a speaking program which he now has under consideration. Some of his advisers have suggested a short speaking tour into the Middle West before the elections, and he is giving serious consideration to the project.

If he decides to make the trip, Mr. Coolidge plans not to make more than two or three speeches. He has been particularly urged to include in the proposed itinerary speeches in Ohio, Illinois and Missouri, which are coming to be regarded as strategic States by Republican leaders.

From a list of sixty-five speaking invitations, all between Sept. 15 and Nov. 1, compiled by White House attaches and placed on his desk today, the President is expected to make his own selections.

New York topped the list with ten invitations, followed by Washington, D. C., seven; Ohio, six; Pennsylvania, five and Illinois three. An invitation to speak on Oct. 6 at the dedication of the State Capitol building at Jefferson City, is understood to have appealed very strongly to the President, especially as Republican managers are beginning to feel they have a hard fight ahead in Missouri.

The invitations from New York are: International Golden Rule dinner, Sept. 26; dedication of the Hospital for Joint Diseases; dedication of the American wing of the Metropolitan Museum, Oct. 20; dedication of the Roosevelt House, Oct. 27; banquet to Dr. Elihu Thomson, President of the National Museum of Engineering, November; opening of the new school of citizenship at Syracuse University, Sept. 27; Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce; Hungarian Republican Club; Columbia University Chapter of Phi Gamma Delta; and the American Bible Society.

Will Send Message to Legion.

On the list also are invitations to attend the annual meet of the National Fox Hnuters' Association at Bowling Green, Ky., week of Nov. 17; International Air Races at Dayton, O., early in October; the Vanderbilt-Marine football game at Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 11 and the International Fishermen's races at Gloucester, Mass.

President Coolidge was forced to decline an invitation to address the American Legion convention at St. Paul, Minn., next week, but he is sending a message to be read to the delegates.

President Coolidge was told today that the Republican victory in Maine was an endorsement of his candidacy and Administration. This word was brought by Representative Chindblom of Illinois, Republican, who delivered a number of speeches in the Maine campaign.

"Faith in the President is the predominant note in the political situation, as I see it today," said Mr. Chindblom, after his talk with Mr. Coolidge. "Davis is through. La Follette cannot be elected. So the ultimate result can only be one of two things. Either President Coolidge will be elected or the selection will be thrown into the House. Personally, I do not feel that

He Outlines His Idea of Real Americanism as the Right to Life, Liberty and Happiness.

SPEAKS FIRST AT LUNCHEON

RECALLS PROMISES OF 1920

And Calls Upon the People to Hold the Administration to Account for Its Record in Office.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 11.—Without mentioning the Ku Klux Klan by name, John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, declared here today in a speech at a luncheon of the Cooperative and Rotary Clubs that reverence for constitutional liberty and the rights guaranteed by the Constitution is the greatest duty of candidates, political parties and individual citizens.

Tonight Mr. Davis spoke to an audience of 14,000 in the Municipal Auditorium denouncing the Republican Administration as corrupt and attacking its policy on reclamation and irrigation.

With the Klan candidates for Governor and United States Senator just returned victorious in the Republican primary and with the scars of a particularly bitter Klan and anti-Klan fight in Denver still unhealed, Mr. Davis's remarks in his luncheon address were interpreted as being aimed at the Klan. The 600 diners of all political faiths shouted approval and urged him to go on.

"We hear much in this country of Americanism and we hear no little of 100 per cent. Americanism, whatever that may mean," Mr. Davis continued. "I wonder sometimes whether we really take to heart that term and define it for ourselves."

Mr. Davis then quoted the preamble of the Declaration of Independence, declaring "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" as "inalienable rights."

"In that language the founders of this nation baptized the national child in the name of a trinity of great, inalienable human equality, personal liberty and popular sovereignty," Mr. Davis added. "The man who believes in these things is an American, and no other man is."

Names Fall and Denby.

In his night address Mr. Davis, for the first time in any of his speeches, mentioned the name of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, and Edwin Denby, former Secretary of the Navy, in connection with the oil reserve leases and specifically referred to the payments to Fall by Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair. He referred sarcastically to the declaration of the Republican platform that the conservation policy of the nation originated with Theodore Roosevelt and that the Republican Party held it a privilege to build a memorial to him on the foundations he laid.

"Shades of the mighty dead!" was Mr. Davis's comment. "It will be a sorry memorial if adorned, when erected, with a statuette of Albert B. Fall."

Mr. Davis referred again to the speech of General Charles G. Dawes, Republican nominee for Vice President, at Lincoln, Neb., in which the latter suggested that reclamation projects had been undertaken too rapidly and should be curtailed to prevent over-production of farm products.

"I invite every settler on any irrigation project to read that statement," Mr. Davis said. "He knows now with what earnest sympathy the leaders of the Republican Party view his difficulties."

"We have some great addresses in American history," Mr. Davis said in his luncheon speech. "Washington's farewell address, his testament to his countrymen; Jefferson's first inaugural, the exposition of his political philosophy; Monroe's message charting the course that our foreign policy has followed ever since; the first and second inaugurals of Lincoln and the emancipation proclamation itself that spoke the word of freedom to 10,000,000 men and women. We have the great messages of Grover Cleveland with the sturdy honesty that breathed in every line; we have the vigorous preachings of Theodore Roosevelt, calling his countrymen to a higher morality and braver deeds. We have the magnetic messages of Woodrow Wilson that will live as long as American political history fills the printed pages."

Defines Essence of Americanism.

Mr. Davis then quoted the preamble of the Declaration of Independence as the essence of true Americanism and interpreted it as defining the trinity of ideals, human equality, personal liberty and popular sovereignty. He continued:

"Human equality. There is a triple thought there, not, of course, of absolute equality by reason of birth; not an identity of faculties; not that all men are born strong and some weak, all industrious and some idle; not all alert and none dull, but a triple equality. First, an equality of opportunity. And we are highly resolved in this country that the ills of odious caste shall never stand across the path of any free-born American. We do not want men tied to the stations that their fathers occupied. We want every parent in all the country to have the right to hope for his children a broader and freer and a more useful life than he himself has ever enjoyed.

"And there is an equality of right that our laws shall be so framed and so administered that every man shall stand equal before an equal law.

Seize 6 Dogs, Charge Doctor With Cruelty; He Used Them in Transfusion Experiments

Dr. A. L. Soresi, Professor of Surgical Research and of the Principles of Surgery at the Flower Hospital Medical School, has been summoned and will be arraigned today in the Fifth District Magistrates' Court, 121st Street and Sylvan Place, on the charge of cruelty to animals on complaint of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

F. E. Cathay, Superintendent of the society, said complaints had been received that Dr. Soresi kept dogs for experimental purposes in his laboratory at 509 East Sixty-third Street, and that the animals were not properly fed and cared for. He said that he detailed U. Westervelt, one of the society's agents, to make an investigation.

It was admitted by Mr. Cathay that the agent had entered the laboratory and had taken six of about 100 dogs without a warrant, which he said was not necessary. Mr. Cathay said that the Flower Hospital authorities denied ownership of the dogs or any responsibility for their care, and told him that the animals were the property of Dr. Soresi, who was solely responsible for them. A demand made yesterday in behalf of Dr. Soresi that the dogs be returned was refused, Mr. Cathay said.

Denial that the seized animals or any of the other dogs at the laboratory received anything but the best of care was made yesterday by Dr. Alexander Kaye and Dr. Abraham Cohen, Dr. Soresi's two assistants.

Dr. Kaye said that Dr. Soresi had used the dogs in experiments which had resulted in the perfection of a new apparatus for blood transfusion, the importance of which in saving human life could "hardly be overestimated."

"The new apparatus will enable any ordinary practitioner, without special knowledge of the subject, to successfully transfuse blood from any patient at five minutes' notice," said Dr. Kaye. "It is so simple that the blood transfusion can be done in the home without an assistant or a nurse. The instrument can also be used for giving local anesthesia, for tapping the chest or abdomen and in the treatment of haemophilia, where a patient bleeds because of lack of coagulation in the blood.

"Experimental work upon animals is legalized for all medical colleges. We are not only strictly within the law, but Dr. Soresi has a great personal fondness for animals, especially for dogs. They get milk and the best of food and care and Dr. Soresi sees to this himself. He is devoting his life to research work for the benefit of humanity.

"Our dogs are unlicensed animals picked up on the street and we usually have from twenty-five to thirty here at a time."

Winthrop Is Ready to Welcome Elopers; Family Council Is Said to Have Softened Him

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., Sept. 11.—Greenville Lindall Winthrop is reported today to be ready to take back his two daughters, who eloped last Saturday, but it is said that his new sons-in-law, the former chauffeur and electrician, will get a cool reception.

The only member of the family missing from the family gathering, which lasted long into the night, was Mr. Winthrop's sister, Mrs. J. Herman Van Rolen of Rome. The sensational elopement is said to have been discussed in all its phases and the other members of the family are said to have urged Mr. Winthrop to forgive and take back the two eloping sisters.

The elopers carried much baggage when they departed after the wedding, and Darwin S. Morse, Hale's husband, resigned as a member of the Lenox Fire Department in a letter received today, giving as a reason that he expected "to be absent for some time."

According to friends of the family, the sisters come into possession within a year of a large fortune, said to be $5,000,000, from the estate of their maternal grandmother.

Miss Emily Winthrop paid all expenses of her studio and the casting into bronze of the figures and groups she designed, some of which were from New York models. The bronze in one group now on the estate is said to have cost her $2,500.

equality of right, but an equality of burden in this country; no law that favors one class above another, that takes the burden from the shoulders of one to put it upon his neighbors, is consonant with American ideals or American traditions.

"Personal liberty, not unbridled license. Of course, the only free man in all the world is the savage alone upon a desert island, and even he is constrained by the forces of nature that surround him; and with the coming of a second his liberties are circumscribed, and when those two have multiplied into a vast organized society the only free man is he who lives within the circle of his own rights and does not invade the equal rights of his neighbor.

"And that lesson of personal liberty, founded and bottomed upon personal restraint, is the lesson, I think, that we should teach all over this land today. And the only excuse for governmental interference with a man's wishes or desires or motives is that he may be restrained from impinging upon the right which his neighbor must equally enjoy.

For Government of the People.

"And, last of all of this great trinity—popular sovereignty—that this is and must always remain a Government of, for and by the people; not of sections, not of classes, not of blocs, not of interests, but of all the people and upon equal terms. And if it is so to remain, it must be a Government in which all the people participate.

"I am not sure that in this country today there is any graver peril than the apparent apathy and inactivity of the individual citizen. The statistics from election to election are appalling in their menace—that half of the citizens of the United States should be wholly indifferent to the exercise of the right of suffrage is in itself a portent of the gravest and most serious character.

"The thing which is vital, and to which every American citizen must lend his energy, is to arouse the people to their duty and impress upon them the solemn obligation which their citizenship imposes."

John T. Barnett, national committeeman, presided at the evening meeting. Governor William E. Sweet praised Mr. Davis as a liberal.

"There are those who say that believers in progressive principles should vote for La Follette," the Governor said. "I find no reason for believing this. John W. Davis is a liberal and progressive statesman and leader. I ask the voters, Democrats and Republicans, who are thinking of voting for La Follette to ponder well the political gospel of Davis before deciding finally to do so."

At the beginning of his night speech Mr. Davis spoke of the great development in the West, and declared that the citizens of this section might take pride because this development was achieved by individual enterprise and not by a paternalistic Government.

As a preface to his indictment of the Republican Party, Mr. Davis recalled that the Republican Party came into full power in 1921 as the result of the election of President Harding and Vice President Coolidge and a majority in both houses of Congress in 1920.

"Promises were easy in 1920," Mr. Davis continued. "Every voter was asked by the successful party to express his wish with the assurance that it would promptly be granted. Labor was to get shorter hours at higher wages; the farmer bigger crops and better prices; the consumer a lower cost for the thing he had to buy; the shipowner a subsidy in lieu of a return cargo; the war veteran a bonus; those who favored international cooperation were to have a new association of nations; those who opposed international cooperation were assured of isolation; friends of Germany were assured of sympathy between her and the victors in the war; friends of the victors were assured of sympathy as between themselves and Germany; the postal employes were to have a raise in wages; the old soldier an increase in pension, and those disabled in the World War all the care and attention which a grateful Government could bestow. The list was unending.

"Worn out and wearied by the effort of the war, with all its burdens and discomforts, the American people were in the humor then to listen to such promises. It is their duty today to stop and ask themselves how many of those promises have been fulfilled. The answer to that question should decide their votes in this election.

"I cannot undertake tonight to discuss all these promises, but wish to single out a few for your consideration. I choose among the first the subjects of conservation and reclamation.

Takes Up the Oil Scandal.

"Four years ago the Republican Party declared itself the fast friend of conservation and reclamation. What sort of a conservator it proved to be we know, alas, too well. You all know the story. For sixteen years, under Presidents Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson, there had been an earnest and successful effort to save from private greed and exploitation enough of the oil deposits of the West to guarantee a supply available in time of danger for the navy of the United States.

"Reserves Nos. 1 and 2 in California and No. 3—the Teapot Dome—in Wyoming, together with deposits of oil-bearing shale rock in Utah, were set aside for that purpose.

"Albert B. Fall became, by grace of the Republican Party, Secretary of the Interior, and Edwin Denby, by the same token, Secretary of the Navy. No sooner was he in office than the care of these reserves was transferred to the Department of the Interior, and without delay they were secretly bargained away to Doheny and Sinclair.

"One hundred thousand dollars in bills was carried in a black satchel from New York to Washington and delivered to Mr. Fall for which he gave a note to Edward L. Doheny, who obligingly tore the signature from it for fear that it might be discovered in his papers after his death and his administrator would add to the collection.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars in Government bonds was transmitted with equal care to Mr. Fall in New Mexico by Sinclair.

"It should be a source of pride to the citizens of Colorado that their able and distinguished representative in the Senate of the United States—Senator Adams—was among those who led in uncovering this infamous rascality.

"When Senator Newlands of Nevada, the father of reclamation in this country, succeeded in 1902, with the vigorous support of President Roosevelt, in passing our first irrigation act, he and those who aided his efforts dreamed of armies of happy, prosperous and contented citizens settled upon the public domain, were the Government for its aid and enterprise. They believed their action would give to loyal citizens an opportunity, by the production of wealth, the development of the resources of the country and the stimulation of its trade and commerce, to repay manyfold the nation's generosity and help.

"Years have passed since that day, and in many places, in this and other States, we now find settlers on reclamation projects who are discouraged and distressed. With high hope they moved upon the lands embraced in many of these projects, expended their available resources and consumed their energy in improving and developing them; and today, in place of a contented and grateful people, their exist dejection and despair.

Says Settler Got No Help.

"No aid was given to the settler in the leveling of his land or providing a drainage system. This required engineering ability and facilities. This want of drainage is rapidly resulting in the destruction of the farmer in many places and is a chief cause of the present emergency.

"Many have abandoned their farms and others stay only from sheer inability to get away. There is danger that the whole reclamation experiment may become discredited."

Mr. Davis charged that the treatment accorded these settlers who entered upon irrigation and reclaimed land on assurances given them by agents of the Government amounted to a breach of faith. The cost of each project is borne ultimately by the settlers, said Mr. Davis, and cited two projects in Colorado where the cost greatly exceeded the estimates as typical examples of the way the settlers had been forced to pay much more for their land than they had expected.

Quoting the Fact-Finding Commission as authority, Mr. Davis said that the estimated cost to the homesteader on the Grand Valley irrigation project was $55 an acre and the actual cost $88.90 an acre, while the estimated cost of the Uncompahgre project was $50 an acre and the actual cost $80.80.

"In equity and in morals this situation should be righted," Mr. Davis said. "There is no bond between man and man or just ties between Government and its citizens. In matters of this sort the Government can well afford to be generous and surely it must be fair."

Mr. Davis then condemned the increasing tendency to form a rigid bureaucracy at Washington, and pledged himself to weed out of the Government those of this rigid bureaucratic frame of mind.

"It is the idea of the bureaucrat that the citizen exists for the Government and not the Government for the citizen," he said, "and such is the power of human vanity that it becomes easy for him to think of himself and the Government as one and the same thing.

"We do not permit such ideas to take root in our public life. No man who holds them is fit for the Government service, and the first duty of every Chief Executive should be to weed out of the Government all men of this temper and to breathe into it a new spirit of respect for the individual citizen and a determination to protect him in the smallest of his rights."

Mr. Davis added that President Coolidge sent the report of the Fact-Finding Commission to Congress with a recommendation for action, but that nothing happened. He contrasted the Republican and Democratic platform planks on reclamation, declaring that the former rested merely on the fact the matter had been the subject of intense study by the Department of the Interior and that new policies and methods of operation had been adopted, while the Democratic plank declared for going on with the reclamation program and for rectifying the mistakes that had been made.

"But we need not concern ourselves solely with the Republican platform in trying to discover what policy they have in mind," Mr. Davis continued. "The present spokesman of the party apparently is its candidate for Vice President, and in a speech which he made in Lincoln on Aug. 30 he gave to those interested in irrigation and reclamation a clear index of what they have to expect if his party should continue in power.

"Said he: 'With truly American spirit, desiring to accomplish developments of our resources in the immediate future, we have undoubtedly put under cultivation millions of acres of land which should have been conserved as a source of food supply for future generations, and in this connection I would state that every reclamation project, whether by irrigation or drainage, furnished added competition for existing cultivated farms, orchards and vineyards at a time when we are already seriously embarrassed by over production in many lines.'"

"I invite every settler on any irrigation project to read that reassuring statement," said Mr. Davis.

For Development of the West.

"He knows now with what earnest sympathy the leaders of the Republican Party view his difficulties. He knows now how welcome is the effort he is making to increase the material wealth and agricultural power of the country. I invite every war veteran who has accepted the invitation of his Government to settle on its irrigated lands to consider what value he can attach to the lands the Government has offered him. It is the duty of candidates to interpret their party platform, and the present interpretation, reduced to simplest terms, is a brutal statement to settlers on reclamation projects that they had no business there in the first place and ought to leave as rapidly as possible!

"I said a moment ago that the West would be a different land from what it is today if it relied solely on Government enterprise to develop it. I do not want this statement to be taken to mean that I think the Government owes the duty to the people of the West or that it has performed all the duty that it owes. There are still many things to be done. Its ownership of public lands, of national forests and national parks, its interest in navigable waters in the duties of flood control—all these things make it impossible, even if it were desirable, for it to withdraw. Its aim should be to encourage private enterprise, but it should not shirk the duties which properly belong to it.

"While the development of our country and the progress of our people are best served through encouragement of individual initiative, there are certain activities which by reason of their peculiar national character can be more satisfactorily and expeditiously carried out by the National Government. The improvement and development of the great Colorado River, which flows through your own State, illustrates the policy I have in mind. That river is an international as well as an interstate stream. It possesses the latent power to enrich all of the inter-mountain States through which it flows. It may be used to irrigate millions of acres of the richest soil and can develop a tremendous horsepower that will reduce the cost of production upon our farms and any other industry within its broad basin.

Would Construct the Dams.

"Yet, great as may be its potentiality for hydro-electric power, it has its limits, and these limits will be unfortunately reduced unless the development is carried out in such a way that the maximum benefit for all will be obtained. I do not favor the operation of power plants and the distribution of electricity by the Government. This may well be done by private enterprise after the necessary dams have been constructed.

"But it seem. to me that in this case the Government should determine the location of these dams and the character of their construction, and that such construction should be actually carried out by it.

"At the end of his speech Mr. Davis again emphasized the issue of 'party responsibility,' which he declared he wished to keep before the people of the United States.

"Unless political parties can be held to strict account," he said, "party government is a base imposition and a fraud.

"When we turn to the record which the Republican Party has made since it came into power in 1919, what do we find? First, that for two years it obstructed the then Executive of the nation in any advance toward foreign settlement or domestic reconstruction; and when it came into complete power it adopted and continued a foreign policy unsuited alike to the dignity and the interests of the American people.

"In the Fordney-McCumber tariff it enacted a law both unjust and extortionate, based upon no principle other than that of greed. By virtue of this law the normal flow of commerce between this and other nations has been obstructed, and reciprocal trade relations made impossible. By virtue of this law the farmer has been forced beyond his power to pay and deprived of a market in which he might earn the means of payment. Worse still, he has been deceived by the placing of a futile tariff on the things of which he has a surplus to sell abroad.

"It has squandered the national resources and dissipated the naval reserves.

"Corruption aside, this was a policy injurious to the best interests of the nation, and as a policy was directly approved by the President of the United States and the leader of the Republican Party.

"It has delayed justice to settlers on reclamation projects and meets them now with a statement that their efforts on the whole have been injurious to the public welfare.

"It has denied to the veterans of the last and of former wars the care and attention which was their due. It has put at the head of the Veterans' Bureau the notorious Forbes and permitted him and his associates to enrich themselves out of the misery of others.

"It has exhibited a fatal lack of concerted action between the President and Congress and has shown its inability to frame or carry out any consistent policy for the general welfare.

"I pass to the people of Colorado and of the West the plain issue of common honesty in government. I ask them to hold the Republican Party, as a political organization, to the accounting which is its due. I appeal to their memories and their conscience to direct their judgment."

Much Refreshed by His Rest.

Mr. Davis left the Hotel Stanley at Estes Park, high in the Rocky Mountains, early this morning, much refreshed by his two days' stay in the rarefied atmosphere. His trip to Denver, begun in a slight flurry of snow, was not altogether hazardous one, for the snow turned to a rainy mist or rain in lower down. On reaching the lower levels the Davis party found the road in places like a quagmire, and the automobile carrying Mr. Davis skidded from side to side at several places, and at one point a hill inches deep in slippery mud was scaled with difficulty.

Mr. Davis stopped at Boulder, where he shook hands with several hundred men and women who gathered in the lobby of the Hotel Eldorado and spoke a few words of greeting.

Mr. Davis will leave here tomorrow for Cheyenne, Wyo., where he will speak tomorrow night. His speech tonight concluded his series of set speeches, except one each on foreign affairs and personal liberty which will be delivered in the East on his return to that section.

RITCHIE SAYS DAVIS WILL WIN MARYLAND

Klan Not an Issue There, He Asserts, Predicting National Victory in November.

VISITS HEADQUARTERS HERE

Expects La Follette to Get a Considerable Vote, but Mostly From Republicans.

Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland brought word to the Eastern district headquarters of the Democratic National Committee yesterday that his State was safe for John W. Davis and that the Klan question was giving no trouble in Maryland. The Governor was one of the most optimistic visitors to the headquarters in the Hotel Belmont in several days.

"There is nothing in this talk of the election being thrown into the House of Representatives," said Governor Ritchie emphatically. "Mr. Davis is going to win the election at the polls. I know that he will carry my State and New Jersey and I don't see why he shouldn't carry New York as well, with Governor Smith doing the work planned for him.

"We started our campaign in Maryland a few days ago, and yesterday opened our headquarters in Baltimore. We have every element of the party working harmoniously together and every worker seems to think it a pleasure to work. There is not the slightest doubt we will carry the State for Davis and Bryan."

Governor Ritchie was asked about the Ku Klux Klan.

"We are not bothered much with the Klan in our State now. They were well organized and were all against me in my campaign last Fall, but instead of making progress the Klan today seems to be going back."

Discusses Third Party Move.

"The Progressive movement—the La Follette movement—is a new thing with us in Maryland. The La Follette managers filed the Senator's petition the other day, and I really think they will get a considerable vote, which probably will come from Republicans and Democrats alike, but the far greater number will come from the Republican ranks.

"The Maryland Federation of Labor, like labor bodies in other States, endorsed the La Follette ticket, but, all in all, it is a hard thing to judge how much of an effect the movement will have in Maryland, as we have never before had any serious third party movement there."

Governor Ritchie had a long talk with Thomas J. Spellacy, regional campaign manager, and said afterward it referred to a speaking tour he was to make through New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts and other States.

"The tour has been definitely decided upon," he said, "but the itinerary has not yet been made up."

The Governor, Samuel Untermyer and former Secretary of Labor Wilson were the principal visitors to the Democratic headquarters.

A brief statement was issued by James W. Gerard, Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee. It read:

"A political campaign cannot be managed without money.

"The Democratic Party needs funds for the legitimate expenses of a nation-wide campaign.

"Checks or cash may be sent to James W. Gerard, Treasurer, Hotel Belmont, Forty-second Street and Park Avenue, New York, N. Y., and prompt acknowledgment given."

Mr. Spellacy announced the appointment of Frank E. Carstarphen as head of the Eastern division speakers bureau. Mr. Carstarphen is an Assistant District Attorney. He was in the United States Attorney's office in this district during the first Wilson Administration and later was a Special Attorney General. He has been a speaker for the Democratic Party for many years and two years ago was Vice Chairman of the Tammany Speakers Committee.

CALLS LA FOLLETTE MASTER DEMAGOGUE

port of a more rigid enforcement of law and order, and behind the constitutional foundations of our great representative Government.

A revolt is on against weakness and evasion in political leaders, for it is recognized that in this weakness and evasion in regard to fundamental issue lies the chief reason for the impudence of public officials in the enforcement of law when that enforcement operates against aggressive minorities.

In Mr. La Follette's platform he advocates "abolition of the tyranny and usurpation of the demagogue in using the practice of nullifying legislation in conflict with the political, social or economic theories of the judges."

In his platform, promulgated to the voters of Wisconsin, he says: "We favor submitting to the people, for their considerate judgment, a constitutional amendment providing that Congress may by enacting a statute make it effective over a judicial veto."

Proposed Change Condemned.

His proposition is in effect that no inferior Federal court be allowed to set aside an act of Congress on the ground that it is unconstitutional, and that Congress may set aside the verdicts of the Supreme Court itself, if it declares unconstitutional a law which Congress may have passed. This proposition is to abrogate the principle of three-fold division of power—executive, legislative, and judicial—which is the basis of our Constitution, and make the executive and judicial power subordinate to the legislative power.

It means that for our present form of government we are to adopt another in which Congress will predominate.

The success of such a doctrine, which would mean that the Constitution would be stripped of authority, would be disastrous, and government would become the plaything of changing political parties, with demagogues the ruling power.

Its effects likewise would be disastrous to the rights of the States, to which are reserved such rights of government as are not specifically delegated to the Federal Government by the Constitution. It would bring disaster to the happiness, prosperity and peace of the American people as a whole if, in place of our stable, constitutional Government, under which we have lived for 136 years, we should establish a Government by Congress. This would be practically equivalent to a Government of free democracy, which history has proved is most futile and disastrous for the proper protection of a people.

I want this evening to discuss particularly this proposition as it affects the inalienable rights of the individual, referred to in the Declaration of Independence, for any violation of which rights the Constitution of the United States was framed. Alexander Hamilton said, "The Constitution itself is, in every rational sense and every useful purpose, a bill of rights."

Under the Constitution, the courts are the guardians of the inalienable rights of the individual.

A bill of rights is a statement of those inalienable rights of the individual in which his Government must protect him, and which any opposing power, within or without the Government, must concede to him; such as the right to worship in the way his conscience may dictate; the right to own property; the right peacefully to assemble for a proper avocation; the right to trial by jury, and such rights as protect him in the peaceful pursuit of happiness.

After ages of conflict, during which mankind has passed through martyrdom, all civilization recognizes an individual bill of rights. Indeed, the growth and establishment of bills of rights marks the growth and establishment of civilization.

The citizen formerly had to defend his individual bill of rights from the kings and princes and tyrants of the past. The Magna Charta was a bill of rights, and as Hamilton said, it was forced from King John by the barons, sword in hand"; the "Petition of Right," exacted from Charles I., and the "Declaration of Rights," drawn by the Lords and Commons in 1688 and exacted from the Prince of Orange, were bills of rights.

Individual Rights Endangered.

The bill of inalienable individual rights, the general recognition of which is the foundation of civilization, would be, under the La Follette proposition, at the mercy of Congress. It wickedly challenges the professed purpose of every civilized government to remove from the realm of public conflict those individual rights the reasonableness and necessity of which have been demonstrated by warfare as old as the world, and to establish which the blood of untold millions, throughout the ages, has been shed.

Since the inalienable rights of the individual are those which are always threatened by mob action, and since, in this country, it is government under our Constitution which is their only sure protection, I want to point out the difference between the rule of the people and the rule of the mob.

The fact that the ultimate judgment of the people is always sound and always just is the rock upon which representative constitutional government stands. History and all experience shows that in the process of forming ultimate judgment, public opinion passes through a series of changing and temporary phases.

What has destroyed free democracy in government in history is the fact that a temporary phase of public opinion would determine governmental attitude. This temporary phase being wrong, governmental action was taken, and then the ultimate right judgment of the people was too late to correct the mistake.

As some one has said, in the free democracy of Greece Socrates was compelled to drink the hemlock one year, while a statue was raised to his memory the next year.

Under the constitutional government of the United States a system of checks and balances exists by which it is rendered certain that only the ultimate right and sound judgment of the people crystallizes into law.

That government whose policy is determined by the ultimate judgment of the people will permanently survive. The government whose actions are determined by the passing phase of popular opinion, as distinguished from ultimate opinion, will perish. The Constitution of the United States establishes the rule of the people, as distinguished from the rule of the mob. The difference between the demagogue and the statesman is that the demagogue appeals to the mob and the statesman to the sound judgment of the people.

Between the people and between the mob there is all the difference between daylight and darkness. Let us consider this carefully for a short time:

Mob Psychology in Politics.

What is going on throughout the United States and the world at this time as regards the relationship of governments to their people is best outlined in a series of books written by Gustav Le Bon.

Le Bon points out that when people are massed in crowds, a singular phenomenon occurs and a new entity seems to be formed. The crowd, as a crowd, has little intelligence—and Herbert Spencer was mistaken when he assumed that the intelligence of a crowd was the intelligence of the average individual composing it. Le Bon points out that the genius or mental entity of a crowd is made up of those instincts and feelings which the individuals composing it possess in common. A crowd, he says, may separate in intellect the mathematician from his bootblack, but in their elemental desires and feelings they are much alike. It is a fusion of the latter which comprises the mind of a mob. The amalgamation of people into crowds creates a living organism possessing a definite character and definite mental attitudes, and one of these is the almost total lack of reasoning power, more like that of a little child. It is moved and controlled by leaders who indulge in violent affirmation as distinguished from reason and in reiteration which finally produces a contagion from which springs mob action.

Le Bon points out that a crowd, because collectively it acts as a unit of little intelligence, can under the influence of strong leadership be induced to commit deeds 1,000 times more base than any individual by himself could be persuaded to do; and, on the other hand, can be led to acts of heroism and self-sacrifice to which again no individual member of it by himself could be persuaded.

He points out that that which interferes with the creation of mobs and the mob spirit are the fundamental institutions of the land with which its life has become associated—the family and the Church—and he maintains that as family ties loosen and the Church tends to fall into disrespect the obstacles to mass movement under unworthy leadership are greatly lessened. It is significant in this connection that the representatives of mobs at the time of the French Revolution decreed the abolition of all religion, just as in Soviet Russia today the Church has been assailed and the young men are attacking religion and the Church as one of the agencies of oppression.

As wealth and prosperity increase in a peaceful country, we know too well that the hold of the Church and the hold of the family upon the individual is loosened; and while in this great country of ours that hold persists among great masses of people as a safeguard, the American citizen feels that he is face to face with a danger to the liberties of our people from organized mobs of minorities under sinister leadership.

We have seen in this country tremendous power yielded by certain leaders who understand mob psychology. We have seen the great influence of certain leaders who understand mob psychology and who, following the Le Bon formula of violent affirmation and indulging in no appeal to their reason, lead masses of people to violent action.

The principles which Le Bon sets forth are as old as humanity. The depths of suffering endured by the world during the ages as the result of mob leadership history only too well records.

"Quintessence of Demagogism."

La Follettism in this campaign represents the quintessence of demagogism, animated by the vicious purpose of undermining the constitutional foundation of this Republic.

In analyzing the speech of Mr. La Follette, one cannot but be impressed with the thought that, beyond any other political leader in our country, he represents the qualities and exhibits the methods of mob leadership, as well described by Le Bon as consisting in violent affirmation without appeal to reason, repetition and a trust that contagion will spread conviction.

Taking up the La Follette Labor Day speech, what do we find? Violent and unsupported affirmation, references in a general way covering the supremacy of the so-called interests; their wickedness; Wall Street; the downtrodden condition of labor and of the farmer; the hopeless slavery of the American people crushed under the heel of monopolies. Then, on the other hand, violent affirmation as to the beneficial changes which will occur if the masses are put in charge of things, incidentally eleviating La Follette as their leader into the high office of President of the United States. Inferentially, wages will go up, the prices of farm products will go up, business will not be hurt, the millennium will have arrived.

There is no significant vagueness in the discussion of the methods by which these results are to be attained, except the ever-present intimation that if certain politicians are put into office the means will be found.

In its strong appeal to the prejudices and passions of the people the speech is unusual, but in no other way. Never in the history of the United States has the common sense of the average individual received a greater affront. La Follette's speech should raise the question in the minds of the American people—"Does he consider us a race of fools?" Slowly, and at an immense cost, with the loss of millions of lives and untold bloodshed throughout the ages, has civilized society evolved.

As I said before, the establishment and steady progress of the individual bill of rights has, in all civilized countries, marked the progress of its civilization. These inalienable rights of the individual referred to in "The Declaration of Independence"—this individual bill of rights, upon which no other individual can encroach—upon which no Government can encroach—are guaranteed by the compact under the Constitution of the United States. But in the mass of clap-trap accompanying the La Follette effort we can see one steady purpose always in mind—the attack upon the Constitution of the United States. That is why the Socialist Party is standing behind La Follette; and in the words of Eugene V. Debs, telegraphing his endorsement in this campaign, "is adhering rigidly to its principles and keeping the red flag flying."

We have heard much, the last few years, in Congress and out, from the politicians, about the rights of this class and that class, this organization or the other organization, this industry or that industry, of this section or that section, of this bloc or of that bloc.

Amid the din of the conflict and inconsistent demands of those organizations for preferential legislative treatment we hear, at times, the plaintive cry of disturbed trimmers, and watch the confused and panic-stricken scurrying of politicians whenever a determined minority marches on the scene of legislation. But the American people know that in attempting to please minority organizations the defense of the Constitution which protects individual rights has been neglected.

"Thus Governments Are Overthrown."

No wonder, in the midst of such political cowardice, the enemies of constitutional government become defiant and the Socialists fly the red flag. Unless patriotic citizens arouse themselves in the face of this mobilization of extreme radicalism by an individual, in a formidable attack upon the Constitution of the United States, the foundations of the Republic may be torn away. It is thus, always, that Governments are overthrown. The leader arises, preaching that destruction of government means the establishment of individual liberty, means all things good to all men, means that if they will place him and his associates in power, as the true exemplars of progress and reform, that all will be well—that the faults of civilization do not have their foundation in the faults of the individual, but in the particular form of government which they happen to be attacking.

Sometimes, in countries where liberty does not live as it lives in this country, and where the yoke of despotism and wicked government has pressed heavily upon the necks of the people, the masses, believing in such leaders, or at least believing that no change would be for the worse, place them in power, as they did recently in Russia. What happened then is only what has happened in history. Then came the most terrible form of despotism, with its accompanying indescribable confusion, with confiscation, with assaults upon religion, with assaults upon the freedom of the press, with prostration of business, with starvation and misery for the masses. In their adversity disillusioned with that knowledge which experience alone gives, the chastened Russian people, after years of misery, will again re-establish justice under law and order in a Government not ruled by individual ambition, but upheld by and participated in by the people, as is our own Government, in which the inalienable rights of the individual are recognized and protected.

What is there, who cannot recognize the fundamental nature of this La Follette attack upon the Constitution of the United States, having as one of its cardinal principles the transfer of the guardianship of the inalienable rights of the people from the courts and the Constitution to Congress, a principle the recognition of which at one blow would destroy the fundamental and balancing division of powers of the American Government?

The courts of the United States are the guardians of the inalienable rights of individuals, including the freedom of the press, the rights of property and religious toleration. They interpret laws passed by Congress in their relation to these rights upheld by the Constitution. What kind of a government would this be if Congress had the right to pass a law taking property from one man and handing it to another, directing a man where he shall go to church and restraining or encroach upon the individual rights recognized by all civilization?

It has become the fashion of politicians, in seeking to befuddle and confuse the mind of our people in their effort to get some petty office for themselves, to use such catch phrases as "reactionary." They would seek to have the term "reactionary" raise in the mind of the listener the picture of one who stands against honest progress in government and in favor of some static quo from which he is supposed to derive an unfair individual benefit. Such reactionaries all good citizens must condemn.

"Reaction" in Attack on Constitution.

But the most dangerous reactionary is the man attacking the Constitution of the United States, under which our happy and progressive people live in peace and a prosperity greater than that of any other nation in the world. Such a man would open the way for a condition of things under which again, in poverty, confusion and misery, the people must evolve among themselves constitutional instruments of stable and free government, under which the inalienable rights of the individual are protected from the aggressions of the majority and from government itself. Let us not deceive ourselves. The doctrines of the Socialists of the United States, headed in this campaign by Robert M. La Follette, are the reactionary doctrines. The heterogeneous collection of the representatives of organized minorities which endorsed the candidacy of Robert M. La Follette could never have evolved a platform of their own, so diverse were their doctrines and so impracticable and impossible their scattered viewpoints. It seems that there was but one man in the United States who could impose a platform upon them and he only could do it because the cardinal principle of his platform was an attack upon the courts and the Constitution of the United States. The fair sounding phrases of some parts of his platform would not have been sufficient to weld together behind him the forces against the existing order of things had not this attack upon the Constitution irradiated them.

I recognize that there are in this country many men who are justly discontented but who are patriotic at heart—who love their country, its Constitution and flag. They may be opposed to certain things in the existing order, but they are not opposed to the existing order of things, and I warn them that they should not be deceived by the catch-all phrases of this master demagogue, endeavoring to amalgamate them with the Socialists, flying the red flag, in an attack upon the Constitution of their country.

There is only a half-way ground. It is useless for any party to intervene in the battle alignment of those who favor the Constitution of the United States and those who would destroy its essential parts. They are in no man's land. They not only will not gain any recruits from either battle line but they will be fortunate if by fight they escape with their political existence.

In one battle line is Calvin Coolidge, the leader, standing on the platform of the Constitution of progressive conservatism and under the American flag; in the other is La Follette with a combination of the forces of extreme radicalism, in which the largest part, the Socialists, fly the red flag.

Citizens of Wisconsin, I have outlined the greatest issue in this campaign. You are to vote on it next November. Let this decision be made by a full vote of the registered voters, not by the fractional vote which, for the last four years, has been cast in Wisconsin. What issue was ever more important? Let us find out, as a people, where we stand—on the rock of law and order and the Constitution, with the Stars and Stripes, or on the sinking sands of the Socialists, with the red flag.

For myself, I cannot doubt that the great State of Wisconsin will stand behind our flag, and that at the first thought in the hearts of a great majority of its citizens is "My Country, 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty."

Promises a Real Fight.

The trouble in Wisconsin, General Dawes told the people of Kenosha in a rear platform speech on his way to Milwaukee, is that politicians have been cowardly and afraid to face real issues and fight. He said he proposed to meet all issues even though he should be accused of "spilling the beans." His speech at Kenosha follows:

"In this campaign I am assuming, as I think candidates always should assume in every campaign, that the people of the United States have got sound common sense. You haven't had a very good word to say for the last four years up here in Wisconsin, but a fraction of your total registered vote. What is the reason? You haven't had issues defined on both sides. You had had one side that fights and the other side, through some of its leaders, at least, who dodge.

"My idea of a campaign is to meet issues and not dodge them because of fear that a minority organization will hit back. That is one reason why people don't vote, is coming to the polls; that issues which are in the heart and conscience of the American people are not clearly defined and we haven't got a real fight. Now we are going to have a fight this time, and all I am going to say is do, to the best of my ability, is to tell the truth and define issues, trusting that the sound judgment of the American people will be reached irrespective of the political 'pee-wits' who seem to be more or less perturbed in both parties for fear I will spill the beans."

TO ATTACK RADICAL CENTRES.

Dawes to Speak at Sioux Falls and Twice in Minnesota.

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 11.—An assault on the La Follette strongholds in the Northwest was begun by the Republican Party today with the departure for Milwaukee of the party's chief campaign speaker and Vice Presidential nominee, Charles G. Dawes.

The Milwaukee address tonight has been listed by the Republican campaign managers as the first of a series of four to be made this month by Mr. Dawes in the States between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains, where the La Follette-Wheeler Independence ticket is regarded as having most strength.

Mr. Dawes was advised by Chairman Butler of the Republican National Committee just before the departure that arrangements had been completed for the next speech in the series, Sept. 15, at Sioux Falls, S. D., and that plans were being made for two speeches during the week of Sept. 21 in Minnesota, one in either St. Paul or Minneapolis and the other in southern Minnesota, probably at Mankato. These speeches will be arranged for on consecutive dates.

Mr. Dawes will visit St. Paul next Tuesday, but only to review the parade of the sixth annual national convention of the American Legion and not to engage in any political activities.

Half a dozen officials of the Republican campaign organization, including Chairman Butler, were in the party that accompanied Mr. Dawes on a special train to Milwaukee.

SAYS DAVIS IS TRAILING.

La Follette Manager Here Declares Coolidge Is the Only Rival.

Gilbert E. Roe, La Follette manager in the Northeastern States, said yesterday that he thought the campaign was almost wholly between Coolidge and La Follette. He went to Washington last night to meet the other leaders of the Progressive Party, with the announced intention of telling them that in the ten States in his jurisdiction John W. Davis was running a poor third.

"The weakness of the Davis candidacy throughout the East is the sensation of the campaign," said Mr. Roe, "and there is every evidence that the Cox debacle of four years ago will be repeated. The response to Senator La Follette's candidacy has been so widespread that no doubt remains that this was the psychological year for presenting to the electors a genuine progressive party."

Half the counties in this State have completed their quota of petitions for putting La Follette electors on the ballot, Mr. Roe said. Open-air La Follette rallies are to be held in Union Square weekly, beginning tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Demands Tioga Klan Roll.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 11.—A formal demand has been made upon District Attorney Nathan Turk of Tioga County by William H. Murphy of Owego for the enforcement of the law compelling the Ku Klux Klan organization within Tioga County to make public a list of its members under the Walker law.

The organization is said to be strong in Tioga County. Mr. Turk is said to be the first District Attorney of the State to receive such a demand.

Colorado Klan Candidates Win.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 11.—Rice W. Means and Clarence J. Morley are the Republican candidates for the Senate, short term, and Governor, respectively, according to reports compiled by The Associated Press Election Bureau today from 1,343 precincts out of 1,492 in Colorado. Both were active supporters of the Ku Klux Klan. Morley had a lead of 5,450 over Lieut. Gov. Robert F. Rockwell. Means had a plurality of 9,218 over his nearest opponent, Charles W. Waterman of Denver.

there is serious danger of the latter eventuality.

"The East is absolutely safe for the President. Therefore, the West and border States become the battle ground. Davis's visit to the West is as complete a failure as can well be imagined. As the situation stands today I do not believe that President Coolidge or the Republican Party have anything to fear from the verdict of the American electorate on November 4."

Reports Harmony in Bay State.

George A. Baker of Springfield, Mass., former Republican State Chairman, called to pay his respects to the President and to describe the Massachusetts political situation. He said the party in that State is enjoying "complete harmony," and that President Coolidge will "sweep the State."

John H. Kirby of Texas, President of the Southern Tariff Association, called upon the President today to urge him not to bring about a reduction in the duty on sugar at this time. He declared such a reduction would result in failures and harm to the industry and its associated businesses.

Mr. Kirby said he called on the President because the latter was studying the report made to him by the Tariff Commission of their opinions after the investigation of the sugar industry. It is understood the commission's report indicates that there is a divided opinion among the members regarding the sugar schedule, and the President is open to argument before reaching a conclusion.

Colonel C. O. Sherrill, U. S. A., chief military aid to the President, has gone to Alliance, Ohio, as the personal representative of Secretary Weeks at the Defense Day celebration to be held there tomorrow. He will read a message from President Coolidge and another from Secretary Weeks, the President will review the parade here but does not plan to deliver an address.

Malcolm MacDonald, son of the Premier of Britain, who is in this country with the debating team of Oxford University, was introduced to the President today by Secretary Hughes.

BOYS ARE NEVER DRAGGED TO BEST'S

BOYS hate to be dragged about on a shopping tour. And that's what the Fall school outfit often means to them. It's a perfectly normal attitude. But it's also one reason so many of them like to be brought to Best's for their clothes—first.

They are an observant lot, these youngsters—at least they are wide open to impression. And they have discovered that in most cases both they and their mothers find satisfaction at Best's.

Mothers want long wear. Boys want "looks." It's all a question of building quality into clothes of appearance—and Best's had done that for forty years.

PLAN TO DRAFT SMITH IS NOW DISCUSSED

MORE PRESSURE PROPOSED

National Leaders and Non-Officeholders In State May Be Asked to Help.

GOVERNOR'S 'NO' PERSISTS

Many County Chiefs Arrive and Tell How Popular He Remains Up-State.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Drafting of Governor Smith by the Democratic State Convention, scheduled to meet in this city in a fortnight, has been discussed today by party leaders as a last resort, should all other efforts to induce the Governor to become a candidate for re-election to his present office fail.

This would be the final step, but not the next. Should the Governor up to the time when he leaves this city tomorrow continue adamant against their pleas, the two weeks which will intervene before the convention will be employed by the leaders in attempts to have pressure brought to bear on him from Democrats of national prominence as well as by party men of standing in this State who have not been active in the organization, whose motives in asking the Governor to run would, for that reason, be above suspicion.

Some persons who are close to Governor Smith and defend the attitude taken by the Governor as dictated by necessity have insisted that many who have been urging him to lead this year's State fight have been actuated by selfish motives rather than by unselfish interest in a party victory. References have been made to the "bread and butter crowd" to which Democratic control at Albany is of interest solely from a patronage and office-holding point of view.

While Governor Smith, as far as can be learned, has not in his talks with leaders since his arrival here given expression to such views, the latter have been quick to sense that pressure from disinterested quarters might carry more weight with the Governor than the representations of persons whose positions compel them to take a practical interest in a continued supply of patronage.

As to the suggestion to have the Democratic convention name the Governor by acclamation for a third term and place him in a position where to avoid running he would be compelled to make his refusal to the supreme body representative of his party in this State, leaders hope that this may be avoided and that the Governor may yet be made to "see the light."

Apparently plans for this final move have not matured, although it was reported today that a Democrat who has been mentioned as a prospective candidate for the nomination, if the Governor could not be induced to run, had been asked to prepare a speech placing the Governor in nomination.

Governor Still Says "No."

All day the tug of war between the Governor and the leaders continued, the Governor declaring that he would not run and the leaders insisting that he must.

Governor Smith spent most of the day at the Fair Grounds viewing exhibits with Mrs. Smith and other members of his family and addressing an open-air audience of about 5,000. Tonight he was the guest of William H. Kelley, Democratic leader of Onondaga County, at the latter's home.

Three Democrats who have been talked of in connection with the Gubernatorial nomination, if Governor Smith could not be prevailed upon to run, came here today. They may have been attracted by reports that the Governor during his visit would finally make up his mind and say the word that would leave them free for canvassing. However that may be, they added their pleas to those of the leaders at a talk they had with the Governor at the Fair Grounds this afternoon. This trio are Lieut. Gov. George R. Lunn, Attorney General Carl Sherman and James A. Hamilton, Secretary of State.

Norman E. Mack and Mr. Kelley have perhaps had more of an opportunity to talk to Governor Smith regarding the Governorship than any of the other leaders who were here today. Mr. Mack based his plea on the lift that Governor Smith as a candidate for re-election could give the national ticket. After hearing the Governor again today he said that he appeared to be unshaken in his determination not to run. Governor Smith himself said late this afternoon that he had nothing to add to what he had said on the subject yesterday.

"I guess we will have to leave it to the convention to persuade Governor Smith to run," said Mr. Mack. "He is sticking tight and so are we."

One plea that the Governor appears to have heeded is that he refrain from making any statement that he will not run. So long as he has not done that the leaders refuse to abandon hope.

Mr. Kelley said: "The Governor does not want to run—that is plain."

"Well, what is going to happen?" he was asked.

"I wish you would ask the Governor that question," he replied, "but don't ask him until we are through pleading with him and presenting our arguments why he should run."

Among leaders who appeared here today were State Controller James Fleming, Charles F. McGuan of Cayuga and William H. Manning of Saratoga.

Up-State Still for Governor.

All the up-State leaders brought reports that the Governor was as popular up-State as ever. They feel that there is no doubt that he would win should he consent to make the race.

Certainly the reception by the crowds at the fair has been most cordial. His speech at the Barnum dinner last night, when he spoke on rural education and other agricultural problems, was warmly received. At the Fair Grounds today he was applauded when he defended increased expenditures of the State, declaring that the money was not being wasted but well spent and stressing the necessity of improvements at the State institutions, for which a bond issue of $50,000,000 has been set aside, and of the State acquiring additional forest lands in the Lake George region and elsewhere.

Somehow, there is a belief among the leaders, even in the face of the Governor's reiterated refusal, that he will yet lead the party fight in the coming campaign. They insist that the pressure that will be brought to bear on him will prove too strong in the end to be resisted.

"Suppose the Governor should take it into his head to turn the convention down when that body renews the demand that we have been making," said one leader. "What would be the result? Why, it would mean his finish as far as politics is concerned. It would leave him without a claim on his party. His past successes have all been political successes and, as I see it, destiny has marked out for him a future course which will bring him new political honors. I don't think he could turn his back on politics and public life and feel happy.

"If the Governor runs he will win, of that there is no doubt. If both he and Davis should carry this nominally Republican State, think what that would mean. Or suppose he should win and Davis should not, what this would mean four years from now. Even if he should be defeated it would not hurt him, because he would be certain to run miles ahead of his ticket. His defeat in 1920 did not hurt him any; his performance in that year, in fact, is looked upon today as his greatest achievement as a vote getter. He is the most successful man in politics and public life in the country today. To run could not under any circumstances hurt him, but to run away when the party needs him is a thing that he could never get over, after all the party has done for him."

Republican scouts are on the ground preparing to adjust the party course to developments here. They are all hoping that the Governor will stick to his present determination, but some are fearful that he will not.

10,000 UP-STATE HAIL COOLIDGE CARAVAN

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Dawes coast to coast caravan brought the national campaign into New York State today when it left Albany early this morning and touring half a dozen counties, wound up with a large meeting here tonight.

Crowds turning out at Schenectady, Amsterdam, Fort Plain, Little Falls, Herkimer, Ilion and Utica to listen to Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., former Representative Albert W. Jeferis of Nebraska in charge of the tour, and local county Chairmen.

The caravan, consisting of several automobiles and a truck bearing a replica of the birthplace of President Coolidge at Plymouth, Vt., caught the imagination of the farmers particularly. At least 10,000 people today heard the message of tax reduction and honesty in government. Apparently there were few Democrats in the crowds, for no one heckled the speakers.

Everywhere county chairmen promised a big turnout on election day. The Coolidge plurality, they said, would carry into office the entire State ticket, no matter who was nominated. In many cases the Republican chairmen admitted that this would not be so easy if Governor Smith was renominated.

The only city where it was admitted that La Follette would make any showing at all was Schenectady. Here County Chairman W. S. Hamlin admitted that the Wisconsin Senator would probably poll a large vote.

The only untoward incident occurred at Amsterdam. Here the caravan drew up in front of a firehouse and the Republican orators had scarcely got underway when someone, suspected to be an enthusiastic Democrat, turned in a false alarm.

At Herkimer the procession was met by Theodore Douglas Robinson and Representative Homer P. Snyder, who escorted the caravan into Utica. The meeting here tonight was the largest of the day and the crowd cheered Senator Wadsworth's promise of a sane Administration under Coolidge and Mr. Jefferis's attack on Governor Charles W. Bryan.

PREDICTS A STRONG PARTY.

Hapgood Likens La Follette Movement to That in England.

Speaking last night for the La Follette ticket in Public School 93, in Ridgewood, Norman Hapgood expressed the belief that out of the La Follette movement of this year there would come a permanent political party comparable with the British Labor Party. He contended that the movement was making a special appeal to the younger people. He said he knew of families which were divided, with the husband for Coolidge or Davis and the wife for La Follette, and of others in which the older folks belonged to one of the old parties, while the young folks would vote the Progressive ticket.

"The new movement is strongest," said Mr. Hapgood, "in doubtful States. We can hardly expect much new political thinking in Vermont or Mississippi. The new movement, which will be a new progressive party, like the British Labor Party, will show its first rapid growth not only in the Northwest, but also in fairly close States like Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, New York and Michigan and also States where labor has much to complain of, as in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island."

MONTANA DEMOCRATS REPLY

Deny Wheeler's Charge of Wall St. Taint—Praise His Services.

HELENA, Mont., Sept. 11.—The State Democratic Convention last night passed a resolution concerning Senator Burton K. Wheeler, independent party nominee for the Vice Presidency. It follows:

"We deny the contention of the junior Senator from Montana that the Democratic Party is controlled or influenced by Wall Street, as evidenced either in the legislation enacted or sought to be enacted or in the choice of its candidate for President of the United States.

"In both particulars the record affords refutation.

"Notwithstanding that we deplore the defection of the junior Senator from what we conceive to be the cause of the people to follow a hopeless quest, we take pride in his great service in exposing the appalling corruption with which the Department of Justice was infected."

Resolutions denouncing alleged political activities of the Ku Klux Klan also were adopted.

WOMAN ORATORS GRADUATE

Feminine Republican Campaigners Told to Forego Cosmetics.

After a short but intensive period of training about five hundred Republican women were graduated yesterday from the speakers' school of the Women's National Republican Club. They received this parting advice from Mrs. Grace Vanamee, who has been conducting the classes:

"Dress plainly and avoid cosmetics when you are about to make a campaign speech. Interest your audience in the subject you are discussing rather than in your personality."

At the closing session the students listened to an address on the Mellon plan by Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company.

'GET OUT THE VOTE' CAMPAIGN PUSHED

COUNCIL OF 15 AUTHORIZED

Will Head Drive to Prevent Election by a Minority, as in 1920—Conference Discusses Ways.

A resolution authorizing Judge Alton B. Parker, President of the National Civic Federation, to appoint a non-partisan Council of Fifteen to "get out the vote" in New York during the coming election was adopted yesterday at the Hotel Astor by a meeting of representatives of forty-two patriotic, commercial, labor, religious and political organizations.

The Council of Fifteen will act as a clearing house to coordinate the activities of all the organizations working to get out a big vote and prevent a repetition of what happened in 1920, when only a minority—49 per cent.—of those eligible to vote in the national elections did so.

The radio, the movies, the newspapers and every other conceivable agency of influencing public opinion will be utilized, according to speakers. Judge Parker, who presided, explained that the meeting had been called because of the new danger to liberty and democratic institutions in the United States in the failure of qualified voters to go to the polls.

How the Movement Started.

After the 1920 election showed that more than half of the qualified voters had failed to do their duty, Judge Parker went on, the National Civic Federation sent an appeal to commercial organizations in 1,000 cities and towns, urging them to bring about local conferences to launch the drive on a national scale. Yesterday's conference, he added, was held to show that New York would keep its word with the rest of the country in pushing the movement.

Dr. Thomas Darlington, former Health Commissioner of this city, announced that Tammany Hall had authorized him to say that it would do its best to cooperate in getting out a full vote. Irwin Schultz, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Republican County Committee, said experience showed that a large percentage of the non-voters were intelligent people. While the poor man usually casts his ballot regularly, he said, the business man often does not bother to go to the polls.

Saying that many men keep away from the polls because they fear that their names will be taken for lists for jury duty, Mr. Schultz urged the organizations represented at the conference to supply the Commissioner of Jurors with lists of non-voters and to get after the large number of non-voters living in New York apartment hotels and boarding houses.

Can Pick Jurors From Census.

Mr. Schultz said the law provided that the Commissioner of Jurors make up his list from any available source, and that one of these sources in this State was the census. The census was good for the first year or two after it was taken, he added, and during this period the Commissioner divided the names into a voters' box and a non-voters' box.

The law required, he continued, that names for jury duty be selected from the non-voters' box first. After the second or third year, however, the lists became incomplete, owing to deaths and removals, and the Commissioner had to depend chiefly on the voters' lists in making up his jury lists.

Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, director of the First Region, New York League of Women Voters, which was a pioneer in the getting out the vote movement, described some of the work her organization is doing. She said two radio broadcasting stations had been interested in the movement. One station may put a speaker "on the air" at 5 o'clock every Friday afternoon during the campaign to urge radio fans to vote, while another station may have its announcers make brief admonitions to register and vote.

Trying to Get "Movies" Interested.

Mrs. Tiffany said that the women voters were trying to persuade moving picture theatres to use slides or printed announcements reminding people to register, and that two women in Brooklyn are planning to "sacrifice" themselves by carrying sandwich boards in the streets for publicity purposes.

Complimenting THE NEW YORK TIMES for its page advertisement urging citizens to accept their privileges and responsibility as voters, Mrs. Tiffany suggested that other newspapers adopt the same idea.

The League of Women Voters, she went on, is negotiating with department stores for the use of tables near entrances and exits for the distribution of "literature." She urged that slips be tucked into packages sent out by department stores, and also into pay envelopes from stores and corporations. Stickers on automobiles and taxicabs, a house-to-house canvass, school activities, ringing of church bells and whistling by boats were also suggested by Mrs. Tiffany as means of drawing attention to the movement. Army aviators, she added, might be persuaded to write the word "register" on the sky. "Vote as you please, but vote!" was suggested for the stickers.

Message from the Legion.

Major R. E. Condon, representing the American Legion and the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, said the Legion was strongly in favor of the movement.

"I bring a message from it," he said, "asking the citizenry of this country to go out and vote on election day and thus keep faith with the men who fought with the war mothers, and with the men who lie buried in France."

He said the Junior Chamber had organized a "get-out-the-vote" campaign in 250 cities, and had spread the idea in many ways, especially by putting "vote" slogans on milk-bottle caps. It has prepared rubber stamps and has asked its members to stamp all mail with vote slogans, hoping to reach 12,000,000 persons in this way alone.

Ralph M. Easley, Chairman of the Executive Council of the Federation, said that between 800,000 and 700,000 voters were represented by the organizations which sent delegates to yesterday's conferences; also that the Federation's nation-wide appeal had received an enthusiastic response in several hundred cities, where local organizations were already cooperating to get out the vote. He said the drive will be directed at getting a maximum number of voters to the primaries on Sept. 16, during the registration period from Oct. 6 to 11, and on election day, Nov. 4.

Many Promise Support.

Others who spoke were Mrs. Thomas Slack of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, John V. Kennedy of Collier's Weekly, Ephraim M. Youmans of the Fifth Avenue Association, Brig.-Gen. J. M. Carson of the Military Order of the World War, Charles S. Morris of the Rotary Club of New York, Mr. Brown of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, S. Stanwood Menken of the National Security League, H. F. Laflamme of the New York Federation of Churches, M. C. Garrison of the Kiwanis Club, Miss Minnie Hall Simmons of the League of Advertising Women, J. A. Hall of the Direct Advertising Association of New York, and Mr. Hyman of the Allied Patriotic Societies.

Other organizations represented were the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants Association of New York, American Federation of Labor, Sons of the American Revolution, Bronx Rotary Club, States Island Rotary Club, Retail Dry Goods Association, Boy Scout Foundation of Greater New York, Traveling Salesmen's Association, Civitan Club, Knights of Columbus, New York Teachers' Council, Woman's Forum, Building Trades Employers' Association, American Defense Society, Hotel Association of New York City, Advertising Club of New York, Iroquois Club, Boys' Club Federation, Women Lawyers' Association, American Board of Applied Christianity, Military Training Camps Association, Non-Partisan League, Young Men's Christian Association and Washington Heights W. C. T. U.

The entire movement is non-partisan. Its slogan is: "Vote as you please—but vote!"

STRONG KLAN VOTE SEEN IN MICHIGAN

Men Endorsed by Order for Governorship Finished High in Primary.

DETROIT, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—The unexpectedly strong runs made at Tuesday's primary by candidates endorsed by the Ku Klux Klan today engaged the interest of political leaders.

In the Senatorial contest, in which Senator James Couzens defeated Federal Judge Arthur Tuttle, the Klan did not figure conspicuously, the campaign having been waged largely on the Michigan Senator's "Republicanism" and on his reputed wet sympathies.

It was in the Gubernatorial race that the Klan vote was most apparent, political observers assert. Governor Alex Groesbeck, seeking a third term, was renominated by the Republicans with a plurality that exceeded 300,000 today, with 250 precincts missing.

James Hamilton of Detroit, initiator of the movement to have an anti-parochial school amendment made to the State Constitution, finished as runner-up to the Governor. He ran with Klan endorsement and led several well-known Michigan political figures, including W. W. Potter, Chairman of the State Public Utilities Commission; Charles R. Sligh, Grand Rapids furniture man, and Herbert F. Baker, former State Senator.

The Rev. Frederick Perry, who was also known as a "Klan candidate," had more votes than Potter or Thomas Read, incumbent Lieutenant Governor.

Klan strength was given emphasis in the Detroit Mayoralty primary through the showing of Charles Bowles, a Klan endorsee, who ran only about 2,500 votes behind Joseph Martin, former Acting Mayor. Martin and John W. Smith, former Postmaster, who polled about 13,000 more votes than Martin, will be the run-off candidates in November.

WANT CLEAN CAMPAIGN.

Woman Expects an End of Whispering, Miss Whitney Tells League.

Mrs. Caspar Whitney, Vice Chairman of the New York State League of Women Voters, speaking at the luncheon of the Westchester League of Women Voters at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday, said that the women expected that none of the parties would make political capital of race or religious intolerance. Mrs. Whitney, whose subject "What Women Expect of the Parties," was applauded when she attacked the group of "so-called sportsmen" who are promoting "a certain big prize fight tonight." She said that because a few thousand persons wanted to see a prize fight one of the principals was "permitted to break not only one but several laws."

"Of course, I cannot pretend to speak for all the women, but I believe that I can speak for a large number of serious-minded, thinking women voters. What they expect of the parties is simple. Just plain honesty or pronouncement and action. They expect parties to put the welfare of the country before anything else, even that of the politicians.

"They expect decency in campaigning, which means the sticking to principles and not belonging vital issues with shameful personalities. The outrageous, unthinkable things that were said during political campaigns of men like Lincoln, Roosevelt and Wilson are beyond the average woman's understanding. It is all very well to say that these things were said in the heat of a political campaign and that nobody really took them seriously. That is not so. The slanders, innuendos and misstatements were a part of a deliberate attempt to get votes. The most harmful, the most vicious thing ever instituted in American political life is the whispering campaign fostered again and again by party leaders. Women certainly expect the parties to do away with this type of campaigning.

"If ever a race or religion threatens the institutions of our beloved country we want the matter treated by all parties with equal seriousness and determination, but we do not want this tolerance used as an instrument on which to play partisan politics. We want due consideration of our domestic problems and a genuine effort toward our entry into some type of an association of nations which will tend toward the abolishing of the peril of war. We want world peace."

Morris Hillquit of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party and a member of the La Follette-Wheeler Board of Strategy, spoke on "The Progressive Campaign as a Factor in Getting Out the Vote."

Other speakers at the luncheon were Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, who spoke for the Democratic Party; Theodore G. Risley of the Federal Department of Labor; Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Mrs. E. E. Day, County Chairman, and Franklin Q. Brown, who presided.

FINDS COOLIDGE STRONG.

Labor Man Says President Will Sweep California.

Word was brought to the Republican National Headquarters here yesterday that "beyond question" President Coolidge would make a "clean sweep" in the State of California, which played such a surprising and important part in the national election in 1916. The word was brought by Walter L. McMenimen, a member of the Railroad Labor Board, who has just completed a nation-wide survey of the situation among the working classes, during which he visited nearly every State, in the Union.

"I found a very wonderful Coolidge sentiment after leaving Chicago, which heretofore has been conceded to be La Follette territory," said Mr. McMenimen. "For instance, in Reno I found that the votes that had been given to Cox in 1920 are going to be cast for Coolidge. To me the reason for this is apparent. During his term of Governor of Massachusetts Mr. Coolidge received the thanks of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in a unanimous resolution for his stand in behalf of the railroad men in matters of legislation. This same feeling prevails throughout the rank and file of all railroad circles. They feel that they can trust Calvin Coolidge and are going to vote for him almost to a man.

"My observations, of course, were not confined to labor circles. I inquired of passengers in smoking cars, hotels, in Yellowstone National Park, in various political strongholds like Sacramento, and will here state positively that President Coolidge is going to make a clean sweep of the State of California. There is no question about that."

Mr. McMenimen was legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen for twelve years in the State of Massachusetts and served in a somewhat similar capacity in Washington. D. P. MacArdle, head of the Republican Labor Bureau, has had other reports similar to that made by Mr. McMenimen. He said yesterday that he considered the action of the New Jersey Federation of Labor in refusing to endorse the La Follette ticket as a clear indication that members of unions everywhere would vote according to their individual preferences.

WANTS SOUTH CAROLINA BALLOTS KEPT.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Sept. 11.—Representative James F. Byrnes today asked the Greenville Democratic Executive Committee to preserve the ballots cast in Tuesday's Democratic primary, in which he was a candidate for United States Senator. He did not give any reason for the request. With only a few precincts missing, former Governor Cole L. Blease had a lead of 1,766 votes over Byrnes.

WOMEN FOR DAVIS, IN SHAVER SURVEY

Majority of 26,000,000 Voters Will Support Him, Asserts Democratic Chairman.

LOOK TO HIM FOR REFORMS

Statement Declares Housekeepers Everywhere Demand Relief From Burdens of the Tariff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—A survey of the women voters of the United States, approximating 26,000,000, demonstrates that a majority of them will support the national Democratic ticket, according to a statement authorized by Chairman Shaver and made public today at the Washington headquarters of the National Committee.

The preference of this majority for John W. Davis was due to the belief "that he and the Democratic Party offer them the only chance for getting the reforms in which they are interested," Chairman Shaver said in the statement.

The survey indicated that the women of the country are taking the responsibility of voting seriously, are studying the situation closely and will vote as individuals. "They realize that they must apply intelligent thought to the party platforms and the candidates who stand behind them," said Chairman Shaver. "They are looking to see whether the candidate for President belongs to a party which has both the will and the way to carry out his pledges."

The survey revealed, he continued, "that the Democratic Party, as the party of new ideas and progress, appeals to women. No third party at this time has or can get the machinery necessary to enact desired reforms. Third parties have arisen in the past (always to the detriment of the party in power), and have served to draw attention to industrial or social ills, but it has been only through the majority of a responsible party in Congress, guided by a President who had the ability to lead, that desired legislation has been enacted."

American women were gratified at the action of the Democratic Party under the Wilson leadership when it passed the first two child-labor laws; when it made legal the principle of equal pay for women for equal work; when it put into law the eight-hour day, the minimum wage principle, and the regulation of conditions pertaining to women in industry."

"Women wanted the Department of Labor, which was created as a result of Democratic leadership and for which President Wilson appointed the first Secretary," the statement went on. "Under the Democratic administration, also, the Women's Bureau and the Children's Bureau were created in that department.

"Our survey shows that the women of the country bitterly resent the slashing of appropriations under Republican control for the work of the Women's Bureau and the Children's Bureau. Funds for their activities have been cut to the bone, to the serious detriment of the service they are intended to perform. The women voters make it perfectly clear that they have no idea of forgiving this offense or permitting it to go unpunished.

"Our reports also show that women demand relief from the terrible burdens of the Fordney-McCumber tariff. They are the purchasing agents for the 25,000,000 families of the United States. The retail values of the commodities they buy be $40,000,000,000 annually—about $1,600 per family—and the Republican tariff has increased each family's expense about $125 a year.

"Complaint against the Republicans on this score is universal and vigorous to the point of bitterness. In some sections one grievance is emphasized more than another, but the women everywhere resent the profiteers' tariff, and declare in unmistakable terms that they will get rid of it.

"Another question on which our survey shows the women of every section to be indignant and determined to see complete reform is corruption in government. Nothing has ever shocked them like the dishonesty, graft and looting in places where integrity and idealism were thought to be watchwords. Teapot Dome and Daugherty, with their collateral crimes and crookedness, have outraged the sensibilities of women and are two more reasons for women's support of John W. Davis.

"In a nutshell, we find women are for Davis because they know the reactionary leadership in control of the Republican Party does not want to and will not enact progressive, liberal measures; because La Follette and the third party cannot and because the Democratic Party under Davis's leadership has both the will and the way to accomplish reform."

WHEELER ON WADSWORTH.

Candidate Hints Senator Wanted No Oil Investigation.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Speeches over the radio and at a night rally in Buffalo and two brief open-air talks at Dunkirk in the afternoon wound up today the New York State stump campaign of Senator Wheeler of Montana, Vice Presidential candidate on the third party ticket. In his night speech at Buffalo, which followed closely models of previous declarations he has made in criticising President Coolidge and John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential nominees, the candidate jabbed once or twice at Senator Wadsworth, Republican, of New York.

"If all the members of the Senate had voted like Senator Wadsworth did," he declared, "you never would have heard even of Teapot Dome, and much less would you have gotten any part of your Government at Washington cleaned up."

Senator Wheeler left Buffalo with his party late tonight for Harrisburg, Pa., where a day speaking engagement for tomorrow has been added to his itinerary. On Friday evening he will visit Altoona, and on the next day Philadelphia.

CALLS LA FOLLETTE WORLD WAR PATRIOT

Veteran Says He Was a 100 Per Cent. American and Fought the Profiteers.

BACKED FIGHTING MEASURES

But Opposed Saddling the Cost on the People—Mencken Attacks President Coolidge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—A defense of the war record of Senator La Follette was issued from La Follette-Wheeler headquarters today. The record of the Senator is pictured as 100 per cent. American and he is lauded as the public man who during the World War stood "as the foremost exponent of the rights of free speech, free assemblage and free press." Had the war policies of the Senator prevailed, it is contended, the gains of the "war profiteers" would have been reduced to 20 and 10 per cent. and at the same time there would have been produced sufficient revenue to have paid a large part of America's war expense.

The document was written by Colonel Warren Shaw Fisher, National Commander of the United American War Veterans, which is said to number about 60,000 veterans of the Civil, Spanish-American and World War. The Executive Committee of this society adopted in Chicago last week a resolution endorsing Senator La Follette and Wheeler, and today Colonel Fisher came to Washington officially to inform Senator La Follette of that action.

Colonel Fisher prefaced his defense of Senator La Follette with the assertion that in this campaign the contest is between the forces of plutocracy as represented by the Wall Street candidates of the Republican and Democratic Parties, and the leaders of real Americanism as represented by La Follette and Wheeler."

Called Efficient in War.

"Senator La Follette," said Colonel Fisher, "has been attacked by the patrioteers because he dared to speak his mind frankly on the issues before the people during the war. Yet any who have studied the record know of his fearless and untiring efforts to see that our part in the war, once we were in it, was conducted efficiently and effectively. His advocacy of raising war revenues by a tax on war profits instead of saddling on the common people billions in bonds brought upon him the libelous attacks of the great interests that are still fighting him today. Yet he foretold exactly what has happened in inflated values, increased prices and the consequent deflation which have so upset agricultural and labor conditions. Had his policy prevailed, it would have produced, after allowing a profit of from 10 to 20 per cent. on war contracts, enough revenue to have paid a large part of the expenses of America's share in the war. Instead, the fiscal policy pursued produced 15,000 millionaires and a burden of war debt which we and our children must stagger under for years to come, not to mention the pain and poverty which have resulted from inflated prices and increased cost of living."

Colonel Fisher charges that during the war Senator La Follette was misrepresented and his speeches misquoted, yet in every instance he asserts the attacks against the Senator proved to be unfounded. The attitude of the Senator toward the soldiers at the front, he said, was disclosed in a speech Senator La Follette delivered in the Senate on Oct. 6, 1917, in the course of which he declared that there could be no real difference of opinion "concerning the duty of the citizen to discharge to the last limit whatever obligation the war lays on him."

Favored Fighting Measures.

"From April 7, 1917, when war was declared in Germany," Colonel Fisher continued, "to Jan. 12, 1918, sixty different war measures were passed by Congress. La Follette supported and voted for fifty-five of these. He voted for the various appropriation bills to provide the best equipment and supplies for our soldiers. He helped perfect the bill for soldiers' insurance and voted for it. He voted for every measure to provide adequate appropriations for building ships. He opposed the draft provision of the Aviation bill, as he had opposed the draft in favor of the volunteer system of providing an army, but he made it clear that he endorsed the $600,000 appropriation for aviation. He opposed the Espionage bill as a direct assault on the rights guaranteed by the Constitution. He opposed the War Tax bill, which saddled the burden of the war on the people and let the war profiteers roll up untold wealth. He voted for the Food Control bill when it passed the Senate, but later voted against it when radical changes injurious to the farmer were included in it. This is La Follette's war record; it is one which appeals to fighting men, because it is a record of courage."

Mencken Attacks Coolidge.

Colonel Fisher's defense of Senator La Follette concluded with the assertion that the fight which Senator La Follette has made in the past two years "against the enemy within our gates, shows him the greatest defender of American liberties in the Government today."

Another statement issued from the Progressive headquarters today was by Henry L. Mencken, editor of The American Mercury, in which Mr. Mencken said that the August issue of Mercury, in which appeared an article on President Coolidge, was completely sold out in a few days.

"The response to Frank R. Kent's article," said Mr. Mencken, "was startling and overwhelming. The magazine was swamped with requests for copies and the whole issue was sold out in a few days. What all this indicates must be plain enough. Throughout the country there is a rising tide of discontent with the ancient political buncombe. All persons of even the slightest intelligence revolt against the attempt to inflate Mr. Coolidge to the proportions of a first-rate man. He is actually a puerile and hollow fellow and the current blather of his partisans, most of whom hope to profit personally by his election, can not conceal the fact. I believe that his nonsensical speeches, and the childish billingsgate of his running mate, Mr. Dawes, are making hundreds of thousands of votes for Senator La Follette."

SOUTHERNERS AID COOLIDGE

New Organization Formed to Offset La Follette Movement.

A new national organization, which adopted the name "Southerners for Coolidge," was formed yesterday at a luncheon at the Woman's University Club, 106 East Fifty-second Street. It will have headquarters at 393 Fifth Avenue in a few days.

M. Preston Evans was chosen President, Mrs. Robert Wylie Lyale, Vice President, and Mabel Tallaferro, Secretary. The members, it was announced, are all from the South and all former Democrats, but intend to vote and work for President Coolidge.

Mr. Evans said that it was the patriotic duty of Democrats to stop the La Follette movement, and that the only man who could do that was President Coolidge. Mrs. Lyale took the same position, saying:

"I stand for keeping the Constitution and the Supreme Court inviolate. True Southerners are Americans before they are partisans. I know I will meet with rebuke for going over to Coolidge and Dawes, but I know what La Follette stands for. I am going to stand by my colors and the Southern traditions."

French Army Tries Inventions to Obviate Forced Landings and to Make Flying Safe.

CALLED PERFECT IN THEORY

One Provides Power When Engine Stops and the Other Converts the Fuselage Into a Parachute.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The French Military Aviation Service is carrying out a series of experiments on two new inventions by Captain Lepinte of the Technical Section, which, it is stated, may go a long way toward solving the problem of complete security of flying. They obviate the dangers of forced landings, through which the majority of fatal accidents in flying occur.

Theoretically, Captain Lepinte has solved the problem entirely, and according to the opinion of the best experts the theories can receive practical applications. The inventions are being kept strictly secret so that it is impossible at present to obtain a detailed description. Nevertheless, it is known that both ideas are extremely simple and they are described as follows by an expert:

When an airplane is forced to land because the motor gives out or fails into an airhole, it is under present conditions forced to come down, regardless of the nature of the ground, even when the pilot is fully aware that a smash cannot be avoided. Captain Lepinte's first appliance enables the pilot in such cases to right the plane again and to pass over the obstacle, even if it is necessary to start flying again without landing at all.

The principles are simple: On each side of the fuselage are two fuses, which can develop a certain amount of gas under extremely high pressure—between 1,000 and 2,000 kilograms per square centimeter. The gas, which is under the control of the pilot by its reaction, propels the airplane ahead in case of loss of speed, or in the case of a vertical descent, by a series of successive explosions downward, acts like a spring and renders the fall harmless to the machine and its occupants.

The Captain's second appliance is also simple, and acts when a machine flying at any height for any reason gets out of the pilot's control and falls. The invention in this case consists of the use of the fuselage itself, which, so soon as the downward rush commences, opens up automatically and acts like a parachute. In the centre of the fuselage there is a rigid axle. The fuselage itself is constructed in longitudinal sections. These sections are joined at the far end of the axle like the stays of an umbrella. Covering this, the parachute lies in between the axle and the longitudinal sections.

When the plane is in distress the pilot pulls the lever acting on the mechanism, which detaches the wings and the motor from the fuselage, and the longitudinal sections of the fuselage open and become a vast parachute. The pilot's and passengers' seats are attached to the central rigid axle. The plane descends very slowly, only two or three meters per second, allowing the pilot and passengers to land unharmed.

The Army Technical Service places great hopes in these inventions, with which experiments have already been going on for several months.

PRINCE AT FOX HUNT TAKES ALL BARRIERS

daughter of John T. Pratt. None was hurt.

The hundred hounds made most of the northwest end of Long Island reverberate with their baying and yelping, but they had bad luck in running down the baby foxes. The cubs were disinclined to run to the music of the hounds. Instead of lighting out across country and giving the dogs, horses and riders a good time, the sagacious cubs took to the ground like woodchucks.

The hunters were not in the long red coats which old prints in English chop houses would lead New Yorkers to believe to be indispensable to all such occasions. The Prince wore brown riding breeches, brown boots and a sweater with a black English riding "bowler." The sixty other riders wore brown, grey, khaki and other colors. The full dignity of the ancient institution of foxhunting was maintained only by Harry I. Nicholas, master of the hounds, and Nick Devine, the whip, who appeared in the time-honored vestments of their offices.

Shortly after 6 o'clock Whip Devine wound his horn, the leashes were snapped and the canine dam broke. The hound flood burst towards East Norwich, scoured the Jericho turnpike and swirled into eddies in the thick underbrush of the Seaff estate. Two farmers took to their heels and rushed out of a landscape which sweated dogs at every pore. Fading green fields were suddenly snowed in and freckled over as the big acreage of white hounds with brown patches hurried onward.

The leader tossed back his ears, pointed his muzzle to the sky and loosed a mournful and musical howl. The dirge was taken up with the hundred-piece orchestra and the countryside for miles bayed and re-bayed with the sad news that the scent of a fox had been detected.

The dog torrent boiled into the Willocks and Dow estates in a chorus of long-drawn-out and heartbroken sobs. A double post and rail jump here provided the most hazardous obstacle of the morning's run.

The Ghost rose to the first rail easily, faltered a second at the next, and then at a touch of the royal spur completed the jump neatly.

Though the three hours from 6:30 till 9:30 was spent in rousing gallops, it was not the favorite hunting of the consistent follower of the hounds. There were no long clear runs across open country, such as will come next month. Too many cubs were started, and the little animals, hearing for the first time the baying of their traditional enemies, instantly made for the coverts.

The meet brought out one of the largest galleries of any of the cubbing meets this season.

When the hunting party returned it was found to have brought back no trophy. The cubs are chased for sport and not killed. The Prince remarked that the course over which he had ridden was rougher than those to which he was accustomed in England. He took all the jumps, however, and one which the other members of the hunting party were forced to go around.

Later the Prince played six chukkers of polo at Phipps Field, but tired and quit. The other players referred laughingly to his lack of sleep. The polo game continued after Captain the Right Hon. Frederick Guest had taken the place of the Prince.

The Prince asked his equerry, Major Metcalfe, what plans had been made for the afternoon, and when his equerry replied that nothing was planned the Prince expressed his satisfaction, saying that he would get some sleep.

GEROY SENT MANY LETTERS.

Threatener of Prince Wrote Also to King, Kaiser and Presidents.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Marcus J. Geroy, arrested at Williamstown, N. Y., for sending a letter to the Prince of Wales, was a resident of this section for several years and spent considerable time in the local Post Office writing to the King of England, the Kaiser before the war, the Mayor of New York, President Wilson, President Harding, and other prominent persons.

He seemed to have an idea some one was persecuting him and he was asking these people to aid him. He left here to go to this war, but returned and worked on a farm where he was considered harmless.

HELD FOR BEATING GIRL IN TAXICAB

YOUNG WOMAN IN HOSPITAL

Arrested in the act of attacking a young woman in a taxicab at Ninth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street last night, a man who gave his name as William Powers of 506 West Forty-fourth Street, an employe of the Consolidated Gas Company, was locked up in the West Forty-seventh Street Station, charged with assault.

The young woman, in an unconscious condition, was taken to the West Thirtieth Street Station. She was identified as Ruth Seymour, an actress, address unknown, by means of a bank book found in her handbag.

The prisoner told Lieutenant McGowan that he had met the young woman at Broadway and Forty-second Street, but he refused to state who she was or give any details which might lead to her identification. He threatened every policeman at the station because of his arrest.

"My 'old man' is the big political boss of this neighborhood," he is alleged to have said, "and I'll see to it that every one of you get the gate. It's an outrage when a man can't attend to his private affairs without interference from the police."

Screams of the young woman attracted Patrolman Kolb, who was a block away. He said he saw her struggling inside the cab and the man attempting to stifle her cries with one hand while he rained blows in her face with the other. Kolb leaped to the running board of the machine and ordered Israel Goldstein, a chauffeur for the Checker Taxicab Company to draw up to the curb.

Throwing open the door of the cab, Kolb said he seized the man and broke his grip on the girl's throat. Kolb said Powers attacked him but was subdued after a brief struggle.

The girl had fallen unconscious to the floor of the machine and the patrolman ordered the chauffeur to drive to the police station. The girl's clothing had been torn to shreds. Officers at the police station attempted to revive her, but their efforts failed and Lieutenant McGowan telephoned Bellevue Hospital for an ambulance. Dr. Kaplan, who responded, looked at the girl and walked away without attending her in any way, according to the police.

Dr. Kaplan told the police he would not take the girl to the hospital, "because she is suffering from alcoholism, and the hospitals do not take such cases."

When the girl's condition grew worse Lieutenant McGowan sent in another call to Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Kaplan responded again, and for a second time refused, it was said, either to administer medical aid, or remove her to the hospital.

Fearing she would die, policemen placed the girl on a stretcher and took her to the West Thirtieth Street Station in a patrol wagon. Lieutenant O'Connor refused to let the girl be placed in a cell and sent in a call to New York Hospital. Dr. Thompson, who responded, said the girl was in a serious condition from alcohol poisoning and hurried her at once to Bellevue, where she was accepted as a patient. She was placed in the prison ward, a technical charge of intoxication having been entered against her by the police.

A search of the girl's handbag revealed a $10 bill, $1.02 in change, and a bank book showing that in 1921 Ruth Seymour deposited $2,080, with a balance to date of $588. In her clothing a $5 bill was also found.

She is about 23 years old and unusually pretty, 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs about 110 pounds and has light blonde, bobbed hair.

VIENNA SWINDLERS POSE AS AMERICANS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Sept. 11.—The number of foreigners purporting to be Americans, and thus gaining the confidence of bankers, merchants and jewelers of Vienna, is increasing to such an extent that even well-known American citizens arriving here can no longer cash checks of credit until certified.

Today two so-called Americans speaking German with a feigned American accent were reported to have carried on a swindling game on a fairly large scale, using the names of an American known at Viennese banks.

One of these imposters showed a visiting card, representing himself as a director of the Continental Import and Export Company. He was accompanied by a second "American" who desired to purchase exceptionally large diamonds, paying for them with uncovered checks and even pocketing the jewelry in the stores.

The almost childish reverence for everything coming from the United States, even including dubious checks, is a remnant of the days of the collapse of the crown, when the only sure thing in Austria was a dollar bill.

REPORTS ON CURTIS ESTATE

Executor Received $1,377,567 and Paid Out $1,312,571, He Says.

An accounting of the estate of Benjamin De F. Curtis, Vice President of the Dry Dock Savings Institution, filed yesterday, estimates that $1,377,567 had been received by the executor, Charles P. Schultz, and that $1,312,571 had been paid to beneficiaries under the will and for administration expenses. Mr. Schultz has $64,571 remaining, he says, which is subject to charges for commission and any expense yet to be determined.

Mr. Curtis left to the Sarah Whitman Trumbull Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution a cash legacy of $5,500 and several valuable documents, among which was one signed by Jonathan Trumbull calling out troops for the Revolutionary War, a framed check drawn by J. Wilkes Booth, a letter from Henry Clay, dated March 1, 1832; a letter from Abraham Lincoln to James Gough, dated May 15, 1864, and a play bill of Ford's Theatre in Washington of April 14, 1865, announcing that President Lincoln would attend the performance that evening. The bulk of the estate went to relatives.

Specht Orchestra for Cunarder.

Arrangements have been made by the Cunard Line with Paul Specht, orchestra leader, to place an orchestra on one of its largest ships, H. B. Bohrer, Assistant General Passenger Agent in New York, announced yesterday. Mr. Bohrer said the ship had not yet been designated and that whether Specht orchestras would be placed on all of the Cunard steamships would depend upon the result of the "experiment."

It is stated that Sir Herbert wishes to devote himself to literary work after his resignation from office.

irresistible in style and charm and extraordinarily varied in type.

Here are Dresses for every occasion of the young girl's hours, from school period to festivity; Dresses that, when sturdy of fabric, are made smarter by trimmings of red leather, gold galloons, wool embroidery and buttons; Dresses that, when dainty in color, are made more alluring by hand-made roses in deeper tone, by medallions of hand-painted flowers and birds, by tuckings, fringes and decorative stitches.

Here are Coats in strikingly plaided woolens, of suede-finished cloths, of tapestry-like fabrics, and very often of rough and smooth weaves in combination; Coats graceful in line, unique in trimming, unusual in coloring, and, in a word, most individual.

Success Lies Less

in the possession of some special gift than it lies in the human power to put to use the more or less common gifts of which almost every one has absolute ownership. It is a common custom to look around outside of ourselves for somebody to do things, instead of looking at ourselves for the best one able to do the job.

The doing of the actual work before and behind us is the backbone of success. When we were little we were each christened with a name, but there is within us a man as yet without a name. This nameless man has never been tried out. He may be an Edison, a Ford, a Sargent, an Alexander Graham Bell, or a Joseph H. Choate.

Let us stop shilly-shallying and call out the inner reserves and earn at least simple interest on the sums somebody paid for us to give us an education, to do something more than occasional dreaming.

A New Cargo of Even Better English Blankets

Paris Has Ingenious Ideas For Delightfully Decorating The Home

Our emissary spent several months in Paris this Summer visiting the fascinating little shops where French needle-women, with their inimitable genius, create all manner of exquisite things for the home of the Parisienne. She has but recently returned to America, bringing with her a marvelous collection of and many other delightful things that could have been created nowhere but in Paris.

Women who are now planning the new decorations for their homes will surely find much pleasure in seeing this collection, not only because of its size—it is the largest and by far the most attractive collection we have ever selected in Paris—but because of the wealth of new ideas it introduces.

You May Make Them Yourself—Instructions Given Free

Ideally located in a quiet corner of the Art Needlework Store is our spacious classroom, where women with a knack for sewing may, with the aid of our expert teacher and designer, reproduce any of these lovely things from Paris at a very moderate cost. Perhaps you prefer exclusive things—in that case she will be glad to design original things for you. averaging 91 per cent. wool—none less than 83 per cent.

Size about 60x90 in.—weight 4½ to 5 lbs.

Last May we announced "America's Greatest Blanket Sale," which was unprecedented in the quantity sold, the high quality at the price, the number of states to which the blankets went—and the great number of reorders. It was a record sale.

We have jealously guarded the quality of the blankets offered, and since that time, as fresh shipments arrived, we have chosen the very cream of them, testing them carefully. Now a great new shipment has come in, the blankets averaging even higher than before in wool content.

Gray—in light, medium, and dark Brown (not khaki)—in two shades

The two browns are especially notable. One is like a tan covert, the other a sort of brown-gray, in shaggy finish. Be sure, when ordering by mail or 'phone, that you specify the shade you want—say definitely "Light gray," "Tan covert," etc.

Their Uses Are Numerous

Every blanket is fresh and clean and new, ready for you to use at once. For throws on beds or davenports. For spare blankets. For the boy or girl to take away to school or college. For the automobile. For the baby to play on in warmth and comfort. And they are long-wearing, with their firmly whipped edges.

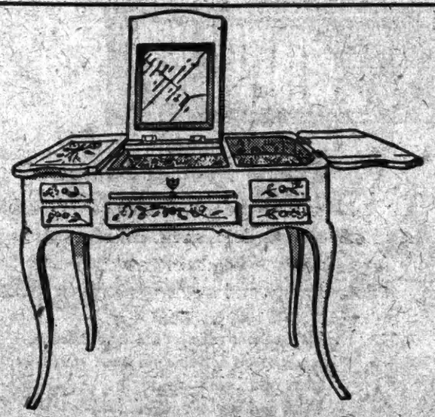
AU QUATRIEME



A Group of 18th Century French Rustic Commodes

Au Quatrieme's recent shipment of 18th Century meubles regionaux brought with it an extremely interesting group of rustic commodes, of walnut, oak, cherrywood and mahogany. Some of them, massive and robustly built—but with, nevertheless, a very graceful feeling in curves and paneling—are especially desirable for the country-house bedroom. A number, in their refinement and elegance of line and beauty of their bronzes, are really comparable to the work of the fine ebenistes of Paris. The merging of the Louis XV. and Louis XVI. styles in several examples is especially characteristic of the cabinet work of the provinces. There are several small commodes in the collection, among them one engaging example of the little religieuse or nun-commode.

The Louis XV. commode illustrated, with its robust pieds de biche, its charming shell carving and fine bronzes, is unique among these commodes, as an example of the style, in the amusing symmetry of both paneling and bronzes. The effect as a whole is nevertheless entirely one of harmony and balance. Of walnut wood. $250.

The bronzes of another very interesting Louis XV. walnut commode are delightfully ornamented with those tiny feminine heads, after Cressent and Watteau, known as espagnolettes. Two large and two small drawers. $225.

CHINESE TO BATTLE FOR TAI LAKE AREA

FIGHT MAY BE DECISIVE

Japanese Discuss Rumor of Intervention by America—Washington Denies It.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—Indications that a major engagement in China's civil war is impending west of Tai Lake, nearly 100 miles to the west of here, were supported by the receipt of advices early today that numbers of wounded were arriving in Kashing, about sixty miles to the southwest, on the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway.

The wounded, it was stated, are being taken into Kashing both from Huchow, just south of Tai Lake, and from Kiesping, further to the northwest, a short distance from the provincial border. Both towns are in Chekiang Province.

Intermittent rainstorms in the low country around Shanghai in the past two days have checked activities on the "eastern" fronts and focused attention on the Tai Lake front, where the Chekiang troops are trying to break through around the lake and cut off the Kiangsu source of supplies.

The desperate attempt of the Kiangsu General to check the advance of Chekiang troops under Thing, therefore, took the bulk of interest in China's civil war away from the near-by battlefields today, where there was no fighting.

However, observers who returned tonight from Hwangtu, about fifteen miles west in the railway sector, told of a sizable attack last night by the Kiangsu forces, which the Chekiang soldiers, who are defending Shanghai, repulsed.

The Chekiang army started a counter-attack in the Hwangtu sector tonight, the observers said, trying once more to effect the capture of Anting, five miles further west.

American Naval Force Increased.

Five additional American torpedo boat destroyers arrived here tonight.

Orders were issued today for the distribution of destroyers to the Yangtze River for protection of foreigners.

The Borie and the William B. Preston were ordered to Hankow, nearly 600 miles up the river. The Sicard and the John D. Ford are to go to Nanking, 200 miles away, the capital of Kiangsu Province and headquarters of General Chi Aaish-yuan, leader of the forces attacking Shanghai. The Paul Jones will stop at Chinkiang, 150 miles up the river.

Rumors of the outbreak of a serious epidemic tonight inspired a new proclamation from the Council, which declared in part that "contrary to various alarming rumors, there is nothing in the existing situation to cause apprehension or alarm so far as the foreign settlement is concerned."

American Commands Public Works.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 11.—To Commander S. C. Loomis of the United States naval landing force here has been awarded an important duty in protecting Shanghai with its population of 2,000,000, 20,000 of whom are foreigners, including 4,000 Americans. Commander Loomis comes from Aurora, Ill., and is 35 years old.

He has been given control of the light plant, water works and five stations, and in addition a considerable sector of the water front in a district most likely to be affected if trouble comes, since it is nearest to the forts at Woosung, which are likely to be attacked at any time.

There are now 300 American marines ashore, and a reserve of 200 more are in readiness in case they are needed.

Sun Stays South for Lack of Funds.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HONGKONG, Sept. 11.—Sun Yat-sen continues to criticise the European powers for their alleged plan to partition China, describing the intervention rumors as designed to effect a prearranged scheme.

References to Wu Pei-fu as the latest alleged agent of foreign imperialism are supposed to indicate Sun's wish to promote his northern expedition, which he has not yet undertaken owing to inadequate funds and the reluctance of his troops to leave Canton unless they are well paid. His attempt to obtain $500,000 from the Canton native merchants, using the seized arms of the merchants' volunteers as a lever, has failed thus far.

Public Opposes Intervention.

TOKIO, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—Japan has no intention of intervening in the domestic difficulties of China, Baron Kijuro Shidehara, the Foreign Minister, told The Associated Press this morning when asked to outline the Government's policy.

Official statements of Japan's policy of neutrality and non-intervention do not allay Japan's anxiety regarding reported interchanges between Washington and London in respect to China, in which press dispatches, particularly those from London, indicate that positive measures are being discussed.

Japanese newspaper dispatches from China hint that General Wu Pei-fu is receiving American sympathy, if not support, but officials say this is not believable.

No Thought of Intervention Here.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—Any anxiety in Tokio that the Washington Government is feeling its way toward some agreement among the powers interested in China for the protection of their nationals in that country, during the new civil war disturbances, apparently is wholly without foundation.

The Government here has made no move to canvass opinion in foreign capitals in relation to the present situation in China.

So far as the Government knows, there is no project in contemplation among the powers for changing the existing situation in China.

American diplomacy has continuously sought to strengthen the prestige of the central Chinese Government. For this reason it can be said that the Government's policy toward China does not contemplate any form of intervention at any time, except of the most friendly character.

SEES PLOT TO CRUSH CHINA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—If Humanité is to be believed, Sun Yat-sen is acting in perfect harmony with Moscow, saying that as the "champion of the independence of the Chinese workers he has the fullest sympathies of all Russian workers."

In other words, if successful in his designs, Sun Yat-sen will establish a Communist State in China on the lines of the Soviet organization in Russia.

The French organ of communism today prints a long article supporting the Chinese revolutionary program which, according to Humanité, "is beginning to make the bourgeoisie tremble far beyond the walls of Peking."

Humanité then adds that "American, English, French and Japanese capitalists are planning the dismemberment of China for their imperialist expansion."

MacDonald, Herriot and Hughes are charged with "spreading terror among the Chinese population and placing all possible obstacles in the way of the Russo-Chinese agreement." It adds:

"In one word, the imperialists of Europe and America, no longer content to remain masters of China, now wish to force China to accept dismembering and to enslave and colonize the Chinese proletariat."

Therefore, it concludes, Russia should aid Sun Yat-sen.

ZR-3 FLIES 8 HOURS IN ITS THIRD TEST

Zeppelin Manoeuvres Over Switzerland With Inventor's Daughter and Her Children Aboard.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—The dirigible ZR-3, soon to become the property of the United States Navy, made its third trial flight today, and the largest crowd ever assembled to greet a dirigible welcomed the ship's return this evening after eight hours in the air. The ZR-3 passed over Schaffhausen, Basle, St. Gall, Lucerne and Zurich, the most interesting passengers being the grandchildren of the late Count Zeppelin. Seventy persons were aboard, many of them technicians recording the various tests the ship underwent. These were satisfactory, according to Dr. Hugo Eckener, in command of the dirigible.

Dr. Eckener thought that probably the duration flight may be made Saturday or Sunday, and that the ship might start for America about Sept. 20.

Countess Hella von Brandenstein-Zeppelin, daughter of Count Zeppelin and mother of the three children aboard, said of the flight: "The trip was somewhat tiresome to me, but a great delight to the children, who were up for the first time. They were tremendously interested in the sights below, particularly Ferdinand, who is 9 and hopes some day to fly a plane of his own. The two girls are both interested in art and talked much of the color effects."

The highest altitude reached by the dirigible was 3,600 feet, over Lake Constance, where nearly half the flying time was spent manoeuvring, much to the disappointment of the passengers, who had hopes of flying over the Alps.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—A further delay of two days in the tentative date for the departure from Germany of the Zeppelin ZR-3 for Lakehurst has been made necessary, the Navy Department was notified today, as a result of unfavorable weather conditions which have delayed trial flights. The date now is set at Sept. 22.

The program includes a trial flight of six to eight hours, designed "primarily to collect necessary data"; a duration flight of thirty-six hours, ending probably Sept. 16; installation of final equipment, requiring probably three days, and then a short flight to check up all the work.

Orders already have been issued at the Department sending the three station ships to their posts on or about Sept. 15.

Do you speak of
or just "diamonds"?

IF you know whether Jager diamonds are finer than Cape diamonds, Wesseltons finer than Premiers, if you can distinguish blue-white from yellow or light brown, if you judge the value of a diamond by its proportion of width to depth—if, in other words, you are a true connoisseur of diamonds, you do not need our help in your choice of these fine jewels.

But if you are not a connoisseur, you will want to be guided in your selection of diamond jewelry by men who have mastered these matters of color, proportion and value. You will feel secure only in a store whose men not only know all there is to know about the diamonds you choose, but who will tell you everything frankly while you choose.

Those people who are not connoisseurs come to see us for honest guidance in their selection of fine diamonds.

And those people who are connoisseurs come to us for the fineness of the jewels themselves.

WOULD USE FLEET TO ENFORCE PEACE

By JOHN DORRIN.

it, but did not mention the difficulties raised by Sir Cecil, much less suggest means of overcoming them.

The fact remains that the MacDonald-Herriot statement has breathed new life into the Assembly and new courage and hope. Comment among distinguished American and European observers here is unanimous to this effect. It is not too much to say that in one respect there has been a decisive breach with the past. At the time of the Corfu incident the League Council made the disturbing discovery it had no clear knowledge of the Covenant. Until faced by a crisis it was content to develop its activities for good without considering curiously the limitations of its powers or their extent. That threat of total shipwreck giving birth as it did to the ingenious "American" plan has put it in a mood to "search the Scriptures."

The debates of the legal committee and the Committee on Armaments continue on alternate days. As yet only they are general discussions outlining the ideas of the members or expressing the mood of the several delegations most directly interested. There will follow a period of intensive technical study and then various questions thus roughhewn will be presented to a plenary session for final discussion and vote.

Step Toward Alliance Seen.

GENEVA, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—Great Britain dramatically dropped a naval bomb into the Geneva conference today, and the new Anglo-French entente was appraised by many as approaching the character of an out and out Anglo-French alliance. When Sir Cecil Hurst, eminent jurist and British delegate, declared Great Britain's readiness to accept compulsory arbitration, provided she would not be brought into court because of some act of her navy performed in attempting to maintain or restore peace.

This declaration has set Geneva agog more than anything since Premiers MacDonald and Herriot committed themselves in principle to the settlement of any and all disputes by obligatory arbitration by some world tribunal or tribunals.

The English reservation was interpreted as meaning that once the British navy begins to operate, her right of search and capture, which formed the subject of controversy between the United States and England before the United States entered the great war, cannot be questioned juridically.

The British statement is being given special attention because of the announced intention of the American Government to adhere to the World Court of Justice, whose compulsory arbitration clause is under consideration.

The effect of the announcement is that if the British reservation is accepted by the other powers, continental countries, led by France, will not only get economic help from England as part of the proposed pact of security or sanctions, but also the full and immense support of the British fleet in case any country in defiance of an arbitral decision opens hostilities and attacks another State.

Sir Cecil declared that the British reservation suggestion was not a Machiavellian subterfuge. In times past there had existed an idea that Great Britain was the tyrant of the seas. Yet, he said, the British delegation was only seeking to discover some method whereby the great cause of organized peace and security could be advanced on terms assuring general progress.

French Would Free British Hands.

France, through its delegation here, has rallied to the support of the British reservation concerning compulsory arbitration. This is that no incident arising out of British naval action after the League has invited England to take sanctions against an aggressor State shall be submitted to any arbitration tribunal.

M. Loucheur made it clear that France accepts the application of British law on the seas that no prize cases shall be subject to arbitration, even if the other party demands it.

Speaking for France, M. Loucheur declared that Sir Cecil Hurst had made some well-founded remarks, especially when he pointed out that in case of war the British fleet might be called upon to watch over security and carry out any measures devised by the League. He hoped that in any future conflicts neutrals would be less numerous.

With regard to the conception that Great Britain was the tyrant of the seas, everybody had observed that from 1914 to 1918 Great Britain was a good tyrant. He would be only too glad if the World Court statutes could be made to apply both to peace-time conflicts and conflicts of war, and if they could be made to apply to all conflicts of a juridical nature considerable progress would be achieved.

"France's standpoint," he declared, "is that she favors either arbitration or submission to the Council."

Belgium, which, like France, is especially anxious to have definite security against future aggression or invasion, came out strongly in favor of general acceptance of the reservation which Great Britain makes as a condition of her adherence to the World Court compulsory arbitration clause.

Today's developments greatly cleared the atmosphere and have increased the hope of the Continental countries that some scheme of sanctions can be worked out with the active support of Great Britain, against any State which in the future refuses to submit to arbitration.

All idea of holding a special conference to extend the principles of the Washington Naval Treaty to non-signatory States has been dropped. The disarmament subcommission today decided that in view of the likelihood of a general disarmament conference such a naval conference would be unnecessary.

League officials attach special importance to the Swedish proposal concerning systematic codification of international law, which Sweden, like Holland, wants carried out by means of conventions adopted at conferences arranged by the League. A subcommittee of the Assembly discussed the proposal at length yesterday and will draw up a report which is expected to be favorable.

"This system of codifying international law is law in action instead of in the books," declared one League jurist in commenting on the Swedish project. The League attaches so much significance to the plan that it has issued a pamphlet giving a list of the conventions already ratified in consequence of the League's initiative.

Anti-Drug Propaganda Planned.

A world propaganda scheme to acquaint the masses with the unfortunate consequences of the use of dangerous drugs will be carried out through the League of Nations if, as it is expected, plans adopted by the Committee on Sociological Questions of the Assembly of the League eventually are adopted.

This step will be taken in connection with the holding in Geneva in November of an International Opium Conference, and it indicates that the League will throw its entire influence into the task of combating the narcotic drug evil.

LEAGUE HELP FOR GEORGIA.

Powers Agree to Support Move for Independence.

GENEVA, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—The League of Nations took a step on behalf of the independence of the Republic of Georgia today when France, Great Britain and Belgium introduced a resolution asking the Council of the League to watch events in Georgia and to take advantage of the first opportunity to help her by pacific means and in accordance with international law.

The resolution is regarded in Geneva as a carefully worded announcement on the part of the great powers of their purpose to make good the promise they gave Georgia several years ago that they would recognize her independence.

Paul Boncour of France explained that the resolution was the outcome of an agreement between Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Herriot of France, who had heard Georgia's appeal for assistance and who thought the League would be neglecting its duty unless it did something to restore peace in a region where blood was now flowing. The resolution was referred to the Agenda Committee.

MRS. TINNEY SUES FOR A SEPARATION

Comedian's Wife to Ask $750 a Week Alimony and $5,000 for Counsel.

DESERTION CHARGE DENIED

Actor's Lawyer Asserts That Wife Has Deed to Home and Husband's $100,000 Savings.

The serving of papers yesterday in an action by Mrs. Edna Davenport Tinney against Frank Tinney for a separation, revealed that the comedian's wife would ask $750 weekly alimony and counsel fees of $5,000.

The papers were served by Mrs. Tinney's lawyer, Harry H. Osbrin of 1,476 Broadway, Manhattan, upon George A. Hopkins of 233 Broadway, Manhattan, counsel for Tinney. The name of Imogene Wilson, which was frequently coupled with that of the comedian, does not appear in the papers.

Counsel for the plaintiff sets forth in stereotyped legal phraseology that the couple were married on Aug. 19, 1913, at Hempstead, L. I., and that there is one issue to the marriage, Frank Jr., aged eight and a half years.

The plaintiff alleges that she has always been a faithful wife, but the defendant disregarded his duties and deserted her on Aug. 4, 1924, on which day he told her without any cause whatever that it was his intention not to have anything to do with her," the affidavit continues. It also alleges that the defendant "refused to support her."

"Wherefore," the affidavit concludes, "she as a for judgment of separation and ample provision for her support out of the property of the defendant."

Tinney's counsel will file an answer in a few days.

"My answer to the allegations of counsel for the plaintiff will be a general denial," said Mr. Hopkins. "It is ridiculous for the other side to claim that Tinney abandoned his wife. Instead of him abandoning her, Mrs. Tinney gave every assistance within her power to help him prepare for the trip abroad and making general preparations for his departure. Therefore, we emphatically deny any intention on the part of Tinney to abandon his wife.

"The demand that ample provision be made for Mrs. Tinney 'out of the property of the defendant' is ironical. She already has the deed to Foxhurst, the Tinneys' home at Baldwin, L. I., and she has possession of his savings of over $100,000, which he accumulated during the past fifteen years, in which period he never made less than $1,000 a week and frequently $1,500 a week while he was employed."

The case will probably be reached on the Fall calendar of the Special Term of the Supreme Court in Long Island City.

FRENCH COUNT SLAIN; WIDOW IS ARRESTED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The Countess Laroux de Kernanon was arrested tonight at Lannion, in the Department of Cotes du Nord, charged with the murder of her husband, the last male descendant of one of the oldest families in Brittany. It is thought that she killed her husband because he had determined to separate from her.

Laroux de Kernanon died in the hospital at Lannion last week, several days after he was found in the home of his stepson, unconscious from three bullet wounds. The widow, who notified the police, first declared it was an accident, and then said he had committed suicide. Under the circumstances the authorities accepted the widow's word and the unfortunate affair appeared to be ended.

Yesterday, however, the sweetheart of the Count went to the police and told them that the Count said on his deathbed that he had been shot by his wife. She maintained silence, she said, because the Count requested it, expecting to live. As he was dead, there was no reason to keep the secret any longer.

In view of her charge, three heirs of the Count lodged a complaint against an unknown person and an investigation was opened. This was followed by an exhumation and autopsy and the arrest of the Countess.

Count Roger Laroux de Kernanon, while in military service with the Spahis in Algeria, fell in love with a widow several years his senior named Louise Suzanne Theola Fleury, who was a cafe singer. Upon completion of his service, he took the woman with him to Brittany, where despite the bitter objections of the family he married her. It appears that their happiness was short-lived, but the Count kept up appearances and with his wife entered social circles on the Riviera and at the family chateau near Lannion.

SPANIARDS FALL BACK IN WAD LAU AREA

All Available Troops Being Concentrated Near Tetuan as Moors Advance.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Sept. 11.—According to news from official and other sources in regard to thesposition on the western part of the Spanish zone in Morocco, the withdrawal of Spanish garrisons is proceeding from positions in the vicinity of Wad Lau. Possibly Wad Lau itself may be abandoned, for the garrison there is reduced to a minimum.

All available troops are being concentrated near Tetuan and, although on the south side of the city, the defensive front is as close as Beni Saleh, under two miles from the town, to put it conveyy into this position a stiff fight was necessary.

Westward three columns in combined operations have cleared the road toward Sundak ain Yedida. It is hoped tomorrow the road to Tangier will be cleared.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Professor R. S. Conway of Manchester, an authority on Livy, writes to The London Times to express his conviction that Dr. Di Martino Fusco's announcement of his discovery of the last books of Livy is correct.

Accounts from various sources in Italy as to Dr Martino Fusco's integrity and competence as a palaeographist place them beyond doubt, says Professor Conway.

Suggestions of fraud and forgery, Professor Conway denounces as a disgrace to the national intelligence, saying: "How can any one who has so much as looked into a book of Livy suppose any person sitting down to compose in Latin at this date 107 books of the same bulky

"OXFORD HALL"

HERE'S a hat young men will like—a hat that's a-tingle with personality. It has a new feature in hat construction—a piped welt-edge brim that gives extra strength and service. The brim can be snapped down if you like it that way. It comes in English Pearl, Pecan, Graphite Smoke, Navy Dawn and Biscuit Buff—$6. When you pick up a Knapp-Felt hat, run your fingers over the felt; feel its smoothness, its "live" flexibility. It takes a lot of expert skill, extra time and considerable elbow-grease to get that kind of quality into a hat—but it doesn't cost you any more.

New Knapp-Felts

THE name of the hat pictured above is the "Wales". And we chose that name several months ago, long before the hedges of Syosset and Glen Cove became hiding places for camera men and society buds.

We called it "Wales" because we thought it the cleanest, smartest thoroughbred of a hat we'd ever seen. It's a small shape with a big personality—a rolling bound-edge English brim and a jaunty crown—with Knapp-Felt quality written all over it. The price is $8.

There are many other new hats in our ten hat shops, each one a distinct triumph in design and workmanship. All in all, we consider these hats incomparably the finest that ever bore the crest of Crofut & Knapp and the signature of Weber and Heilbroner. Knapp-Felt hats for Autumn are priced $6, $8 and $10. Leeds Hats are $5.

"SHOREHAVEN"

You won't be ashamed to tip this hat to the nicest girl you know. The height of the crown and the set of the brim give it dignity and refinement. It's a shape which our designers adapted from the most fashionable hat Londoners are wearing. We find that four out of every five men look well in the Shorehaven. In the new Autumn shades—Seal Beige, English Pearl, Biscuit Buff and Tiffin—$8. Many New Yorkers have learned that the wisest and thriftiest thing to do is to buy two hats at the start of the season. It adds variety to your wardrobe and saves money in the long run.

HYLAN DISCOVERS NEW SUBWAY FUNDS

NOW HELD TO MEET DEFICIT

Interests Affected Agree to Proposed Rise, but Action Is Balked by the Controller's Absence.

Mayor Hylan informed a group of representative railroad and shipping men yesterday that he had discovered a means whereby the city's credit could be extended almost immediately, so as to permit the expenditure of from $35,000,000 to $40,000,000 more than had been considered as available for subway construction or municipal bus routes.

This disclosure was made after the Mayor and City Chamberlain Philip Berolheimer, sole representatives of the Sinking Fund Commission, had waited in the City Hall in vain forty minutes on the chance that Controller Craig or some other member of that body might drop in and thus constitute a quorum.

The special meeting of the commission had been called by the Mayor for the consideration of the new increased wharfage and dock rates proposed by Dock Commissioner Michael Cosgrove, and the railroad and shipping men, as parties directly interested, had been invited to be present to express their views. There were about fifty of them in attendance.

Mayor Hylan's plan for getting the additional millions for subway building seemed, as he stated it, to be simplicity itself. All the city had to do, he declared, was to increase its wharfage rates, as it is now proposed to do, thus eliminating an annual deficit of about $1,000,000. Against this $1,000,000 deficit under the old rates there are bonds deposited in the sum of about $35,000,000 to guard the city against just such losses.

If this deficit should be wiped out, the Mayor said, through the additional revenues derived from the higher rental rates, the bonds issued against the deficit would be no longer required for that purpose. Then their equivalent could be converted to subway purposes or for municipal bus routes.

Stewart Browne Scores Craig.

Mayor Hylan and some of those in attendance joined in scoring Controller Craig for his non-attendance. Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, declared that "Craig ought to be removed from office for failing to attend so important a meeting." Mr. Browne, who himself has had many sharp tilts with the Mayor, suggested that the latter should apply to the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus to compel the attendance of the Controller.

Laughing at the suggestion, Mayor Hylan said: "No use. Craig would find some friendly judge to grant him an appeal."

Finally, on the suggestion of Mayor Hylan, five of the shipping men volunteered as a committee to call on Controller Craig and ask him to be present at the adjourned meeting next Monday. Those who consented to serve on the committee were Walter R. F. Pollock, marine director of the New York Central Railroad; F. L. Gerhardt, representing the Bush Terminal Company; A. C. Pouch of the American Dock Company; A. H. Grill, attorney for the New York Boat Owners' Association, and R. C. Narelle, an independent boat owner.

During the long wait for the Controller the proposed dock rates were informally discussed with Mayor Hylan by the shipping men who declared that the new rates were generally acceptable to them. Such exceptions as they take to some of the charges will be discussed at the hearing on Monday.

When Mr. Pollock declared that the railroads were heartily in accord with the new rates, Mayor Hylan said: "Many people think I am opposed to corporations. I am not when they show a fair spirit. I am opposed to those who seek special privileges and think that they are more powerful than the Municipal Government. I admire your attitude Mr. Pollock."

Explains his Winter Vacation.

Mayor Hylan took occasion while waiting for the Controller to state that the newspapers that criticised him for taking vacations had been "unfair." He outlined his many official duties and sai dthat in the seven years that he had been in office he had missed only a few meetings during February of each year when the business of the city "is well in hand."

Inquiry at Mr. Craig's office showed that the Controller was on his vacation. Deputy Controller Charles F. Kerrigan, in explaining his absence from the sinking fund meeting, said:

"That meeting was merely a gesture—a theatrical affair. When the last meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission was held prior to the Summer recess, the date fixed for the next regular meeting was Sept. 15. Controller Craig accordingly took his vacation at the present time, having been held here until recently by the troubles over the taking up of the $35,000,000 in city bonds by the sinking fund.

"The special meeting for today was called like the calling of one a year ago, at a time when it was known Controller Craig could not attend. Others of the commission who were absent were Acting Aldermanic President Collins and Frank Cunningham, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen. None of the five members of the commission except Mr. Berolsheimer responded to the Mayor's summons."

After yesterday's failure to obtain a quorum, the following telegram was sent to each member of the Sinking Fund at the direction of the Mayor.

"Sir:

"Owing to the absence of a quorum at the proposed meeting of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund today, the matters scheduled for consideration were laid over until Monday, Sept. 15, 1924, at 10 A. M.

"Your particular attention is called to Cal. No. 1, relating to the proposed establishment of wharfage and dock rates within the City of New York, which, if approved as recommended by the Commissioner of Docks, will provide annually an additional income of approximately $1,000,000 for the Dock Department, and form the basis of an application to the Appellate Division for the release from the debt limit of $35,000,000 or $40,000,000, which may be devoted to the construction of subways or other transportation facilities.

"The meeting on Monday, Sept. 15, 1924, will be called at 10 A. M. sharp.

"Respectfully,

"JAMES MATTHEWS, Secretary."

When the volunteer committee called at the Controller's office yesterday Deputy Controller Kerrigan informed them that Controller Craig was "not within reach."

State Also Benefits in Greater Efficiency, Greene Reports to Governor Smith.

CANAL IN BETTER SHAPE

Engineering and Building Purchases Cut—Budget Saves on Salaries.

ALBANY, Sept. 11.—Consolidation of the Department of Public Works, the Department of Public Buildings and the Commission of Highways has resulted in increased efficiency, improved conditions and a saving to the State of $873,731.08 annually, the State Superintendent of Public Works, Frederic E. Greene, told Governor Smith in a report made public today.

The report, which covered the fiscal year ended July 30, 1924, said the saving had been made possible by elimination of 160 positions and salaries, readjustment of other salaries, decrease in the maintenance and operation budget and in savings in rents and automobiles.

In connection with maintenance of the barge canal, the report indicated, the former policy of awarding contracts on the plant-rental and cost-plus basis had been replaced by contract on a unit price basis after competitive bids have been received. Further saving was made possible through purchasing supplies on competitive bids.

Increased efficiency in canal maintenance and operation was said to have been obtained through the services of technically trained engineers. Physically, the report said, the canal is in better condition than at any time in the past five or six years. Comparing dredging operations, the report stated, a total of 510,000 cubic yards had been removed from the canal bed during this fiscal year to July 21, as compared with 120,000 yards for the same period in 1923.

The report pointed as proof of the statement of canal conditions to letters of commendation voluntarily written to the Canal Commissioner and to the approval voiced on July 29 at a conference of State official and canal operators.

In a memorandum accompanying the report Governor Smith said:

"If a saving of $873,000 in personal service and in maintenance and operation can be effected by the consolidation of only three departments, time alone will tell the saving to the State by consolidations proposed in the constitutional amendments now pending, as well as the statutory consolidations that failed of passage in the Assembly at the last session of the Legislature."

A summary accompanying the report showed these detailed savings:

Total $873,731.08.

inadequate equipment, it is because of the default on the part of the city for eleven years in its obligation to supply us with shops and yards.

Under our contract with the city made in 1913, we included our existing shops and yards as a part of the entire system to be operated on one fare, but the city was obligated to supply new shops and yards required as a system might develop after 1913. Since that time we have purchased 950 steel cars at a total cost of $20,000,000. For the maintenance of these cars the city has not spent one dollar in supplying shops and yards.

Completing Fifty Steel Cars.

The company is now completing the equipment of fifty new steel cars at an expense of $1,200,000. These were purchased since the reorganization took place in June, 1923. The work on these new cars is proceeding under the grave handicap of shops inadequate even for routine maintenance work. It is plain that there is no use in buying new cars if there is no place in which to keep them in efficient operating condition.

So serious is the situation that the company cannot consider the purchase of new cars for use on any part of the system unless by the time such cars are ready for delivery by the car builders the city shall have adequate shops available in which to equip such cars, and, therefore, to maintain equipment.

The foregoing is but one illustration of the unfortunate situations which work to the detriment of the public and the public welfare.

It is realized that vital matters requiring immediate attention are frequently related to the dissatisfaction you have often expressed with existing subway contracts. This dissatisfaction does not, however, justify default by the city in performing important provisions of a contract which was entered into by due authority.

However, we do not like the contracts any more than you do, but, notwithstanding that fact, we have faithfully carried out all the provisions of the contract on our part. However, when two parties to a contract are dissatisfied with it, the sensible and businesslike thing to do is to get together in an effort to readjust the contract. This we are perfectly willing to do. This we believe to be in the interest of the people of this community.

You have many times publicly stated that the debt limit of the city is an obstacle to subway construction. You have asked the Legislature to pass an amendment to the Constitution exempting $275,000,000 from the debt limit so that this amount would be available for subway construction. It is now apparent that such a constitutional amendment, even if adopted, cannot become effective until 1926. Therefore, the only form of relief which you have suggested appears to be so remote as to be practically useless.

Not only are we ready to discuss with you a readjustment of the terms of our contract, but we are willing to do so in an effort to work out a contract fair and in the interests of the public under which this company itself will be able to provide the funds not only for the equipment but also for the construction of subways which are so urgently needed. We believe it is entirely possible to work out a plan whereby it will not be necessary for the City of New York to finance future subway construction.

We are in a position to make a firm commitment as to a substantial sum of money and we are willing to make a serious and earnest effort to provide sums in excess of the commitment which we are able to make—sums which will run into such large figures that nobody could make a firm commitment for them.

In brief, we are willing to cooperate in a definite and practical manner in filling the insistent need for more subways.

Meanwhile, I urge upon you not to lose sight of the fact that service with equipment fully maintained is dependent on adequate shops and yards. The B. M. T. system would be remiss in its duty to the public if it did not repeat and make clear the importance of the prompt construction of such shops and yards.

When you are prepared to inform the company of the approximate date of the availability of such shops, the company will then be in a position to place orders for new cars to be delivered by the time such shops are ready. Yours truly,

GERHARD M. DAHL, Chairman.

Mr. Dahl could not be reached last night. Speaking for the B. M. T. Travis Whitney, Vice President, said that neither he nor Mr. Dahl cared to comment at present the proposals made in Mr. Dahl's letter to the Mayor.

SUES FOR $170,000 PROFIT ON $16,000

Customer Charges That Brokers Told of "Advance Information" From Prominent Men.

DAUGHERTY'S NAME USED

Gain of $2,000 a Week Promised Him, Plaintiff Asserts—Soviet Deal Alleged.

The names of former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, Daniel G. Reid, Albert J. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank, and others are mentioned in the complaint filed yesterday in the Supreme Court in a suit against the Stock Exchange firm of Munds & Winslow and its predecessor, Munds, Rogers & Stackpole, to recover $172,973 under an alleged agreement to pay a customer $2,000 a week profits on an investment of $16,000.

The plaintiff is Boris Aronowitch, who is suing J. Theus Munds, Francis D. Winslow, H. Pendleton Rogers, William Stackpole, Lyman B. Kendall, Clinton T. Revere and Joseph Z. Da Linda, all of whom, it is said, were members of the two brokerage firms mentioned, except Da Linda. The complaint alleges that in 1920 Da Linda told Aronowitch that a syndicate was being organized to exploit the industries and resources of the Soviet Government with the assistance of Mr. Munds and a number of prominent business men and public officials.

Aronowitch alleges that Da Linda represented that the firm of Munds, Rogers & Stackpole was interested in the project and that it was one of the largest firms on the New York Stock Exchange, "having connections with public men and men of high financial standing." The plaintiff said that Da Linda told him that if he would invest in the enterprise and share his profits equally with Da Linda the latter would introduce him to members of the firm mentioned and "make possible large and secured profits."

Says He Invested $5,000.

The plaintiff says that in August, 1920, at the solicitation of Da Linda he visited the office of the brokers and the members of the firm and their employes reiterated the statements made by Da Linda. He was told, he said, that if he invested $5,000 the money would be doubled in a short time as the result of "advance information" received by the brokers and that he need not issue any orders for the purchase or sale of stocks.

Aronowitch says that he deposited $5,000 on Aug. 3, 1920, and on Aug. 16 the brokers returned the money with $1,580 profits they said he had earned, half of which he divided with Da Linda. He alleges that on Sept. 1 the brokers requested a further sum and told him if he would deposit $16,000 they would pay him $2,000 a week profit on his investment. He gave them the money on Sept. 8, he said, and on Sept. 15 they sent him $2,000 as his weekly profit and on Sept. 23 he got $2,000 more, but the payments were suspended until Nov. 15, when the brokers sent him $2,000 more, promising to 'make good the intervening shortage."

The complaint alleges that the payments were then suspended again and he received nothing, although he made repeated demands for his profits and for the original investment. Aronowitch charges that the defendants "in order to induce the plaintiff not to terminate his agreement with them and assure the plaintiff that the accumulated profits would be paid, did from time to time show the plaintiff correspondence and letters between Munds and Albert J. Wiggin, represented to be the President of the Chase National Bank, and between Munds and Daniel J. Reid, described as the 'tin plate king' and represented as having strong influence with members of the Cabinet owing to the fact that he financed the Republican Party campaign by contribution of $3,000,000, and various other documents and letters purporting to come from persons in high places."

The plaintiff alleges that the members of Munds, Rogers & Stackpole "further represented that they were handling trading accounts for high Government officials and were in receipt of advance information affecting various markets; the defendants showed plaintiff a check signed by Harry M. Daugherty on a bank in Washington, D. C., in the sum of $5,000 and letters signed by Harry M. Daugherty, the Attorney General of the United States, and represented that the $5,000 was deposited with the defendants for the purpose of speculation in certain oil stocks."

Visit to Harding Described.

Aronowitch asserts that the defendants "further represented that Da Linda, Munds and Daugherty had visited President-elect Harding at St. Augustine, Fla., and there discussed the question of the formation of the syndicate referred to for the purpose of exploiting the industries and resources under the control of the Soviet Government."

The plaintiff alleges that these representations were made to induce him to permit his original investment to remain with the brokerage firm and to allow the payments to be deferred, and he did so, but the defendants refused to pay him anything except to send him checks for $1,000 each on March 20, April 22, July 8, Sept. 6, 7 and 8, 1921. He states that on Sept. 13 of that year the defendant Clinton D. Revere visited his home at 7,804 Eighteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, and repeated the assurances made by the other defendants.

The complaint alleges finally that between September, 1920, and May 1, 1922, the brokers sent him various memoranda of the purchase and sale of cotton, but told him that they were merely records of paper transactions and that the items showing losses were "nothing but paper losses and had nothing to do with the account of the plaintiff." Aronowitch states that on May 1, 1922, he again demanded his investment and profits, but he has received only $1,027 since.

Aronowitch sues for alleged profits of $170,000 and his original investment of $16,000 less payments of $13,027.

Mr. Munds issued a statement concerning the case last night, in which he said:

"The claim is preposterous on its face and can only be the product of a distorted sense of humor. There is nothing to be gained by trying the case in the press and at the proper time and place the ridiculousness of the case will be shown."

It was stated in behalf of the brokers that Aronowitch came to their office accompanied by Joseph D. Da Linda, a friend of one of the members of the firm. For nearly a year thereafter he speculated in cotton and at the end of that time had lost approximately $1,500. It was pointed out that these losses were sustained during a period of deflation when nearly every speculator was losing money. Da Linda, it was said, has never been connected with Munds & Winslow in any capacity, nor has that firm ever been interested in any way in the Soviet Government.

John Schulman of the law firm of Hays, St. John & Buckley, 45 Exchange Place, representing Munds & Winslow, said that there was absolutely nothing to the charges made by Aronowitch. "When the time comes," Mr. Schulman said, "we will show that Aronowitch's charges are groundless."

The Defense of The Nation

What great measure of National Defense carries with it no threat of war, but contributes to the happiness and prosperity of the people in time of peace?

This question is answered in the following words of William Howard Taft: "At the foundation of national strength lies human vitality. That is, underneath our power to furnish the money, munitions, food, ships, machinery and morale which won the war we find the great fundamental requirement of sound bodies and minds." (Foreword "How to Live," Dec. 5, 1918.)

Surgeon-General Ireland in the Army and Navy Register of October 6th, 1923, said: "It cannot be too strongly emphasized that the periodic physical examination of the individual constitutes the very foundation of health conservation and in the absence of such examination no true progress can be made."

At the time of the draft examinations about 30% of the men called in the draft were disqualified for active service because of physical deficiencies. Many of these deficiencies were preventable and correctable, and many thousands of these young men were able, as a result of these examinations, to correct their disabilities and gain a much higher standard of health.

Instead of waiting 50 or 100 years for another great war before we have a physical try-out of the Nation, why not make a periodic examination of the human body easy and available for every one every year? Men and women over 45 should be examined at least twice a year; those under 45 surely at least once a year.

The death rate among soldiers in the time of war is looked upon as an appalling thing, but the death rate among civilians in times of peace arouses little concern. Yet both represent a vast and unnecessary waste of human life.

In a bulletin issued by the Illinois Life Insurance Company the following statement was made: "A soldier's chances of surviving an entire year's war service are better than those of a young man of 20 surviving to 32 in time of peace; better than the chance the civilian of 25 has of reaching 36, or that the civilian of 35 will reach 45, or that one of 45 will reach 52, or that one of 55 will reach 60, or that one of 60 will reach 63."

Secretary Weeks has urged that National Defense Day be made a National Health Day. The Life Extension Institute will be pleased to send you free, upon request, many little booklets upon the prevention of disease and the prolongation of human life, including a reprint from the Nation's Health, entitled "Periodic Physical Examination a National Need."

If you are interested, send your request for these free booklets to the Life Extension Institute, 25 West 43rd Street, New York. Kindly ask for "National Defense Day" literature. Visitors are always welcome at the Institute.

SUBPOENA M'CANN'S BANK ACCOUNTS

HIRSHFIELD ATTACKS CRAIG

Writes to Prosecutor That Controller Could Have Prevented Withholding of Money.

Assistant District Attorneys George N. Brothers and Frank E. Carstarphen, who are investigating the alleged shortage of $60,000 in the accounts of former City Marshal John McCann, who served as a tax collector in the Finance Department, yesterday subpoenaed McCann's accounts in the Bryant Park Bank.

The subpoena calls for both the personal account of McCann and also his business account, which was in the name of "John McCann, City Marshal." Mr. Brothers wants to familiarize himself with all the deposits and withdrawals made by McCann during the ten months in which the alleged shortage was incurred.

It was through the sending of his certified check for $50,000 to Controller Charles L. Craig last Tuesday that the Assistant District Attorney learned that McCann was a depositor in the Bryant Park Bank.

Miss Theresa Byrne, former bookkeeper for McCann, who was to appear at the District Attorney's office yesterday, did not respond. It was said she had not received the subpoena, because she was out of the city on her vacation, but was expected home soon.

David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, wrote a letter to District Attorney Joab H. Banton yesterday in which he said, in part:

"According to information, as I stated to you in my previous letter, Marshal McCann was short in his accounts over $61,000 last year, and this sum was subsequently made up by his friends in the same manner, I am told, as was the $50,000 which he paid on his previous shortage several days ago. Controller Craig did not inform you of McCann's shortage last year and did not make the matter public, but reappointed McCann as his collector of personal taxes the following year, and the result thereof is the present scandal in the Department of Finance. I am certain that if Controller Craig had not been informed that I had learned of the scandal in his office, he would not have made this matter public this time. He wrote his letter to you to beat me to it.

"While there can be no excuse for McCann, it is my opinion that Controller Craig is legally and morally responsible for McCann's actions. If, instead of lying awake thinking out schemes how to attack Mayor Hylan and embarrass his Administration, Craig had slept at night and had devoted his days to looking after the business of the Department of Finance, McCann would never have had an opportunity to do what he did do. If Controller Craig had attended to his duty, he would have checked up on McCann in each case before renewing the warrants and would not have permitted McCann to hold city money in his personal bank account and draw interest thereon for his own use."

Although Mrs. Charlotte Cortwright of 168 Buena Vista Avenue, Yonkers, was not driving her car when it hit another one and then disappeared, she was found to be the operator in the meaning of the law and Judge Charles W. Booce fined her $50 in Yonkers City Court yesterday.

The complainant was Mrs. May McLaughlin of 95 Warburton Avenue, Yonkers, owner of the car that was struck. She charged Mrs. Cortwright with failing to report an accident and with fleeing the scene of one. Following the accident Mrs. Cortwright's car, in which she was a passenger, was identified through the license number, but, according to the complaint, Mrs. Cortwright refused to name the actual driver.

Attorney John J. Finn, for Mrs. Cortwright, argued that the law applied to the operator of a car and that under rulings by the higher courts the owner of a car, if not driving at a given time, could not be held to be the operator then.

Attorney Irvin Klein, for the prosecution, contended that Mrs. Cortwright being the owner of the car and approving of it being driven by another in her presence was guilty under the statute.

Judge Booote, after fining Mrs. Cortwright, declined to let Mrs. Cortwright leave the building to get the amount of the fine, but allowed her to remain in the court and to telephone to arrange for its payment.

ASSAILS HUGHES POLICY.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Sept. 11.—Secretary Hughes's declaration of America's foreign policy is widely quoted in the Soviet press. Under such headlines as "Hughes's Dark and Hypocritical Policy Blind Enmity Toward Soviet Russia, Dreams of Enslaving Turkey," every paper carries that part of the declaration referring to the Soviet Union and the Near East without comment. Pravda, however, devotes a long leader to ridiculing the Hughes statement, declaring "Hughes has passed the borders of cynicism" and accuses Mr. Hughes of hypocrisy "unexampled in the whole realm of humorous literature."

Hughes, it continues, belongs in the category of politicians among whom one cannot expect to find new thoughts. "Hughes expresses the cravings of capitalistic groups only, speaking in the name of the Republican Party which is connected with the Morgan interests."

Pravda alleges that all other current political opinion in the United States favors recognition of the Soviet Union. It lays special stress upon the importance of the Russian question in the Presidential campaign which it expects will decide the dispute as between Secretary Hughes and the American people. Referring to Mr. Hughes's assertion of America's disinterestedness toward Russia and his references to America's position at the Genoa conference, Pravda says that Hughes made himself a laughing stock in the eyes of his own friends in Standard Oil and those who gained most out of American colonial expeditions. "Hughes is a talented comedian," the newspaper remarks. "He apparently considers such acts as the support of Admiral Kolchak's assignment of money for counter-revolutionary work, murder and the blowing up of bridges in Russia, as coming within the principles of mutual trust and good-will among nations. Such is the philosophy and hypocritical morality of American business men which guide Hughes. A similar hypocrisy is contained in the statement regarding America's legal and moral motives toward the Soviet Union. It is the same group of people who recognized the atrocious regime of the Czar, who have shaken hands with the bloody Abdul Hamid, who foster oppression of the negroes in their own country and retain the institution of lynching while they now dare dictate principles of 'morality and good-will' to others.

"Secretary Hughes is probably the most hated American in Soviet Russia and is virtually the only American who is subjected to such bitter attacks. The Soviet press takes him to task at every opportunity as he is considered the sole obstacle to the establishment of normal relations with the United States. Great hopes are pain entertained in Communist and Government circles here regarding the outcome of the Presidential election and although the program of the third party has been subjected to much criticism the Communists hope for its success.

Victory of Wills Over Firpo Is Witnessed by 80,000 in Boyle's Thirty Acres

Dempsey knocked Firpo out in four minutes, but he was once pushed clear out of the ring himself in the frantic and never-to-be-forgotten activities that occupied that round and a third.

Wills followed a different plan. He boxed Firpo from the first, and thus displayed something of the overwhelming superiority that Dempsey might have shown had he so elected. It was a fight of clinches. In the early rounds Wills came constantly to close quarters, where his immense superiority in in-fighting gave him a big advantage.

Constantly in the clinches Wills's right hand kept thumping on Firpo's kidneys, pleating his back with resounding swats that echoed back from the upper tiers of the arena.

Before the fight was half over, a big pink spot had begun to spread on Firpo's browned back, and by the twelfth round it had gone half way up to his shoulders. He was pretty shaky by the time the fight was over, but he had been able to take all that Wills could give him without going down for the count.

Considering that Dempsey floored Firpo nine times in the fight at the Polo Grounds, there doesn't seem to be much doubt about who has the champion blow.

Firpo Still Wild in Boxing.

Firpo may be a somewhat better boxer than he was last year, but he is not enough better to set the world afire. He now uses his left to some extent. Several times he nipped Wills smartly in the face with his left, but never hard enough to hurt him. As for the famous flailing right, Luis still swings it like an axe, and takes as much time to get set before he starts it as if he were building a concrete base for a siege gun.

Last night the Siege Gun usually fired in the air.

The damage was done in the infighting, and here Wills kept thud-thudding on Firpo's kidneys, hammering the heavy and none-too-solid Argentine (who weighed 224½, seven points more than had been expected), while Firpo's right clubbed away to no purpose at Wills's head.

Wills did most of the clinching at first, but before the fight was very far along Firpo was finding the wrestle more congenial than attempts to dig in and then swing his right at a black head that wasn't there to meet it.

Both did a lot of holding, and Referee Danny Sullivan, scrupulously fair and meticulously insistent on the letter of the rules, kept making them break when the crowd begged him to let them fight. But when they pounded each other with one hand free it was Wills and not Firpo who did the damage.

Firpo Mentally Worried.

Temperament, perhaps, may have had something to do with it. Firpo's statement after the fight that he was not in mental condition for the battle may not be a mere alibi.

The Argentine is temperamental, anyway, and he has been much worried by the reformers.

Wills was light-hearted about it. When Firpo hit him he smiled; when he hit Firpo, Firpo looked gloomy. Wills even turned aside once to grin at some friends near the ringside; Firpo was wise enough not to turn aside at all.

This big Argentine's face is one of his principal assets for his career as an entertainer. His deadly seriousness gives a pleasant touch of solemnity to the proceedings of what is sometimes called a sport, but more often looks like a business. Firpo takes life seriously and Harry Wills grins his way through. The big, hook-nosed white man and the sunken-nosed black man were a visible contrast in temperaments, which may have been to some degree the explanation of the difference in their fighting.

From the very first Wills smiled. When Firpo caught him with an uppercut before the first round was over the smile faded away and he rushed Firpo to the ropes. They struggled, pounded each other, broke away, but already Firpo was missing those carefully prepared right-handers and Wills was landing both without force, but landing none the less. In the second he knocked Firpo down, and from that time on his superiority was unmistakable.

They fought through round after round of repeated clinches, Referee Sullivan continually repeating, "Don't do that holding, Harry," as Wills locked Firpo up. By the fifth round the crowd was shouting, "Let 'em fight!" as Wills still thumped Firpo's ribs in the clinches and Firpo still bounced futile rights off the top of Wills's head. At the end of the sixth they were virtually wrestling, but by the end of the seventh Firpo was tottering in the ring.

It was about this time that Jack Dempsey slipped out, unnoticed, having doubtless seen enough to realise that whatever might be the seeming contrast with his battle against Firpo last year, he was going to have to worry about when he defends his championship next year.

From that time on it was only a question whether Wills has the punch to put his antagonist out.

They finished waltzing and the crowd, after getting rid of its accumulation of boos, stayed on for what is known in the fight game as a semi-final, but in fact is usually, as in this case, a post-final.

The crowd wanted to see somebody knocked out, but it had to go home with only the dull satisfaction of having seen one of the preliminary fighters take the count in the first round.

Fight Lacks Color.

It was perhaps the most colorless of the major heavyweight fights that have been seen around New York in recent years. There was very little partisanship displayed in favor of either man, aside from the group of Argentines who rooted for their fellow-countryman.

Even before the fight the first appearance of the fighters brought comparatively little demonstration of enthusiasm. They came into the ring just before 10 o'clock, Firpo in his sumptuous black and gold checked bathrobe, edged with purple and covering his purple trunks, and Wills in an old woolly blue and grey gown that looked as if it had been handed down in his family for generations. His green tights had a lavender "W" embroidered in one corner, sole indication of taste in dress.

Wills got more applause than Firpo, but neither got a great deal. There was about as much for Mickey Walker, the welterweight champion, whom Announcer Joe Humphries presented as "the Jersey Idol" just before he introduced the fighters.

At that moment, to be sure, the crowd had an outside preoccupation. During the last preliminary an airplane advertising a movie now running on Broadway flew across the arena, then turned about, circled back and crossed and recrossed a score of times or more. Often it flew pretty low, and when Humphries announced "In this corner the premier heavyweight, Harry Wills," and "In this corner the recognized heavyweight champion of all South America, Luis Angel Firpo," the airplane's motor was humming so loudly that his voice was almost inaudible.

Everybody knows the name of that movie now; the airplane flew so low and came back so often that for a quarter of an hour or more nervous persons were more occupied in thinking about what would happen if the engine stopped and the airplane crashed into this wooden bowl with its 80,000 people than they were about the preliminary fight then going on. The airplane advertised the movie, but so far as could be judged from remarks overheard in the crowd, it didn't inspire much eagerness to attend the show.

The attendance was surprisingly large, considering the assiduous efforts to stop the fight. Called out by the good weather and by the news made public before noon that the reformers had failed and the fight was on, the crowd began to assemble early. By sunset all Jersey City was full of fight fans moving toward Boyle's Thirty Acres and the arena was more than two-thirds full when the first preliminary began.

As always, at Jersey fights, the crowd contained a high percentage of local politicians, who sat in the seats of the mighty. Jersey politicians and a great assortment of champions in the various classes, with a considerable number of beautiful and well-dressed women, gave the crowd distinction even without the Prince of Wales.

Collection for a Hospital.

During the preliminaries the much-enduring Humphries announced that he craved the indulgence of the crowd for five minutes while a collection was taken up "to aid a very worthy cause, St. Joseph's Home for the Blind."

Jersey City policemen came into the ring and held up big banners signed by Mayor Frank Hague, and announcing that the hospital is "under my personal direction," no worthier cause than which could be asked for.

Though some boos had greeted the request for indulgence, the collection was taken in due form.

Al Jolson flung two one hundred dollar bills into the ring, and announcement was duly made that $200 had been contributed by Al Jolson. The collection proceeded. Champion Jack Dempsey also contributed $200, but quietly and without ostentation.

The crowd was setting up demands for Canon Chase before the last semi-final was over. If the Canon had turned up he would have had a merry reception. As it was the crowd that had come out looking for blood went home discouraged after an evening of boxing that was often good and always instructive.

STORY OF THE FIGHT TOLD ROUND BY ROUND

Firpo was the first to enter the ring. He was at the ringside at 9:50 o'clock, before the principals in the last preliminary had departed. While waiting for Wills, Firpo danced about in his own corner. He was seconded by Julio Itwirago, Bill Tate and Dan Washington.

Wills climbed into the ring three minutes after Firpo and received a great cheer from the crowd. His manager, Paddy Mullins, Jack Dougherty and Jeff Clark were the negro's seconds. Mullins supervised the adjustment of Firpo's gloves, and Bill Tate stood guard while Wills's gloves were being tied on.

Firpo received the greatest reception when the boxers were introduced. It was 10:01 when the boxers were called to the centre of the ring for final instructions.

In the afternoon Referee Sullivan had warned the two boxers that the rabbit-punch, backhand blow and holding and hitting were barred. He also notified the men that in the event that either man fell, or was knocked out of the ring, he would begin counting over the man and continue until the latter had returned to the ring or had been counted out for failing to do so. If both of the principals fell out of the ring Sullivan said that his count would proceed and that the man who returned first would be declared the winner if his opponent failed to return to the ring within ten seconds. Sullivan also said it had been agreed between the boxers that either would go to the furthest neutral corner while the count was proceeding in the event of a knockdown.

The boxers weighed in in the afternoon at the gymnasium of Joe Jeanette in West Hoboken, N. J. A large crowd pressed against the police lines, formed for the purpose of keeping a little more or less clattering about the ring in the gymnasium where scales had been placed.

WILLS IN VICTORY NO TITLE MENACE

HIS BOXING UNIMPROVED

Also Lacks Punch Needed to Defeat Champion—Firpo Still Crude and Awkward.

Harry Wills demonstrated that he is the master of Luis Angel Firpo when he battered his way to victory on points over the giant from the Argentine last night, but that is about all.

Using the bout as a barometer on the chances of either Wills or Firpo replacing Dempsey as world's heavyweight champion, the conclusion was forced upon the observer that Dempsey's honors are unmistakably safe for an indeterminate period, or until some other young prospect, as yet unknown and unheard of, advances through the ranks.

Wills, on the strength of his showing against Firpo, has little or no chance against Dempsey. This theory has been more or less accepted by close followers of boxing for some time, but it was made as near an established fact as is possible last night, when Wills faced the man who gave Dempsey the champion's hardest battle.

Firpo still is Firpo. He is the Firpo of the Dempsey bout—wild, uncouth, awkward and cumbersome, with nothing but that death-dealing right and the heart of a lion.

Like Firpo, Wills failed to show any improvement in his boxing, despite the glowing accounts of his work reported from the negro's training camp as he prepared for Firpo. Wills undoubtedly showed all of this and more in his training, just as Firpo exhibited what seemed to be an improvement in his training, but in actual battle the pair clung to their respective styles, forgetting completely what they showed in training.

Wills Clearly Superior.

By all processes of elimination, Wills now is in line for a bout with Dempsey, because he has demonstrated his superiority over Firpo. The South American, though he has probably lost another crack at the world's title and the fortune such a bout would bring him, covered himself with glory in the manner in which he stood up under Wills's heaviest blows—punches which were almost exclusively driven to the body at close range. But if Wills's ambition is realized and he faces Dempsey next Spring or Summer, the result of such a title bout can be written now.

Unless Dempsey sustains some serious physical injury between now and the time he faces Wills, the champion should dispose of the negro in short order. This appraisal of the men is set down here simply because the bout last night was arranged primarily to produce a rival for Dempsey and to furnish an insight into the chances of the victor against the champion.

As bouts go, last night's was ordinary. It certainly was not exciting, and yet it was not tame in the sense that it lacked action. It was hard fought and it was a desperate struggle. But because of its sameness, round after round, almost without exception, the bout lacked thrills save in the second and seventh sessions.

Firpo thrilled the crowd as he plunged and tore in blindly with dogged determination, round after round. Despite the terrific body blows which Wills rained on his rival's wind, heart, side and ribs in a monotonous attack which he had practiced and complaining to the referee in the latter rounds.

Wills, however, supplied the two real thrills of the battle in the second and seventh sessions. In the second, Wills demonstrated the power of his punch when, as the pair were breaking from a clinch, he whipped over a short right to the jaw and sent Firpo toppling for a count of five. It was a punch similar to the left hook with which Dempsey started Firpo on the road to defeat in their memorable battle a year ago, driven home as the order was given to break, and many questioned its legality. Referee Sullivan, however, entertained no protest and issued no caution and the bout resumed.

The blow gave Wills a glorious chance to end the battle with a knock-out but Harry showed he is not quite up to that. He tried hard enough, but failed to put his shortcoming in long range boxing he had to go close to Firpo and content himself with digs to the body and jolting blows to the jaw. Firpo showed his wonderful stamina and recuperative powers by coming back strong and before the end of the round, driving home a right to the jaw which sent Wills to his corner on shaky legs.

Another Chance in Several.

In the seventh Wills again had Firpo in distress, this time with a straight right to the body, one of the few punches the negro landed at long range. Harry pressed his advantage as best he could, but his best was not effective against the sturdy South American, who withstood all of Wills's body blows until the bell rang.

These were the outstanding points in Wills's favor, but he had many other opportunities to score a knockout had he possessed the killing punch of a Dempsey or an appreciably near approach to the champion's crushing strength. In the third, fourth, fifth and sixth rounds Wills staggered his rival with blows to the jaw and all the time was pounding Firpo's body unmercifully at close quarters with right digs or full-arm swings of the right. But Wills was incapable of any long-range boxing despite Firpo's wide-open style, and all this close-quarter punishment the negro inflicted simply counted for points.

Wills was not the Wills who faced Fred Fulton three or four years ago. He has one of the speediest foot shifts in or hitting occurred for long-range work which he flashed in that bout and prior to it. In fact, Wills, to all intents and purposes, cannot fight at long range at all. He uses his great strength principally for wrestling, and he is not particularly observant of the rules, a fact which was indicated when Referee Sullivan repeatedly cautioned the negro for minor violations.

Firpo Tries Shift.

Whether Wills can stand up under punishment is still an unknown quantity, because Firpo never really landed a solid or dangerous blow because of his clumsiness. In the first round Firpo nicked his rival with a right to the chin and Wills's knees trembled, but for the rest Firpo's blows landed on Wills's head or shoulders at long range. At close quarters Firpo was too busy holding against punishing body blows to try any of his own.

The South American essayed a left jab repeatedly last night and landed with an encouraging number of the blows. He also tried a shift, a change from the orthodox to the unorthodox style of squaring off, but this was proved more of a drawback than an improvement, because every time Firpo tried it he was in danger of dropping under Wills's right.

In the fourth round Wills staggered Firpo with a right to the jaw as Firpo shifted, and when he thought of attempting this manoeuvre later Firpo gave the subject due consideration and then decided against it.

Fight Broadcast to Argentina; Great Feat, Say Radio Experts

One of the greatest radio broadcasting feats yet attempted, according to radio experts, was accomplished in Jersey City last night, when the story of the Firpo-Wills fight by rounds, translated into Spanish, was broadcast from the ringside to the Argentine. The story, together with the cheers of the great crowd, was sent over a special telephone wire to a powerful sending radio station in Pittsburgh. A short wave length, heretofore considered experimental for long distances, carried the news to the station of La Nacion at Buenos Aires, which rebroadcast the fight to Firpo's compatriots, 6,000 miles away from the original station.

READY FOR DEMPSEY, SAYS HARRY WILLS

Will Meet Champion at Any Time if Public Wants Contest —Firpo Asks Return Bout.

Harry Wills had bright dreams of a championship bout with Jack Dempsey when he left the ring after his bout with Firpo. Naturally disappointed that he had not knocked out his South American opponent, Wills, nevertheless, seemed satisfied that the spectators would agree he had taken every round from Firpo and would consider him as the most logical contender for the title.

"He is a good, tough fighter," Wills said in speaking of Firpo. "He can stand a lot of punishment, for I punished him tonight. He landed squarely three or four times on my jaw, but his blows didn't carry enough force to trouble me. I think I took the full force of his famous right, but I wasn't bothered. I'm ready now to do whatever the public wants. If they think I'm good enough for Dempsey I'm ready to meet him at any time. In fact, I'll fight any one they want me to, if they think that I still have to prove I deserve a chance at the championship.

"I know it wasn't a very good fight to watch from the spectators' standpoint, but Firpo kept hanging on to me and there wasn't any chance to get at him from long range. All fighters look alike to me and I hope I will get another bout soon."

The Brown Panther was in a happy frame of mind when he reached his dressing room. Smiles wreathed his face and he was breathing easily, showing no evidence of the strain he had been under.

Luis Firpo was naturally disappointed at his failure to defeat Wills, but with his customary confidence in himself he predicted that he would turn the trick the next time he got Harry in the ring.

"I certainly hope Rickard and Wills will give me another chance as soon as I have straightened out my affairs in this country," said the Argentine. "I don't want to appear to be making any excuses but I do feel that I was in physical condition but not mental condition to fight Wills. I couldn't do myself justice, with so much on my mind in the way of legal troubles since I landed in the United States. I have scarcely thought about the bout since I came to New York from Saratoga and I have been so harassed and worried that the fight came to be a secondary matter.

"Wills is a great fighter but he is not as good as Dempsey. I want to meet Wills again when I am in better shape to fight, and after that bout I think everybody will agree that I am entitled to another bout with Dempsey."

Firpo did not appear to have been much hurt by Wills's punching. The left side of his face was slightly swollen and his left side was bruised. It was these punches over the kidneys that Firpo claimed hurt him most and he said that prior to the bout he had been under the impression that kidney blows would be barred.

After the bout Luis Firpo was quoted as declaring that he had been fouled repeatedly by Wills, and that the negro had used unfair tactics while delivering the punch that knocked Luis down in the second round. Firpo, it was also said, charged that Wills had used questionable methods on the breaks.

TATE KNOCKS OUT CASANOVA IN FIRST

Harlem Negro Makes Short Work of Porto Rican in Preliminary Contest.

Bill Tate, giant Harlem negro, made short work of John Casanova, Porto Rican negro, in a scheduled six-round preliminary preceding the Wills-Firpo bout in Jersey City last night. Casanova, a rather solemn-faced, serious-looking negro, showed no qualifications of a boxer against the veteran Tate, and to add to his handicap, the Porto Rican was outweighed forty-eight pounds.

Tate dropped his rival with a wicked right uppercut to the body after two minutes and thirty seconds of the first round and Casanova, making a pillow of his folded arms, remained down while Referee Sailor Fritts counted him out.

Joe Stoessel, Bronx heavyweight, and Jim Maloney, sturdy youngster from Boston, were the principals in the other six-round bout, scheduled as the last contest before the big battle. Referee Jack Healey officiated.

Overcoming the handicap of height, weight and reach Maloney battled his way to the honors over his rival. Maloney found his rival's advantages too much to overcome in the first round, but from the second session he weakened Stoessel with steady body fire and came near knocking out the Bronx heavyweight in the sixth session when the bell came to Stoessel's rescue after he had been floored for a count of nine.

Charlie Nashert, Jersey City heavyweight, outpointed Mike Burke of Greenwich Village in the eight-round semi-final bout, which was placed in the ring after the main event.

The program got off on schedule when Charlie McKenna, Greenwich Village heavyweight, and Miguel Ferrera, Argentine boxer, clambered into the ring at 8:15 for the four-round preliminary which opened the card. Hank Lewis was the referee.

Aside from officially inaugurating the card, this battle was notable for the fact that it covered the arrival of Champion Jack Dempsey. The titleholder took his seat unnoticed during the second round. McKenna was entitled to the honors at the final bell. He outboxed the unschooled Ferrera at every turn in every round. Ferrera showed plenty of strength and withstood McKenna's hardest blows without apparent effect, but he was wild and absolutely ineffective.

Joe Silvani, Bronx heavyweight, and Carl Johnson of the East Side, were rivals in the second bout, a four-round event. His aggressiveness gave Johnson the honors of this bout.

POLO TEAMS AT RINGSIDE

The big wooden saucer on Boyle's Thirty Acres housed its fourth big boxing crowd last night when 80,000 persons gathered to see Harry Wills meet Luis Firpo. While it was one of the largest crowds in the history of pugilism, it was also one of the quietest and most dignified, dignified almost to the point of solemnity. It had been expected that the Prince of Wales would be present, but he did not put in an appearance.

There was no lack of distinction to the gathering, however. Society was out in force. Practically all the members of the British and American polo teams that play at Meadow Brook tomorrow were at the ringside. There were probably not so many women as have attended some of the big bouts at the Polo Grounds and Yankee Stadium, but otherwise there has not been a more representative crowd at any of the many big boxing shows of recent years.

In size it was smaller than the Firpo-Willard and Dempsey-Carpentier bouts held in the same arena, but it was larger than that which saw Benny Leonard defend his title against Lew Tendler, and it was also larger than most of the ball park crowds because there was more room.

Besides its great spaciousness the bowl also has the advantage of being built for boxing. It lacks the towering impressiveness of the Yankee Stadium, but it is a great place in which to hold a boxing match. Instead of being up and down the crowd rolls back in an upturned sea of faces from the white patch that is in the ring. Like a sea, these faces seem to extend on to the horizon, to where American flags, the only decoration around the bowl, mark the outermost rim of the shallow saucer. It was a fine spectacle and a fine crowd, only the tameness of the feature bout kept it from being a great evening.

The Prince of Wales was missing, but Jack Dempsey, king of the heavyweights, was there. Jack probably spent the evening wondering how Firpo ever managed to knock him out of the ring and why Jack Kearns had been so loath to sign articles with Wills.

Among those noted in the great throng were Devereux Milburn, J. Watson Webb, Thomas J. Hitchcock Jr., Malcolm Stevenson, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, James J. Corbett, Major Carleton F. Burke, Arthur Perkins, Eric Pedley, Teddy Miller, Jack Skelly, Billy Gibson, Emil Fuchs, Major F. B. Hurndall, Major E. G. Atkinson, Major T. W. Kirkwood, Commissioner George E. Brower, Jack Dempsey, Benny Leonard, Johnny Dundee, Commissioner James J. Farley, Mayor Frank Hague, "Big Billy" Edwards, Pancho Villa, Abe Goldstein, "Honest John" Kelly, Jack Kearns, Al Jolson and Tex Austin.

Among those who also made reservations were Vincent Astor, Kermit Roosevelt, Julius Fleischmann, the Duchess of Westminster, the Marchioness of Milford Haven, Lady Zia Early and Lady Airlie, the Hon. Mrs. Richard B. Norton, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Cosden, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Widener, Joseph E. Widener, F. Trubee Davison, Charles H. Sabin, Pierre Wertheimer, Senator Edward I. Edwards, Joseph Tumulty, A. J. Drexel Biddle Jr., John S. Hammond, Eugene Garey, Martin Littleton, Richard Croker Jr., Frank Keenan, John McK. Bowman, Roy Carruthers, Captain Thierry Mallet, Bernard Gimbel, John Drake and Major James Imbrie.

Practically all the betting that was done on the Wills-Firpo fight at Boyle's Thirty Acres was done yesterday afternoon and on previous days. There were few wagers made at the ringside, but yesterday afternoon $30,000 was sent to W. L. Darnell & Co. from Harlem to bet on Wills at the best possible odds. This was the only really large wager reported, although several brokers laid smaller sums. The day opened with Firpo the favorite at odds of 6 to 5, but when fighters entered the ring the prevailing quotations had come down to even money.

Between Rickard and Frank Hague Boyle's Thirty Acres was transformed into a temporary city. There were a little police station, two tented hospitals with a score of nurses on duty, a fire headquarters with apparatus in readiness, restaurants, news and hack stands—in short, everything that is to be found for the public's safety and comfort in a well-regulated city. There was enough people to make a city, too. Many a town that has a smaller population counts itself a metropolis.

One-Eye Connolly was still on the outside looking in at 8 o'clock. He was as close to one of the gates as he could get, passing out his calling cards to his friends. They read "One-Eye Connolly, world's champion gate crasher." Connolly said that while it looked as if it was going to be a hard fight to crash, he fully expected to have one of his cards for Rickard before the evening was over.

One of the early arrivals of the evening at the ringside was Gentleman Jim Corbett. He came in unnoticed. Only the will o' the wisp is more fickle than the spotlight.

Tex Austin came in soon after 8 in a two-gallon hat. Shades of Shelby!

The band played "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No Mo'," Rickard's favorite piece.

One of the most successful program sellers hawked his wares as follows: "Get a program of the fight. Tells you everything but the winner and I'll tell you that when you buy one."

The ringside seats cost most and the purchasers got more mosquitoes for their money. The insects were attracted by the lights over the ring, but they had a reputation to sustain and sustained it nobly. Some of the insects were so large they droned like an airplane when they flew overhead.

It wasn't as cold as it was when Dempsey fought Firpo at the Polo Grounds a year ago, but it was several degrees colder than the afternoon when Dempsey fought Carpentier in this same arena more than three years ago.

With the Dempsey-Carpentier contest, which drew 90,000; the Firpo-Willard bout, which drew even more; the Leonard-Tendler bout and last night's big throng, Boyle's Thirty Acres has yielded a richer harvest than other acreage in all history, even if it has produced only cauliflowers.

Not even the voice of Joe Humphries could reach half way back to the outer rim of the arena. That will give the fight fans an excellent idea of its size.

This was not another battle of the century but it was undoubtedly the battle of the year.

The bout was held under the jurisdiction of Mayor Hague of Jersey City. Sort of Hague tribunal.

The first real cheer of the night came when Champion Jack Dempsey crawled through the ropes to be introduced. The champion and Al Jolson were two of the big contributors to the collection for the St. Joseph's Home for the Blind. Each gave $200.

Reporters in the secondary press section, which was about twenty rows back from the ringside, were under the distinct disadvantage of having to write by moonlight.

Rickard Is Still Champion Of the Weather Prophets

When Rickard's days as a fight promoter are over, he should get a position on the Weather Bureau. His record is still 1,000 per cent. Out of a week of cold, rainy weather he picked the one possible night for the big fight. Not only did the rain stop, but the cool weather moderated and then, to make the night perfect, a big full moon hung over the big arena to help light the scene. Rickard is lucky, but he deserves his luck. He is the most thorough man who ever promoted a prize fight. If anything ever goes wrong with one of his big bouts it will not be because of lack of planning to prevent it.

MOB RUSHES POLICE, LOOKING FOR PRINCE

Arrival of Mountbatten Party at Fight Arena Starts Crush That Breaks the Lines.

Only one incident marred police arrangements outside Boyle's Thirty Acres last evening, and that was when a crowd of several thousand persons broke the line on the arrival at the principal entrance of Lord Louis and Lady Mountbatten, cousins of the Prince of Wales, accompanied by Joshua S. Cosden and Mrs. Cosden, in the Cosden automobile.

A Sergeant and a specially selected detail of uniformed policemen and detectives had been assigned to receive the party and escort them to Entrance 14, about 600 yards around from the main entrance.

There had been reports received during the afternoon that the Prince of Wales would be in the party, these led the waiting thousands who had stood for hours to rush forward for a glimpse of the visitors. The rush broke the cordon of police extending two blocks around the arena.

"There he goes!" shouted a man as the Mountbatten party, led by three mounted policemen, headed for the principal entrance. There was a rush which swept aside the 200 hundred uniformed officers and twenty mounted men, and as the Mountbattens and the Cosdens started to leave their car they found themselves in the centre of a surging throng.

"That's not the Prince of Wales," eventually shouted a well-dressed youth, who was among the first to reach the side of the Cosden car. "That's Lord Mountbatten."

A flying wedge of mounted policemen dived into the crowd and began to drive them back beyond the police line. The Sergeant and his men took advantage of this move to escort the occupants of the automobile around the left side of the arena, leading them through piles of old beams and discarded automobiles until they reached the entrance, at which the party was to find seats.

"Where is the Prince of Wales?" Mr. Cosden was asked when the procession began.

"He isn't coming to the fight," was the answer.

Mr. Cosden then explained that he had arranged for a party of twelve, including Mountbatten, and others of the English visitors to witness the bout. They had left the Cosden home at Fort Washington, Long Island, in the afternoon on the Cosden steam yacht Clipper and went to the Columbia Yacht Club's landing at Eighty-fourth Street and the Hudson River for dinner. After dinner the party boarded the Clipper again and steamed across the Hudson to the pier at the foot of Montgomery Street, Jersey City, where automobiles were awaiting the party.

"Oh, I suppose they are coming up behind us," was the reply.

Crowd Peers Into Strings of Cars.

When word that others of the party were expected to arrive reached the thousands outside the police lines, men and boys formed lines beyond the cordon on the road leading to the arena's principal entrance, and peered into the thousands of cars which came along, in the hope of getting a view of the Prince, but only to be disappointed.

Chief of Police Battersby had 1,200 policemen and 300 detectives and plain clothes men on hand to maintain order inside and outside of the arena. In addition to the uniformed policemen and fifty detectives stationed around the arena, there were 500 firemen on hand to deal immediately with any blaze that might start. Under the seats near the principal entrance a temporary police headquarters had been established, and next to this was an emergency hospital with a staff of eight doctors and fifteen nurses.

By 8 P. M. 10,000 persons, including many women and young girls, had gathered outside the police cordon to witness the arrival of ticket holders. In the space between the cordon and the arena 150 mounted policemen continued riding around to prevent any one from standing there.

Those who had tickets were hurried into the arena through the various entrances and the few hundred who had managed to get through the cordon on one pretext or another were forced back beyond the police line when they could not show tickets.

Three Treated in Emergency Hospital.

By the time the bell calling Firpo and Wills to the centre of the ring for their bout had been sounded, three spectators had been treated in the emergency hospital of the arena for minor ailments, and went to their homes without seeing the fight.

Owen O'Hagen of 107 West Third Street, Manhattan, while seated in one of the top rows near the main entrance, was seized with an attack of indigestion and had to be carried to the hospital by several policemen. He was attended by Dr. Taylor of the Jersey City Hospital staff, who also attended Frank Burman of Jersey City, brought in a few minutes later suffering from the effects of an epileptic fit, which seized him in another part of the arena.

As Burman was leaving the hospital George Smith of 144 Orient Street, Jersey City, was led into the place in a semi-conscious condition from indigestion. He was placed on a cot and treated by physicians, who warned him that it would be dangerous for him to return to view the fight from view as attendants of the prison gathered about them. The last passageway to free life was closed.

Taken to Solitary Cells.

Warden John L. Whitman appeared at the side of Sheriff Hoffman.

"You have the papers of confinement for these two men, have you, Mr. Hoffman?" he inquired.

"Yes, sir, here they are," and the mittimi were produced.

"Take the prisoners over to the court solitary and cell them for the night," the Warden ordered three guards at his side.

One of the Deputy Sheriffs produced two keys for the handcuffs and after a moment or so of tugging the manacles were removed. Loeb rubbed his right wrist and gazed at the guards into whose custody he had been turned. Leopold thanked the Sheriff for his treatment and dofting his hat, fell in behind the guards.

Across the wide expanse of the jail yard, past the dim form of the bakery and down the gravel walk to the "military house" moved the five figures. The lights of the building cast dreary shadows to and fro as they walked rapidly to the door. A guard on the inside admitted them.

The natty gray flannels and fancy gray sweaters of Loeb were cast on the floor as he took them off for the last time. Leopold removed the blue suit he had purchased a week before the two kidnapped and murdered Robert Franks. He threw it on the floor beside Loeb's clothes.

The two boys conversed with their guards for a few moments and related a few details of their trip down from Chicago. Twenty minutes after they entered the prison, Loeb and Leopold were in their cells. They lay down on hard straw "ticks" and rested. Their journey from the University of Chicago campus to the bolts and bars of Joliet had ended.

The Start from Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—At 6:57 o'clock tonight Richard A. Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold Jr., sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment for the slaying of Robert Franks and ninety-nine years for his kidnapping, began their journey to the State Penitentiary at Joliet. Led by a car containing Sheriff Hoffman and armed guards the prisoners were driven over a secret route in automobiles in which six Deputy Sheriffs, shotguns loaded with buckshot on their knees, were to the sides rode a strong guard of motorcycle policemen.

Threats to lynch the two boys and blow up the jail led to extraordinary precautions. Although the Sheriff deemed the warnings the work of cranks, the greatest caution was taken against any demonstration.

Outside the county jail a large crowd surged round and round, craned necks and trod on toes to the last. The police drove the morbid hundreds back half an hour before the start of the prisoners and heavy cordons of armed guards were thrown around both the jail and the Criminal Court Building.

Precautions to Protect Slayers.

Four automobiles carrying rifle squads cruised slowly about the old Criminal Courts Building and the adjoining County Jail all night long. Along the four blocks of streets bordering the connected buildings uniformed policemen paced at intervals and in front of the cell where Loeb and Leopold slept soundly heavily armed guards relieved one another in groups of four throughout the night.

The first mail brought letters with threats of lynching. The authorities regarded them as the usual contribution from cranks, but took no chances. The guards in the corridors were doubled. The police patrol outside was increased. Frequently rumors came over the wires of plans to capture the prisoners. One report from Berwyn was that 300 members of the Ku Klux Klan were planning to throw a log across the road, stop the cars, take the prisoners and lynch them.

Instead of taking the prisoners out of the main entrance of the jail in North Dearborn Street the Sheriff marched them into the jail yard at the rear, between double rows of guards and deputy sheriffs. There they were hurried into the waiting motor cars, filled with shotgun escorts. Motorcycle police cleared a path and the trip to Joliet started.

Elaborate precautions to balk any move to pardon the 18-year-old youths, who confessed they killed "to get a thrill," delayed the removal. The original plan was to start at noon. But State's Attorney Crowe kept studying and revising the papers to guard against loopholes for any future move for a pardon.

It was 4:30 o'clock before Mr. Crowe and John G. Sammons, Clerk of the Criminal Court, his statement of taste to go with the mittimus which must accompany the prisoners to the penitentiary. In his statement, covering ten typewritten pages, the State's Attorney characterized Leopold and Loeb as "degenerate murderers."

"It is unfortunate for the welfare of the community that they were not sentenced to death," he wrote.

Crowds Guards Against Pardon.

Beginning with the discovery of the body of Bobby Franks, the statement recited all the incidents up to rendering of the verdict by Justice Caverly. Mr. Passmore said the intention was to make the statement so strong that no one would dare to ask for a pardon or parole.

"Mr. Crowe wishes to make certain," he said, "that the life sentence given these men will be a life sentence, not a stepping stone to a pardon before they have even served the parole period."

All the commitment papers were studied minutely and scrupulously by Mr. Passmore as they reached his hands and by Henry Barrett Chamberlin of the Chicago Crime Commission, and at 6:25 o'clock Mr. Passmore announced they were correct. Sheriff Hoffman was summoned and Captain Westbrook went into the death cell to get the boys ready for the trip to Joliet.

He found them playing cards, eating sandwiches, laughing and joking with their guards. They put on their coats, stuffed the latest editions of newspapers into their pockets and, after lighting cigarettes, walked around the cell waiting for the Sheriff.

They peered out of the window from time to time as they heard the song of a patrol wagon entering the jail yard. The crowds outside, the shouts and precautions made it a great day for Leopold and Loeb as they joked and chatted. There was only one flaw. The spotlight was denied them by their jailers.

As they were marched out of the jail yard to the waiting automobiles, batteries of cameras clicked on the stairways and they basked again in the flashlights.

A. H. Loeb Not to See Son in Prison.

Mrs. Loeb will go to Joliet to visit Richard within a short time, it is believed, but Albert H. Loeb, his father, will never see Dick in prison, is the opinion of a man who for twenty years has been a close friend of the parents.

"It is not that Mr. Loeb has put Dick out of his heart," this friend explained. "Quite the contrary. But Mr. Loeb does not want to see his son, whom he loved deveotdly, under these circumstances. He prefers to keep him in his memory as the affectionate, laughing son he knew in his home.

"He is concerned as to how he failed so miserably to gain Dick's confidence. He thought he had it. They were very close friends. I have heard Dick go to the telephone many evenings and break engagements of his own because his father wanted him to play chess or to spend the evening with him.

"I do not believe Mr. Loeb will ever see Dick again. I am sure he will never go to Joliet to visit him.

"Arrangements are being made by one, and possibly two, of the psychiatrists who testified for the defense at the trial to go to Joliet to make a still more thorough and exhaustive study of the two boys who, they say, are unusual types of defectives.

Dr. Bernard Glueck of New York and possibly Dr. William Healy of Boston will go to Joliet to make the examination. The two boys will be studied as carefully and scientifically as Leopold was wont to study his ornithological specimens. As a result of the labors of the two psychiatrists certain phases of prisonology, particularly those bordering on "split personality" and paranoia, will be published.

Governor Has Pardoning Power.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 11.—It is within the power of the Governor to pardon Richard A. Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold Jr., according to a statement made in the executive office of Governor Small today.

"The law permits the Governor to pardon prisoners, and he would be legally permitted to pardon Leopold and Loeb," C. D. Sutton, Secretary to the Governor, said. He was emphatic in stating that a pardon was not in any way under consideration.

Judge Caverly would wipe away all court proceedings and charges and would restore the convicts to citizenship, it was explained. Commutation, a power that also rests with the Governor, would merely shorten the sentence.

ENRIGHT APPROVES SENTENCE.

Calls Decision in Franks Case "Substantial Justice."

The decision of Chief Justice Caverly imposing sentences for life and ninety-nine years on the slayers of Robert Franks was commended as "substantial justice" in a statement issued yesterday by Police Commissioner Enright. He described as "godless people" persons who contend that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. The statement follows:

"The judgment of John R. Caverly of the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois, in the Leopold-Loeb case, in which he imposed a penalty of life imprisonment on the charge of murder and ninety-nine years on the charge of kidnapping, will please or displease a large section of the public, according to their point of view, but most fair-minded persons will probably agree with Judge Caverly, provided they could be assured that the sentence would be carried out and that there will be no successful efforts made to obtain their release, as has occurred in so many cases of an equally notorious and serious character heretofore.

"His Honor undoubtedly took into consideration the fact that the prisoners at the bar were salmons; that through their counsel, they endeavored to save the State unnecessary expense by entering a plea of guilty, and only brought forward as it seems they were entitled to bring forward under the laws of Illinois, testimony which tended to raise some doubt as to their mental competency and full responsibility, in mitigation of punishment which might otherwise be inflicted. In all probability this same line of testimony or such other testimony as might have been brought forward had it been presented to a jury might have resulted in recommendation of mercy.

"A large part of the general public are not in favor of capital punishment, and the most severe punishment, short of capital punishment, which is life imprisonment has been imposed in this case. The double sentence imposed is obviously a precaution against any miscarriage of justice in this case.

"Judge Caverly has been submitted to a cruel ordeal in that upon him alone was placed all the responsibility in determining the measure of punishment and imposing the penalty in this case. No single individual, whether it be a Judge of our highest court or the Governor of a State, should be required to assume entire responsibility for every element of justice in a case of this kind.

"Of course there will be godless people who will use the judgment in this case to reiterate that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor, and that the wealth and influence of the parents of the accused weighed heavily in determining the judgment and penalty in this case, but all right thinking people will cordially agree that substantial justice has been administered and these criminals have been dealt with according to law."

LOEB'S BROTHER PUT TO WORK

Slayer's Father Decides Other Sons Shall Not Lect.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Sept. 11.—Albert H. Loeb, rather of Richard A. Loeb, who began at Joliet today his life term for the slaying of Robert Franks, has decided that none of his sons in the future shall be subject to the whims of fate and kidnapers. He has carried out his purpose already by placing his son Thomas, 13 years old, at real work on their 1,500-acre farm near this city. His older brother, Ernest, has been made manager of the farm, and spends his entire day directing the work on it.

Too much idleness, the parents believe, put Richard, their favorite, behind the bars of Joliet. Thomas must arise at dawn and report at the model dairy, where, before breakfast, he must carry milk from the stables to the churnery and do whatever other tasks the superintendent may assign.

This done, he goes to breakfast and afterward reports to the farm, where he works with the other hands, digging potatoes, husking corn, pitching hay or doing whatever may be required.

Not a Victory, Says Darrow.

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—Clarence Darrow does not believe it was a victory for him to have obtained life imprisonment for his clients. This was the statement he made today as Loeb and Leopold began serving their sentences.

Mr. Darrow arrived here this morning for a week's rest at the home of Albert H. Loeb, father of Richard. Sitting in the room of the splendid home, overlooking an inland lake, he made a gesture that took in the beautiful furnishings, and asked: "Don't you think Dick's island is not right when he gives this up for an iron-barred cell in Joliet?"

DECORATED GEN. ALLEN; NOW LANDS IN PRISON

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Stephane Otto, the Belgian Koepenick who, while representing himself as a special envoy for the King of the Belgians, decorated an American General in the presence of his troops at Coblenz some time ago, has been sentenced to six months in jail by the Paris Correctional Court on charges of swindling, theft, fraud, riding on a railroad without a ticket and other minor offenses.

The evidence showed that Otto, passing himself off variously as a son of Maeterlinck, nephew of a Cardinal, a Lieutenant aviator, a Russian student, and so on as circumstances dictated, operated all over France.

The prisoner (he had a Mezzogreen cedula). When only 15 years of age he was made captive by the Germans during their invasion of Belgium and condemned to death. Escaping, he joined the Belgian Army and fought in Flanders, where he was three times wounded. It was partly in consideration of his fine war record that the court let him off with a light sentence.

Stephen Otto, or Otto Stephana, otherwise known as Stephen Victor Otto Joseph de Beauvy, alias Vicomte de Beauvy, was described as a German born when he was sentenced to three months imprisonment in London in April, 1922, on a charge of returning to England after he had been deported. When he was arraigned on that charge the Police Inspector informed the Court that the prisoner was reported to have "decorated a distinguished American General" and that he subsequently had called at Buckingham Palace to seek an introduction to the Duke of York.

It was soon after the armistice that Otto, or Stephana, posing as a Belgian Major, was reported to have conferred the decoration of the Belgian Croix de Guerre on Major Gen. Henry T. Allen, Commander-in-Chief of the American Army of Occupation, before the assembled troops at Coblenz.

THE PLAY

By STARK YOUNG.

Lillian Foster in "Conscience."

CONSCIENCE, a play in a prologue, two acts and an epilogue, by Dan Mullally. At the Belmont Theatre.

Jeff Stewart	Ray E. Collins
Madeline	Lillian Foster
May Fallow	Rosemary King
Superintendent	Edward Power
Claude	Dan McCarthy

The wind and darkness blow in last night at the Belmont on a scene that derived from a genuine imagination. A man comes to his lonely cabin in the mountains, the storm roars outside, the bird in the cage caws and croaks. Visions from his life arise, the old doc with whom he had talked socialism and religion, the woman he had married, and then again the girl on her first visit to him. He knows that these are figures of the dead and that he struggles with solitude and insanity. The scene is in its conception is imaginative indeed; there is not enough imagination, however, for the writing of it, and a good deal of it is philosophy and platitude that has not arrived at drama. You almost expect a glowing theme, a play; but the writing spills all the wonder out of it.

The second scene is two years earlier. The man and his wife have furnished a house for themselves; he has been fired on account of his strike activities; he must leave to look for work in Butte. His wife must remain at home, and he will send for her in a few weeks. In the next act the place has become a kind of beauty house; the wife is about to leave for the larger chances of the city. Her husband returns, has been in prison, his letters have not been sent. The struggle ends by his killing her rather than let her go to ruin. And the last scene is the cabin again, the storm, the haunting visions, the croaking bird and the end.

After that first start the play's chances dropped considerably. But it may be said for Mr. Mullally that for theatrical effectiveness the writing in the more realistic parts of "Conscience" was a good deal better than his achievement in the places that promised more. The parting scene of the husband and wife was at times written accurately enough, though not overwhelmingly. The scene where the husband has come back and the wife, on the point of leaving, sparks what she has gone through, what she felt for him, what she sees ahead of her, was for ten minutes or more writing with striking convincingness.

But it was not easy to judge that ten minutes' writing because of Lillian Foster's share in it. She carried the moment into a clinching and absorbing reality. Shades of feeling and grades of reaction she got without a break in the emotional movement of the whole passages of the play, except in the little scene where she comes to visit the man, Miss Foster often forced, not very subtly, but somewhat beyond the artistic needs of the action. But in the scene where there was something to understake she played with talent and with what looked like a skill well learned in the theatre somewhere, if not in New York.

Ray E. Collins played the husband with a certain sincerity at least; his playing had not much interest or point, but it was, at any rate, as good as the part. As a story the length of Stevenson's "Markheim," no doubt "Conscience" would be fair enough as it stands, one is likely to find it a little more or a little less interesting than one finds Lillian Foster.

DAWES IN WISCONSIN.

There is a gallant air about the invasion of Wisconsin last night by General DAWES. He is as one seeking out the enemy on his own chosen territory. Having prepared a speech wholly devoted to an attack upon Senator LA FOLLETTE, he goes to Milwaukee to deliver it. All this is in keeping with the General's character as an honorable foeman and a gentleman unafraid. Having set out to fight LA FOLLETTE, he defiantly moves to fight him where he is strongest. Chivalry could go no further.

It must be said, however, that General DAWES is better at striking a generous and fearless pose than he is at expounding the Constitution or deducing the lessons of history and of political philosophy. The portions of his address given up to those subjects are unhappily a little dull. They are not well-fitted to set the popular imagination on fire. The General is a little too facile in affirming what "history teaches," and does not always accurately define his terms. He has discovered our old friend LE BON and the psychology of the crowd, and tries to freshen up matter which was getting stale twenty years ago. This sort of thing is not the General's forte. It would not be right to demand that he be profane on the stump. But he has taught us to expect from him something more spicy and pungent than his speech on LA FOLLETTE'S native heath.

In its essentials it is undeniably sound. General DAWES stands up for the independence and integrity of the courts as stoutly as President COOLIDGE and Mr. JOHN W. DAVIS have done it. He makes the La Follette proposal to deprive Judges of the power to uphold the Bill of Rights against encroaching legislative acts the head and front of the Senator's offending, and directs all his batteries upon this position of the man whom he calls the "master demagogue." The General, moreover, makes a direct appeal to the Republicans of Wisconsin to vote as they believe on this great issue in November, irrespective of any local preference for LA FOLLETTE.

This portends a real effort by the Republican managers to win Wisconsin away from its overlord. There will be a genuine struggle in behalf of the Coolidge electors as against the La Follette electors from now till election day. If the Democratic Party in Wisconsin had not so long been only a name and shadow, it might have an excellent chance to snatch a plurality for itself while the Lafollettians and the regular Republicans in that State were cutting each others' throats.

REMOVING THE RUHR CUSTOMS BARRIER.

The razing yesterday of the customs barrier that separated the Ruhr from the rest of Germany ends one of the economic restrictions of the Ruhr occupation which to many Germans was the most irksome. It shows also that the schedule of evacuation is being carried out on time. Incidentally, it furnishes—or should furnish—food for reflection to those who less than a year ago were still calling the gods to witness that France was in the Ruhr to stay and sought only the dismemberment of Germany. All the dire predictions, all the references to NAPOLEON and LOUIS XIV. as the real prototypes of the modern Frenchman, all the fearful tales of France gathering into her hands the coke and iron of Europe and forevermore holding the peoples of that Continent under her steel-clad heel, have been conveniently forgotten. They served their purpose of misrepresentation at the time. But those who really believed them have been shown to be poor prophets.

Although the economic barrier which has now been removed was thought by many Germans to be the principal source of their troubles, what really caused the greatest dislocation of the economic life of unoccupied Germany was the fact that, thanks to passive resistance, it was suddenly cut off from the supplies which it had formerly obtained freely from the Ruhr. That region has been rightly described as the industrial heart of Germany. From it the rest of Germany obtained most of its coal, iron and steel products for further manufacture. The complete shut-down of work and transportation produced by passive resistance put an end to all shipment to unoccupied territory. When production was later resumed, although the taxes levied on goods going out of the Ruhr were heavy, they did not form an insurmountable obstacle to the revival of Germany's economic life. The improved conditions which accompanied the stabilization of the currency by the introduction of the rentenmark were partly due to the freer movement of goods along the normal channels between the Ruhr and the rest of Germany, following the resumption of work.

The customs barrier, however, was a great nuisance. It involved delays for examination in all traffic, and it intensified the dislike of the German people for the forces of occupation by the mere fact that this barrier was artificially erected where none had ever existed before. If all goods passing in and out of New York by land had to be examined and tolls collected at Yonkers and Newark by customs officials, Americans on both sides of the line would consider the procedure insupportable.

Final evacuation of the Ruhr will not be complete until Oct. 22. On that date the Dawes plan will be formally in operation. As each step is carried out it can only be hoped that those who have questioned Germany's good faith will prove as mistaken as those who were convinced that France went into the Ruhr to stay and to dominate Europe with the sword.

MOBILIZATION.

The word has made its way into the common vocabulary of the world since the beginning of the World War. In America it was seldom or never used except in military circles or in certain financial transactions. It had also a restricted use among surgeons. In Europe, to be sure, it was in the dread background of all peaceful domestic and civic life. It meant a definite thing. It meant the act of transformation from a state of peace to a war footing. Those who were in Europe in the late July and the early August of 1914 know that for a few days it was the first word in the thoughts and on the lips of millions. In France, it was stated by one correspondent that the days of the week and of the month did not exist and that a new calendar was created. Every event was dated from the hour or day of mobilization.

That terrifying meaning still clings to the word, though it has been taken over, as many a warlike word, for peaceful duty. The chief objection made to the proposal of a "mobilization day," which has been euphemized into "Defense Day," was that the word mobilization still has in the minds of many the war-menacing implication. But this is no longer warranted in the higher definition to which it has been lifted in the conception of societies and nations. What mobilization means is a movement of all the forces of a people under a unified purpose for what is assumed to be a common good. It is not mere mobility, for mobility may mean only vagrancy. It is purposeful, destinated mobility. It is through such mobilization that the many cease to be a mob of individuals, a mobile vulgus, and become something that is beyond the sum of the individuals, as when the parts of a body, that are members one of another, become as one in some heroic, self-forgetful act of service.

Military mobilization has suggested the method by which peace is to be promoted. "Military" itself meant originally, in its root word, only an "association," a moving together. It came to have a purely warlike meaning because all early associations of men were in war. But the word "military," too, has been given a wider scope by the service of such men as General GOETHALS in digging the Panama Canal, General GORGAS in fighting tropical diseases, General WOOD in cleaning up a pestilent city, Colonel HASKELL in feeding millions of starving people, and the army fliers in circling the globe with the organized assistance of the navy. It is to the War Department or the Navy Department that we turn first in such extreme emergencies as flood, fire, famine or earthquake. It is to them that we look for demonstrations of what the gases of warfare can do in destroying the pests that are the real enemies of mankind. The way of progress is not, as Dr. BAEKELAND said in his presidential address to the American Chemical Society, to stop the use of chemistry as a means of ending war, but to unite in promoting what he calls "real religion"—"the greater week-day religion of deeds." What is needed is the extension of the method of mobilizing and the use of all the righteous forces of a nation in the peaceful promotion of the ideals for which it has had to fight in the past with the old weapons of the militia. This is not to stop defensive measures. It is to extend the associated effort to those ends that will make technically military defense less and less necessary. It is to this end that a supplementary "mobilization" day is being proposed by the churches of America.

The philosopher WILLIAM JAMES suggested the mobilization of an army of those who are willing to pay a blood-tax for the privilege of belonging to a "collectivity" superior in some respects to the individuals who compose it. Under such a plan of national constructive preparedness every one would be conscripted to give some useful service; every selfish luxury and waste and indulgence would be commandeered; every useful skill and science and art and industry would be called to the colors periodically to account for their stewardship; and those who urge pacifistic measures must show that they have found "the moral equivalent of war." The Secretary of War goes back to Colonial times for his precedent. He will find in JAMES'S remarkable essay the plan of a more general and constructive as well as defensive mobilization.

THE STEUBEN SOCIETY BLOC.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE received with proper gratitude the delegation that brought him the blessings and the promises of the Steuben Society, inheritor of the purposes of the German-American Alliance. Its spokesman, as impervious to humor as his hero, lauded Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S "shining qualities of conservative statesmanship and unbending devotion to the principles of constitutional government." Mr. LA FOLLETTE spoke of the "common unifying purpose" that inspired immigration from various countries of Europe to the United States. But the purpose of the Steuben Society is not unifying but dividing. Its essential object, shared in no degree by the great mass of Americans of German origin, is what one of its flaming enthusiasts has called "das Deutschtum geeint und einig." Mr. LA FOLLETTE'S intense hatred of war—against Germany; his theory that international bankers are the makers of war, his opposition to the League of Nations and his desire for the revision of the Treaty of Versailles, endear him to the Steubenites. His Federation of Labor friends have different views. Third parties make strange bedfellows.

In German affairs the main interest of the Steuben Society stands with Junkerdom. It overrules the decision of the Reichstag, condemns the Dawes plan and the German loan. A queer lot of wrongheads! It sides with the reactionaries and destructionists in Germany. Here it seeks to create a solid political racial bloc. To noisy little obscurities it gives their hour of strut and rave. It promises Mr. LA FOLLETTE mythical millions of votes. The vast majority of men and women of German descent in this country have nothing but contempt for these intriguers, these separatists from the united composite American people, sprung of many stocks, each proud of its overseas traditions and inheritance and of its share through peace and war in the common American achievement.

Americans of German ancestry are Republicans, Democrats, Progressives, Socialists, as they think and as they please, like most of the rest of us; and no society can speak for them or bind them to any policies or candidates. It has been noticeable, however, that, apart from the inconsiderable number of Socialists, these citizens have been largely conservative on the great economic and financial questions that have arisen from time to time. Mr. LA FOLLETTE mentions CARL SCHURZ as one of the prompters of his Senatorial aspirations. That honored name recalls vividly, among other many high public services, the penetrating thought and crystalline expression with which Mr. SCHURZ exposed the fallacies of unsound money. Neither the economic nor the constitutional vagaries of Mr. LA FOLLETTE seem likely to appeal to what the Steubenite orator, trying to commit it to that collector of radical projects, called "the most loyal, modest and conservative element in the American complex."

CLEANSING THE WATERS.

The recent statement of the Navy Supervisor of New York Harbor that garbage, since June 1, 1924, has been dumped at a point eighteen miles from Long Island and twenty-one and a half miles from the Jersey coast, explains why the beaches on both these shores have been remarkably free this Summer from the filth which polluted them at the beginning of last year. The combination of circumstances—that there has been much less garbage and that the scows have been dumped far out to sea—justifies by inference the claim made last year that during the early part of the Summer the scows were being dumped near shore. The authorities responsible for the change this year are to be congratulated on the improvement.

At the same time comes the report of the Commissioner of Health to the effect that the waters off Coney Island, the Rockaways and Staten Island show no traces of disease germs and are safe for bathing. This news, though somewhat belated, is welcome, but should not be taken as an excuse for dropping the agitation in favor of ending pollution of the river and coastal waters. The Supervisor of New York Harbor, while asserting that garbage, except such as was thrown overboard from passing ships, did not reach the beaches, pointed out that the true remedy is the establishment of large city incinerators. In this he undoubtedly has the support of the majority of civic engineers. It is as true of the disposal of other refuse as of garbage that the city, and for that matter the State and nation, is notoriously backward and inefficient, and that the need for controlling sewage and the refuse from factories is fully as important as is the disposition of garbage. Pollution of the coastal waters by garbage and by oil (which has become rarer since the new regulations against indiscriminate dumping of oil refuse) is more unpleasant to the eye, but probably in the long run less damaging to the health than the filth which is poured into the Hudson River and New York Harbor every minute of every day. It is all very well to pronounce the waters of Manhattan unsanitary and forbid bathing in them, but this does not prevent their being used by thousands of youngsters, while the pollution does prevent such use from becoming a privilege eagerly to be sought instead of an act of mischief to be performed only when and where possible. Paris and Vienna are on large rivers. Not only do thousands of people swim in them, but many persons fish in the heart of the city. The same was once and can again be true of New York.

So mad has been the race for industrial power in this country that we have done much to ruin our natural bounties. The story is an old one. But its application in the case of New York has been so neglected that the need for its reconsideration cannot be sufficiently emphasized. Here is New York City with inadequate parks and endless miles of waterfront. Only a portion of this is given over to shipping. The rest, which should afford a recreation ground for the city's children, is utterly neglected, and the water is fouled by every conceivable means. It is not enough to have the beaches at Coney and the Rockaways free from garbage and the waters free from germs. The cleansing process should be extended into the North and East Rivers.

THE EXPLOITED FARMER.

Senator SHIPSTEAD of Minnesota has just exposed the machinations of Wall Street. He declares that "a small group of financiers in control of the farm products market have inflated prices during the past two months in an attempt to fool the farmer into believing that prosperity is at hand." But the case of the exploited farmer is even worse than the Senator thinks. The Department of Agriculture has recently estimated how many hundreds of millions more farm crops are worth this year than last. Some have even said that, including the gain in land values, the farmers are billions better off than they were. Professor DAVID FRIDAY, addressing the farmers' banks established by Federal legislation and cash, though well known as at least a former "friend of the farmers," pointed out that the farmers' dollar is increasing in purchasing power and that this change in conditions will probably favor the farmers through a term of years. It may be added that the Federal farmers' banks have just reduced the rate of interest on loans and that the rise in the value of farms, the mere increase, is $28,000,000,000 above 1900, or more than the estimated value of all the railways of the United States.

It is painful to recite such pitiful details of the farmers' misery, but worse is to be added. The interests are passing dividends on the stock of companies which buy the farmers' wool at prices inflated by the tariff. The enemies of the farmers are crowding the freight cars to a total above a million weekly at the latest reported figures. But Senator SHIPSTEAD speaks up for the friendless victims of "prosperity propaganda." Those who believe him will hasten to realize their profits at the expense of the interests which are inflating farm values on the flimsy excuse of a shortage of yields in both the United States and Canada. If the interests are so stubborn as further to inflate values on the chance that frosts may reduce the maturing crops, those who sell before the top is reached will only prove their friendship for the farmers by the profits which they sacrifice. The farmers' enemies are those who call their attention to facts. The farmers' real friends are those who advise them to recoup their losses by going into politics.

DETERRENT AND CURE.

Psychiatrists have hastened to comment on the Leopold-Loeb sentence apparently in bland disregard of the fact that Judge CALVERLY brushed away the entire structure of their more or less scientific formulas. The Court declared explicitly that it was not in the least influenced by the elaborate array of expert testimony, and that such mercy as was involved in a sentence less than death was dictated by the age of the defendants. Perhaps public policy would be a more precise description than mercy. Judge CALVERLY found that public sentiment in Illinois, as revealed by practice, is averse to inflicting the death penalty on youthful offenders.

It is, therefore, beside the mating for the specialists to debate whether LOEB and LEOPOLD are curable or incurable. The two boys have not been sent to an asylum but to the penitentiary, not as sick souls upon a chance of cure but as depraved souls into permanent exile from the community. Judge CALVERLY has been particularly anxious to provide, in so far as the present can commit the future, against any attempt to set in motion the machinery of commutation or pardon. The full story of the case is to be spread on the record for all future agencies to learn that the two youths escaped death not because of any question of their mental state or because of any sense of "mitigation" of the degree of guilt, but simply because the Court which sentenced them was of the opinion that life imprisonment was the proper punishment, from the point of view of the public interest. It is clear that, if at any time during their perpetual incarceration the mental health of the two condemned youths should break down and necessitate their removal to a hospital for the insane, this would mean only their return to prison in case they are cured. There is no danger of another Thaw case.

It is misleading for one specialist to say: "They were subject to mental disturbances that would sweep them off their feet. It is probable they could be cured, and so imprisonment is better than execution." Quite aside from the fact that an equally eminent expert declares that "there is no possibility of curing these youths," the first statement carries the suggestion of cure and freedom. If abolition of capital punishment is to be understood always with the chance of the criminal found "cured" and turned loose on society on the basis of fallible expert opinion, there is bound to be a reaction in favor of capital punishment.

Cases, criminal and civil, are continually being decided by courts on special points which mass opinion too often chooses to overlook. The Supreme Court has again and again decided cases on technicalities not bearing on the merits of the case, but this has not prevented the winning side from claiming a victory for its "cause." That is a possible danger connected with the Chicago decision. Judge CALVERLY would have nothing to do with the mental experts and has said so, but public memory may fasten upon the great body of scientific testimony and think of the outcome as a victory for the alienist system of defense. But if the Court's contemptuous dismissal of the experts is kept in mind, the effect may be the opposite. It may come to exercise a salutary influence on our criminal court procedure by putting scientific theory in its proper place.

A Presidential campaign cannot be conducted without a good deal of money. Thus far, the National Democratic Committee has received very little. Those "Wall Street men" of Senator WHEELER'S invention who forced the nomination of Mr. DAVIS and were going to try to buy his election have not turned up at headquarters. There the funds are low and the appeals for legitimate expenses of a nation-wide campaign are urgent. All contributions will be promptly acknowledged, and the amounts given with the names of the donors will be made public from time to time. Mr. JAMES W. GERARD is the Treasurer and his address is the Hotel Belmont, Forty-second Street and Park Avenue.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Pathetic Appeal to Klansmen.

Judging from the vehemence shown by The Searchlight, the Atlanta paper which is the highest authority on Ku Klux doctrines, in urging the Klansmen everywhere to subscribe for itself and other Klan papers and for all the assorted literature of the order, the gown and the hood trade is not what it was and there is need among the officials of revenue from other sources. If The Searchlight is a fair specimen of the sort of papers it advises and almost orders the Klansmen to buy, their response must be reluctant, for a duller paper or one less useful to its readers, if they want anything in the way of world or local news, it would be hard even to imagine.

The Searchlight admits that it and the other Klan papers cannot live if the Klansmen do not subscribe, for nobody else will, and therefore it preaches support in the name of DUTY, emphasized by capitals. And if they do it their reward is certain, for then "the growth and success of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan is (sic) assured." What more could a Klansman ask than that? On the other hand, they read that "if you hesitate the partisan press, undisturbed, will continue to spread its untruths against your organization, and Protestants will continue to doubt the need or the aim of the great American organization."

Just how the disturbing of the "partisan press" is to be effected by reading the Klan papers is not disclosed. That probably is one of the best-guarded secrets. And it is a fact that the Klan has and always has had what in England is called a "poor press." There are some "partisan" papers afraid to say much of anything against it, but for out-and-out favor or defense it has to depend entirely on its own "organs," which are not newspapers at all, but merely propaganda sheets.

A Strange Sort of Negligence.

Almost everybody can think instantly of at least one person for whom it would be most unlikely, if not impossible, to forget that he had some money in large sums or small, on deposit in a bank. Yet it is evident that there are not only a few persons, but a large number, who, for one reason or another, pay no attention to such deposits for so long that the banks are obliged under the law to classify their accounts as "unclaimed" and to advertise the fact as an invitation to anybody with a right to the money to come and get it or at least show enough interest in it to make the account again a live one.

An advertisement of this kind in THE TIMES covered nearly a page the other day, and yet it contained, in small type, only the names of these negligent people, the addresses that were, but apparently no longer are, theirs, the date when they made their original deposits, and the amounts now credited to them. That was for only a single bank, and not a savings bank either, where happenings of this kind might be expected to be more frequent than in banks that carry checking accounts.

Many of the names, but not all of them, indicated that the advertised depositor probably was a recent arrival in the country, but just such persons seem least likely to be careless with their cash possessions. The amounts in these dormant accounts were for the most part small, but among them were several that went a little way up into the thousands.

It is not probable that actual forgetfulness explains these apparent abandonments of money. The death of friendless persons is frequent in a city like this, and in such cases the distant relatives, if there were any, might not know anything about the deposit. So attentive to possibilities, however, is the whole tribe of heirs, real or would-be, that it is indeed mysterious so many deposits should remain so long unclaimed.

The banks do not worry, and, except for the cost of periodic advertising, which they can deduct if demonstrable claims ever are made, they have in their hands the full amount of these accounts, with no other responsibility than that of being ready to pay them on authorized demand. And often the authorized demand never will come.

Sugar From Laboratory Is Promised.

No very high or confident expectations will be aroused by the announcement at the convention of chemists in Ithaca that progress toward the making of sugar by other than the life processes of plants has been sufficient to warrant the belief that in time man no longer will have to depend on "nature" for this valuable and important part of his food. During the war the Germans of necessity resorted to many kinds of "ersatz" products from the laboratories of their skilled chemists, but it never has been claimed that even one of these substitutes was really satisfactory.

A synthetic sugar is well within the bounds of scientific possibility, and it may seem on chemical analysis to be the same as the sugar we have now. Digestion, however, is more than likely to discover a minute but important difference between the natural and the artificial. It is not that science cannot better nature; it has done that thousands of times since a savage first discovered that fire could serve as well as hurt him. But as regards foods and many other things, the betterments of science are in the way of changing rather than in that of creating.

Claimed as State Property.

Such suspicions as there may be regarding the truth of the report that the lost books of LIVY have been found evidently are not shared by the Italian Government. At any rate, it assumes that Professor DE MARTINO-FUSCO has found something or other of value and it has taken steps to prevent him from getting more than glory out of his find. In other words, it has informed him with emphasis that such manuscripts as he has come within the reach of the law covering "antiquities," and that he cannot sell them or treat them as if they were private property.

This is right enough from the Italian point of view, but the precious books would be safe in the hands of anybody who would be eager to obtain them, and, wherever they went, they soon would be at the service of all the scholars and historians who are interested in them. If, as seems to be the case, their discoverer is transcribing his find in preparation for printing and publication, as he is reputed to be competent for such work and desirous of doing it, there seems to be no reason why he should not be allowed to keep his treasure and manage its rescue from long oblivion.

Why Americans Do Not Vote.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In most of the European countries where I have extensively traveled there is no such thing as "non-voters." The people rush to vote, and those who happen to be out of town travel many miles in order to exercise that great privilege, as they call it, that the country extends to its citizens. The fact that 50 per cent. of the people in this country do not care to vote aroused my curiosity to such an extent as to secure the reason of every "non-voter" that I have been coming in contact with ever since that question has been stirred up through the papers.

Eighty per cent. of them gave me the following reasons for staying out of the polls:

1. They refuse to be led; they want to elect their own choice and not what the one or the other party indicates.

2. They do not know the persons who run occasionally for the various offices. A name does not mean anything to them.

3. They seem to be tired of the idea that officers-elect run under a certain policy, and when they come in power they adopt another, entirely the opposite.

The fundamental rules of a democratic form of government are the following, and it is up to the readers of these lines to decide whether the 50 per cent. of those interviewed were right or not:

The principle of true democracy is the will of the people. The etymology of the word, coming from the Greek, means: Demos, people, and kratseo, to rule.

The ultimate object of such a will is the infinite freedom of the citizens; such freedom obtained through judicial equality to all citizens, regardless of class, race or creed.

The fundamental covenant, the typical organization, corresponding to the energy of such means is the immediate election of the rulers of the people, without representatives or proxies; in one word, without intermediaries.

Athens attained once this dear type of democracy. Other cities that had come near, or have been Carthagenas and ancient Roma.

VOICES.

I lie
Wide-eyed on my bed at night
And hear the killdeer's pitiful cry
Piercingly flung from his lone, mysterious flight;

Or the sleepy trill of a late little sparrow bird
Deep-hidden away in the cedar tree—
Or was it you I heard,
At last, my truant, my chickadee?

Or, starting awake
From a shuddering dream,
I am soothed by the sound the crickets make,
Patiently stitching at Summer's monotonous seam.

PLAYING THE SAMARITAN.

Foreign Policy of Charity Instead of Cooperation Is Condemned.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Speaking in Baltimore on Saturday at the unveiling of a monument to Lafayette, President Coolidge took occasion to defend his Administration upon the conduct of our foreign affairs. Said he:

To be independent, to my mind, does not mean to be isolated, to be the Priest or the Levite, but rather to be the Good Samaritan. There is no real independence save as we secure it through the law of service; the course of our country in recent years has been an example of these principles. We have avoided entanglements by reserving to our own decision when and how we should help.

In another recent speech in New York City Mr. Coolidge said:

Complete independence means complete coordination and cooperation. From this principle arises the oft-repeated law of service.

Now Mr. Coolidge has been preaching a great deal recently about this law of service, but I am wondering if he has thought as much about the practical application of it as he has about its theory; this is puzzling, for if complete independence (and he might have added self-respect) means complete coordination and cooperation, how can we obtain the same by engaging at will as a free lance in this intermittent contact with the rest of the civilized world in the role of the Good Samaritan fearing entanglements.

Again, is it by request or is it with Divine authority or presumptuous pride we would assume this role of the cautious Good Samaritan.

The world does not desire us to arrogate to ourselves this supreme patronizing leadership of mankind, which would result in neither lasting help to others nor moral or economic benefit to ourselves; it does want us, however, to assume and not to shirk our just share of the great burden of underwriting civilization in complete and constant coordination and cooperation with the rest of the world, and in no other way can we attain our highest and best aims, in no other way will the Stars and Stripes ever mean so much, in no other way will we be raised again to the high inspiring level of aspiration and purpose, in no other way will we ever preserve our self-respect and our independence.

No doubt, there was some such desire on his part (possibly not unalloyed) when in his speech accepting the Republican nomination he said that when the reparations settlement was in operation he intended to propose another conference to limit armaments. But to all those who have been following the proceeding of the Assembly of the League of Nations during the past week it will be apparent that these "Good Samaritan" aspirations of our present Administration in this respect were very politely but very firmly knocked into a cocked hat, and Mr. Coolidge will not be privileged to stage another Washington side show with a few countries for the glory of the Republican Party at the further expense of the prestige of the country. Not again will the Republican Administration be permitted to advertise that they had started something which was already under way in the League as they did in the case of the Washington arms conference.

The next conference will be called by and handled through that world (not European, as some of our politicians delight to misrepresent it) association known as the League of Nations and which organization some day the United States of America will join, some day when we are again led by great leaders, by statesmen instead of politicians. When we do we will be welcomed in the family of sovereign nations as a big brother and not as a cautious, unofficial Good Samaritan who, under reactionary guidance and between impulses to help, displays bad taste and chooses inopportune times to parade up and down in military attire while a convalescent world is now assembled in Geneva earnestly and prayerfully endeavoring to cooperate in a practical effort to end all war.

The day will come when we will look back with shame upon these lean years of degrading timidity, egoism and partisanship, when American statesmanship was at a low ebb possessing in no marked degree either common courtesy or common sense.

Lafayette's Surgeon.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your delightful article on the Marquis de Lafayette, published in THE TIMES on Aug. 10, and the subsequent letters in regard to this noted French nobleman and his visit to America have been of particular interest to me since I am personally well acquainted with the descendant of that eminent surgeon, Dr. George Glentworth of Philadelphia, who performed the operation on General de Lafayette at the Indian Queen Tavern in that city, Sept. 11, 1777.

The descendant, Marguerite Linton Glentworth, who makes her home in New York, is not only in possession of a letter to her distinguished ancestor, Dr. Glentworth, from the Marquis, thanking him for his services, but also of the instruments the surgeon used on that occasion. It was this Dr. Glentworth who was appointed by the First Continental Congress as senior physician and Surgeon Director of the General Hospitals of the United States from 1776 to 1780, and to whom the late Dr. S. Weir Mitchell referred in his book, "The Red City" as "the friend of Lafayette and Washington."

I happened to be in Paris last Summer when Miss Glentworth was there, and it was gratifying to hear of her being received by the President of France on account of her ancestor's service to the Marquis. Many Americans, however, do not seem to know the name of the surgeon who performed the operation.

The Multiplying Pilgrims.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was much interested in your splendid editorial in today's TIMES on the "Mayflower Descendants." I had been wondering why the officers of the Mayflower Society were surprised at the increase in membership. There are perhaps as many more lineal descendants of the "one hundred and two" Mayflower passengers that have never thought of joining that society. The Brewster Genealogy alone (descendants of Elder Brewster, their leader) occupies two large volumes. The National Society, Daughters American Revolution, has many chapters in each State and is still growing. Yet the rules to be observed in joining that society are rigid and the Revolutionary War record of each member's ancestor has to be verified in the State archives.

PREDICTS A BOOM IN GASOLINE POWER

T. A. Boyd of General Motors Says Future Depends on Progress in 'Cracking' Petroleum.

ALCOHOL FUEL FOR AUTOS

American Chemical Society Also Hears of New Detonator for High Explosives and Other Inventions.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 11.—National organization of chemical education is sought by the American Chemical Society, which, it was announced at today's meeting of the sixty-eighth convention, is encouraging the formation throughout the country of State associations of chemistry teachers. The national correlation of high school and college chemistry and organization of a national journal of chemical education are also sought by the society.

The petroleum section of the society listened today to several reports and demonstrations of importance to the automotive industry.

T. A. Boyd of the General Motors Research Corporation at Dayton told the petroleum section that the future of automotive transportation in America depended essentially on progress in the cracking of petroleum, regardless of political controversy, patent litigation or other factors. Mr. Boyd foresees that within the next few years the efficiency of internal combustion engines may be tremendously increased. Under the most favorable conditions now the utilization of gasoline in an automobile is less than 15 per cent. efficient.

An enormous increase in demand can be anticipated and this can only be met by development of the cracking process.

The search for a remedy for crank case dilution, which, it is claimed, is costing owners of automobiles millions annually, aroused special interest on the part of members of this division of the society in the investigation of C. M. Larson of New York, who described the invention of what he called a "pocket laboratory," consisting of two simple devices by which a car owner may determine when his oil has become unfit for further use and may be considered dangerous. The two methods for testing oil in the crank case are by specific gravity and by its viscosity; the new instruments he described today test these factors.

The results of practical tests on automobiles, tractors and stationary engines of the use of alcohol and alcohol-ether mixtures under different operating conditions, were described by E. C. Freeland of New Orleans. He said the tests proved that alcohol or alcohol-ether could be used successfully as motor fuels in engines which have been designed for gasoline or kerosene without any radical changes to the engine, and that in some respects the new fuels are superior to the petroleum products.

A new detonator for TNT, called a booster detonator, was described by the inventor, Bennett Grotta, of Tampa, Fla. He said that by using this detonator TNT, picric acid and other high explosives can be shot off with greater speed and power. The device, said by officials of the National Research Council to be entirely new, is called an improvement over war time devices.

Many of the industries of ancient Egypt are quite comparable to those of today, according to the records read on the walls of the tombs of kings and reported to the Chemical Society today by Professor Arthur W. Taylor of Salem High School, Salem, Mass.

Glass blowing was practiced in Thebes in 3500 B. C., and pottery was made from clay in 1300 B. C. in practically the same manner in which these arts are practiced today. The Egyptians, the records indicate, had standard weights and measures. We are following largely the same methods of the ancients, but by the application of science to raw materials we can now in a few minutes produce thousands of glass bottles in less time than the ancients could blow one.

HERRIOT ACTS ON RUSSIA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Premier Herriot is making haste slowly on recognition of the Russian Government. Before he left for Geneva he let it be known that on his return he would take steps and today he announced that he had appointed a commission to study and confer with the Russians on the guarantees and conditions under which normal diplomatic and economic relations can be resumed between France and Russia.

That is somewhat different from the system of MacDonald. Herriot's reasons may be charged up to domestic politics. Himself a partisan for the immediate recognition of Russia, as he said so often during his campaign, Herriot has to deal with a Senate pretty much controlled by Poincaré. The Nationalists contend that before giving the Soviets the benefit of recognition France should get the benefit of assurances as to some $5,000,000,000 which Russia owes the French Government and French investors.

In appointing the commission today Herriot must have intended to take a step to meet the claims of French holders of Russian securities. Senator de Monzie, a pronounced partisan of the recognition of the Soviets, will head the commission, but it will also include former Ambassador to Russia Noulens as representative of the French bondholders.

No announcement was made as to how the commission will work. That Moscow will not insist upon a de jure recognition before opening the discussions was indicated by the presence here of a Russian commissar at the Hotel Ritz for three weeks waiting to talk to some one.

CLAIM SHARE IN LEWIS GUN.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Title to patents of the Lewis automatic machine gun, used exclusively during the World War, was questioned in a petition filed with the Supreme Court today by Samuel N. McClean and other stockholders of the former McClean Arms and Ordnance Company.

The petitioners claim that M. A. Bradley and other directors of the McClean company received a secret report from Colonel I. W. Lewis, who conducted experiments for the company, that by the combination of the Lewis air cooler with the McClean gun, a formidable weapon could be produced for use in the World War. The directors withheld this information from the minority stockholders, the petition says, purchased a patent, and with Colonel Lewis as a partner organized the Automatic Arms Company. The company, the petition alleges, received enormous profits in royalties from the United States and the Allies during the war.

The minority stockholders claim they lost $400,000 and ten years' effort by sale of the original McClean patent, which they seek to have set aside. The petition asks the Supreme Court to review the case which was decided in favor of the respondents by the Northern District Court of Ohio and the Court of Appeals of the Sixth Circuit.

Fritz Fehrenfeld, who alternates with Lee Baker in portraying the part of the Archer in "The Miracle," and Idea, Baroness von Koppen, who was one of the nuns in the same play last season, were married in the Municipal Building yesterday afternoon, attended by Lady Diana Manners and Morris Gest. The ceremony was performed by James J. McCormick, First Deputy City Clerk, in the office of Chief Clerk Michael F. Cruise.

The wedding was to have taken place at noon, but the couple were delayed by a taxicab accident at Broadway and Fifty-eighth Street, in which the Baroness slightly injured her left ankle.

The marriage was the result of a childhood friendship of the couple in Berlin. The romance was renewed when they met again at the first rehearsals for "The Miracle." The Baroness is the daughter of Lothar, Baron von Koppen, who is now dead. Her mother is now traveling abroad. She is 19 years old, was born at Garden City, L. I., and has been living at 316 West Seventieth Street. In the marriage license issued Wednesday she gave her occupation as a writer.

CRAIG STANDS FIRM ON ULSTER BOUNDARY

Both Belfast and Dublin Are Offended by Lloyd George's Latest Speeches.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Lord Birkenhead's letter to Lord Balfour has as yet made no difference in Ulster's determination not to appoint representation on the Boundary Commission. Sir James Craig arrived at Southampton today from a visit to the Baltic and said in an interview:

"I noted with pleasure the publication of Lord Birkenhead's letter to Lord Balfour, though it makes no difference whatever in my attitude in refusing to appoint a representative on the Boundary Commission. For one, among many other reasons, to do so would take away from us the right of appeal against any decision that the Boundary Commission, if ever set up, might formulate."

A meeting of the Ulster Cabinet will be held on Tuesday at Craig's country home, Streatley-on-the-Thames. Important decisions are expected.

BELFAST, Sept. 11.—Lloyd George's adherence to Lord Birkenhead's interpretation of article 12 of the Anglo Irish treaty is more than canceled in the opinion of local Unionist organs by his pledge that the Liberal Party will support the Government's proposed boundary bill. "He has taken his place among the enemies of Ulster," writes the Belfast News Letter.

DUBLIN, Sept. 11.—Free State official opinion is offended and perhaps disappointed by Lloyd George's concurrence in Lord Birkenhead's views. The Freeman's Journal writing with some bitterness on Lloyd George's declaration that Great Britain must keep faith with Ireland says that there is "no great difference between sneaking out of a bond and applying an illegitimate influence on the court that has to interpret the bond."

The public, however, remains much calmer than this heated comment would suggest.

GEN. DUNN ELECTED VETERANS' LEADER

NATIONAL HOME DONATED

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 11.—Brig. Gen. John Dunn, retired, of Boston, was elected Commander in Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States at the twenty-fifth annual national encampment here today on the Garden Pier. The new leader defeated Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett after Benedict M. Holden of Hartford, Conn., had withdrawn in favor of Dunn after the second ballot. The final vote was Dunn 464, Brett 356.

General Dunn, a lawyer, enlisted in the Massachusetts Militia in 1888. He served in Cuba and the Philippines, on the Mexican border in 1916 and as Lieut. Col., 101st Infantry, 26th Division, in France. He was retired as a Brigadier General of the Massachusetts National Guard in 1921. He is 55 years old.

Charles E. Dodson of Norfolk, Va., was elected Senior Vice Commander in Chief by acclamation when Anton Stephan of Washington, who was nominated for re-election, withdrew after the defeat of General Brett. Arthur C. Bennett of Bridgeport, Conn., was elected Junior Vice Commander in Chief over Robert Lee Murphy of Lexington, Ky.

The veterans were greatly disappointed on learning that General John J. Pershing would not review the Defense Day demonstration here tomorrow. General Pershing spent several days here incognito but left this afternoon for Washington.

The gift of a site and buildings in Michigan for a national home for members and their dependents was greeted with cheers at the convention today. The deed is for the Grand River Stock Farms at Eaton Rapids. The farm covers 472 acres and the land and buildings are valued at $100,000. The gift was made by Corey J. Spencer of Jackson, Mich.

The encampment condemned pacifism in a resolution today and urged passage of legislation prohibiting seditious acts. Another resolution asks conscription of all of the nation's resources in case of a national emergency.

Senator Says We Also Will Gain Through Increased Business to Ensue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The operation of the Dawes plan in the adjustment of German reparations will stimulate trade in Europe, increase that Continent's purchasing power and thus enlarge the foreign markets of the United States, in the opinion of Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, who was a delegate from the Senate to the Inter-Parliamentary Union which met at Berne, Switzerland.

Owing to the conditions under which the Dawes plan has begun to function, Senator Curtis said he looks for a reawakening of world business and he predicted an era of good times for the United States.

The Dawes plan is regarded in Europe as the greatest piece of constructive work of modern times, Senator Curtis said, adding:

"Interests represented at the meeting of the Inter-Parliamentary Union differed as to the effect it will have upon the various nations, but it was generally accepted as the best interpretation presented for the economic rehabilitation of Europe and the world. All believed it would be a wonderful help in restoring pre-war conditions.

"I am sure that the Dawes plan will prove very beneficial to business. With increased purchasing power Europe will buy more from us. Our home markets, too, should improve.

"It is known that Germany can only pay her huge indemnities by selling her products to the world. Under the Dawes plan she can do this. With a $200,000,000 loan, $100,000,000 in the German Bank, and other funds, she will have a gold reserve of 40 per cent on nearly $1,000,000,000. With this credit, and by issuing notes to her manufacturers and mine owners, she can buy the raw materials she needs and meet her obligations.

"With her magnificent manufacturing plants (completely modernized out of profits, and with depreciated marks) her great industrial combinations, her new and rapidly growing merchant fleet, her genius for foreign commerce, her low wages, long hours of labor, the thrift and energy of her masses, it is contended in Europe that Germany can compete with the world when she gets on her feet, and that England will feel this competition first and most."

During his absence from America, Senator Curtis kept in touch with the political situation, and he is sanguine that the Republicans will win in the November elections.

NEW WORLD COURT PLAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 11.—The draft of a statute for the creation of a permanent international criminal court was brought today before the Conference of the International Law Association by Hugh H. L. Bellot of England. On the motion of Lord Phillimore it was referred to a committee for further consideration.

The jurisdiction of the court would embrace all charges of violation of the laws and customs of war generally accepted or contained in international conventions. The court would "also have jurisdiction over all offences committed contrary to the laws of humanity and the dictates of public conscience."

"The seat of the court, which would be distinct from the Permanent Court of International Justice, would be at The Hague. It would consist of twenty-five members—fifteen judges and 10 deputy judges—elected for nine years by the Assembly and Council of the League of Nations. The court would elect one member as Chief Justice for three years and appoint a registrar. To assist it upon questions of public and international law, ten jurists would be elected as assessors without power of adjudication.

"The full court would consist of fifteen judges and two assessors. The court would sit in one or more divisions, a divisional court to consist of five judges and two assessors. Where sentence of death or imprisonment for life, or for twenty years had been passed by a divisional court, there would be appeal to the full court. The judgment of the full court would be without appeal.

"A court of summary jurisdiction, consisting of two judges and one deputy judge, would determine cases with the consent of the defendant, with limited power of punishment.

"The Secretary of Nations would bear the expenses of the court and official languages would be French and English.

EMPLOYMENT GAINS THROUGHOUT COUNTRY

Federal Survey Shows Better Industrial Conditions—New York Improvement Noted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—General improvement in the employment situation in the Middle West and gains in various lines of industry in nearly every part of the country are disclosed in a national employment survey made public today by the Labor Department.

Better farming conditions, with improvements in the building industry in the West and Middle West, were accountable for much of the increased employment there, while in the New England States improvement was noted generally in the shoe industry. The textile industry is still on part-time schedule, the report said, but an improvement in the textile mills of New York has greatly aided conditions in that State.

A general improvement was shown in the iron and steel industry, which in itself materially reduced unemployment in States where the industry is extensive.

The Mountain States reported generally improving labor conditions with labor surpluses confined mostly to transient workers. The West Coast States reported surpluses of labor, but an improvement was noted in the lumber industry of Oregon.

In regard to New York, the report stated that part-time employment still obtains in some sections, but the trend of operations in a number of manufacturing lines is moving upward and idle labor is gradually being absorbed. There is increased activity in several branches of the textile industry.

Heavy railroad traffic has stimulated employment in the transportation lines, equipment plants and, in some instances, repair shops.

Improvement is reported in the iron and steel industry, where an increase in employment occurred during the last month. Canning industries are now running at full capacity and have large forces of male and female factory workers who were heretofore idle.

Building in most cities is sufficient to maintain practically full employment of all classes of building mechanics. Building material industries, such as brick, lumber and cement plants, are working to capacity with labor fully employed. State, county and municipal improvements, road construction and repair work affords employment to much of the common labor supply.

MANHATTAN OPERA SUES.

Charges Singer and Conductor With Breach of Contract.

Francis L. Corrao, attorney for the Manhattan Opera Association, announced last night that he had brought suit in the Brooklyn Supreme Court on behalf of the association for $35,000 alleged damages jointly against Mme. Clara Jacobs and Alberto Baccolini, a conductor, for alleged breach of contract by signing contracts with the San Carlo Grand Opera Company, Corrao said:

"The contract with the Manhattan Opera Association was based on telegrams, letters, promises and other oral statements, and Mme. Jacobs had appeared at the rehearsal on last Saturday. She had agreed to sing in three operas, one of which was announced for next week. The house has been sold out and her non-appearance means a great loss to the Manhattan Opera Association.

Mme. Jacobs, who is an American, received her musical training in Italy, and she is making her first appearance here in grand opera.

A representative of the San Carlo Opera Company said Mme. Jacobs and Baccolini had been under contract since their appearance with the company out of town in August.

Miss Clara Hampton Thomas, Historian of Manhattan Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in a statement supporting Defense Day, made public yesterday a somewhat similar call which appeared in The New York Packet on June 18, 1776.

The old document was found by Miss Elisabeth F. Reed, Chairman of Old Trails and Research of Manhattan Chapter, and was turned over by her to Miss Thomas, who is the granddaughter of Joseph Winter, Secretary of the Committee of Safety, which issued the 1776 call.

The old document follows:

To the aged friends of the American Cause in the City and County of New York.

Gentlemen:

Altho all such persons as are above the age of 50 years are, by Congress, exempted from bearing arms, the imminent danger to which this city and country are exposed renders it necessary that every healthy, though aged, friend to the common rights of our country and mankind, should have an opportunity of lending their aforesaid assistance, by voluntarily forming themselves into companies, for garrison duty in the city and country. The alarming apprehension we are under of an invasion from our malicious and inexorable enemies, we hope, will apologize for the recommendation of this measure to you, especially at a time like this, when, if it is in the power of our foes, we are to be robbed of our rights and our liberties.—Virtuous Fathers! We pretend to assume no authority over you in this matter; but wish that your posterity may have reason to boast of their descent from ancestors who, in the city and county of New York, have nobly stood forth in defence of the rights, liberty and fortunes of a generation, who by their noble example now, will transmit that fair inheritance to their sons, and your names with honour to the latest ages.

N. B. Such Gentlemen as are willing to step forth, as aforesaid, are requested to meet at the house of the Widow Vandewater, near to the new Brick Meeting-house, on Monday next, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Extract from the minutes published by order of the Committee.

SAYS HE DIED VICTIM OF EGYPTIAN CURSE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A curious story of an archaeological discovery carrying with it an alleged curse which was eventually realized by the suicide of the discoverer was revealed during an inquest today on H. G. Evelyn White, a Leeds University lecturer, who killed himself in a taxicab.

Professor White, who was well known in the United States for his work on American archaeological expeditions, was some years ago introduced by a monk into a secret room in an Egyptian monastery where he found and removed fragments of apocryphal books, some previously unheard of and of inestimable value.

His death Tuesday followed the suicide of a young music mistress who was infatuated with him and at whose inquest he was to be chief witness.

At today's inquest a letter in the dead man's handwriting was read, in which he said:

I knew there was a curse on me, though I had leave to take those manuscripts to Cairo. The monks told me the curse would work all the same. Now it has done so.

Following the death of Lord Carnarvon, the disturber of the tomb of Tutankh-amen, the incident has given a fillip to popular belief in the unluckiness of tampering with time's treasures.

ENDS SOLDIER ADVERTISING.

Forty-two National Guardsmen, members of the Seventy-first Regiment, who started at 10 o'clock yesterday patrolling the Studebaker automobile showrooms throughout the city, in connection with a three days' advertising campaign preliminary to the first showing of the new Studebaker models tomorrow, were withdrawn four hours later by order of Colonel Walter A. De Lamater, the regiment's commander.

The patrolling by the guardsmen in uniform and with rifles on the sidewalks in front of the showrooms, in the windows of which the new models were standing, completely covered with brown paper and marked with a huge interrogation point, caused large crowds to gather, especially at Broadway and Seventieth Street and at Fulton and Gold Streets.

The withdrawal order came as a surprise to the guardsmen, most of whom had been out of employment.

Colonel De Lamater explained that he did not believe it was quite the thing for guardsmen to be used in this manner for private advertising purposes.

"It was all the result of a misunderstanding," he said. "When the Studebaker concern applied to us for men who were out of employment, we thought only of the opportunity for them to get jobs. As soon as I learned, however, that they were being used to patrol the sidewalks with rifles for advertising purposes I had them withdrawn. The Studebaker people were very nice about it, and used their own cars to bring the men to the armory."

FINDS WIFE BURYING THEIR BABY ALIVE

WATCH KEPT ON WOMAN

Husband Now Believes That She Did Away With Three Other Newly Born Children.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Sept. 11.—Mrs. Stella Saunders, 30 years old, of Forked River was under observation in the Paul Kimball Hospital here tonight, accused by her husband of burying alive her newly-born daughter in a lonely spot in the woods near her home. The husband told Detective Ernest Burdge of the Ocean County Police that he found the woman filling up the grave and was just in time to uncover the child's face and save its life. The hospital attendants said that it would live. A charge of attempted murder was made against Mrs. Saunders.

The story told to Detective Burdge by the husband, Eugene Saunders, was this:

For several years he had been puzzled by the conduct of his wife. Three times when births were expected in the family during their residence in Pasadena, N. J., Mrs. Saunders disappeared mysteriously. Saunders told the detective that he believed that his wife had been successful in doing away with the children born on those occasions. They moved to Forked River about a year ago with their two children, an 8-year-old son and a young daughter.

Saunders kept a close watch on his wife until Thursday afternoon when he was forced to make a trip away from home. The house is not near the town. Woods stretch out to the rear of it and not far away is an abandoned dwelling. When Saunders returned home he found his wife had gone.

He made a hurried search of the neighborhood. In the deserted house he found evidence that his wife had been there. He ran through the woods calling her by name. For nearly three-quarters of an hour his search was unsuccessful.

As he came on a hollow in the deepest part of the woods he saw his wife shaping the sand over a fresh made mound. Then she picked up an old dress and hurried away. He called to her but she did not hear him. Saunders ran to the mound. As he pushed away the sand with his hands he uncovered the face of a new born child. Some leaves over its face had kept the sand out of its eyes. He pulled them off to allow it to breathe. Without taking time to lay open the remainder of the grave, he ran to the home of his sister, Mrs. Ada Johnson, not far away.

Mrs. Johnson, Saunders and his mother hastened back to the woods. When they came to the grave again they found the mother standing over the half-buried infant, weeping. Mrs. Johnson and her mother took the woman to their home. Saunders lifted the child from its sandy bed and called an ambulance from Lakewood, twenty-five miles away.

The mother and the child were both taken to the hospital. An investigation was begun at once by Prosecutor W. H. Jayne Jr. He questioned the husband and other relatives at length regarding Mrs. Saunders and later said that the case would be presented to the Grand Jury.

In the hospital the baby girl was reported to be in "excellent condition" despite its experience.

WAGON DRIVER HURLED OFF BRIDGE IN CRASH

Clears Railing of Brooklyn Approach and Falls 40 Feet to Street, Badly Hurt.

In a collision between a horse-drawn vehicle which he was driving and a Bergen Street trolley car that was following, Abraham Strauss, a dealer in butchers' fixtures of 668 Water Street, Manhattan, was hurled over the railing of the south roadway of the Brooklyn Bridge yesterday and fell forty feet to the sidewalk of Prospect Street, Brooklyn. He was taken to Cumberland Street Hospital in a serious condition.

Jacob Roseman, 62 years old, of 243 Stanton Street, Manhattan, who was riding with Strauss, was thrown to the bridge roadway and received cuts and bruises. He too was taken to the hospital. Jacob Klasen of Henry Street, Manhattan, who was riding on the rear of the wagon, also was thrown out, but was able to go home after receiving treatment from an ambulance surgeon.

The trolley car was driven by Motorman Andrew Brodell of 1,236 St. Mark's Avenue. At the point where the accident happened there is a curve in the bridge roadway. Witnesses told the police the wagon swerved just as the trolley car was about to pass it.

IRISH MOB ROUTS GUARD.

Tears Down Barracks at Kilkerrin Before Troops Arrive.

BELFAST, Sept. 11.—A violent clash between the civic guard and the population of Kilkerrin, County Galway, resulting from the attempt of the Guard to quiet a riot, is reported from the Galway town where soldiers are patrolling the place and maintaining order.

The trouble started when a mob resisted the civic guard and chased the policemen into their barracks. While the crowd forced the door of the barracks with a battering ram, the policemen escaped by a rear door and the mob destroyed the building, being dispersed only after the arrival of soldiers.

COSDEN THEFT LAID TO 'AVERAGE CROOK'

But Police and Detectives Admit They Have No Clue to Jewelry Robbery.

HOPE TO TRACE TWO RUBIES

Lord Louis Mountbatten Denies He Saw Man in Room, but Steward Saw One on Links.

After all of the servants had been questioned and the premises thoroughly inspected, the police and private detectives investigating the jewel robbery early Tuesday morning at the Long Island residence of J. S. Cosden said yesterday they still were unable to find any clue.

Gerald Luisi, private investigator, of 16 Exchange Place, Manhattan, said the robbery was committed by an "average crook" and that although many members of the Prince of Wales party were guests at the house when the jewels were taken, this fact had no bearing on the robbery itself.

The authorities believe that two large ruby pieces included in the plunder cannot be easily disposed of by the thief and they are hoping that an attempt to do so will lead to his capture. Rubies, it was explained, are difficult to recut and the size of the gems stolen would make them especially conspicuous.

John McCahill, the night steward at the Cosden home, told the police that on the night preceding the robbery he saw a man prowling on the golf links. When McCahill investigated the marauder had disappeared.

A version, somewhat different from that telling of Lord Louis Mountbatten's experience the night of the robbery was given at the Cosden home. It had been said that Lord Louis, who, with his wife, is a guest of the Cosdens, had seen a man moving about his room but thought nothing of it and went to sleep again. The facts were that Mountbatten was awakened by what he thought to be a rustling of the curtains in his room. He attached no importance to the incident but investigated and found nothing.

The value and number of the stolen jewels would not be given out. Lady Mountbatten, however, placed her loss at a relatively small figure and Mrs. Cosden said her valuables were heavily insured. It was learned that the ruby bracelet stolen from Mrs. Cosden was worth $15,000 and not $5,000 as was at first reported.

I. R. T. MIGHT RUN BUSES.

Representatives to Consider the City's Free Transfer Proposal.

An extended interchange of views concerning bus operation took place yesterday at the office of the Board of Transportation between the members of the board and Interborough Rapid Transit Company officials. Commissioner Delaney, Ryan and Delford represented the board and Frank Hedley and James L. Quackenbush the Interborough.

The Interborough representatives indicated that the company was not anxious to enter the field of bus operation, but that under certain conditions, and in order to prevent encroachment upon Interborough patronage that would be detrimental to the company's financial interests, bids for bus franchises might be submitted by the company.

If the Interborough submits bids for the establishment of buses to be used as feeders to the city-owned rapid transit lines, its representatives will consider the proposal that the fares received by such bus lines be accounted for as revenue or earnings under the provision of its operating contract with the city, and also will consider the question of granting and accepting free transfers from its city-owned rapid transit lines without including the cost of bus operation in the operating cost of the city-owned transit system. This is the same question that the Board of Transportation has asked the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company and the Third Avenue Railway Company to answer.

The Interborough representatives agreed to study the question of bus feeders to its transit lines, and to consider bus service supplemental to its existing city-owned lines.

BURIED TREASURE STIRS SETAUKET, L. I.

SETAUKET, L. I., Sept. 11.—A discovery in 1894, kept secret thirty years, has set Setauket gossiping concerning treasure trove. The discovery consisted of 100 Spanish coins. It was made by George W. Hawkins, a school teacher, who has lived here nearly half a century.

Thirty years ago Hawkins was puttering about his garden after school hours, digging a few holes to plant poles for beans. About a foot and a half below the surface the spade struck something metallic. A little deeper it scooped up some coins. Before the last one was recovered Hawkins had gathered up more than a hundred. He took them into the house, cleaned them and found all to be Spanish of dates varying between 1750 and 1775. He put them away and said nothing about them.

Hawkins, now retired as a teacher, was surprised a few days ago when neighbors asked him questions about the treasure. How the news of it leaked out he does not know. Nor will he say why he kept it secret all these years. But today he told of the discovery and advanced a theory of their presence in his garden.

During the American Revolution, Hawkins said, the house in which he and his family live was occupied by a Rev. Mr. Brewster, pastor of the old Presbyterian Church on the "green." The "green" was captured by the British. Apparently there was further skirmishing and the owner of the coins buried them for safety, planning to dig them up afterward. He was probably killed in battle.

The coins, Hawkins said, are in perfect condition. They are said to be of considerable value, and Hawkins has already disposed of several. He would not reveal the prices received, however.

The news of this discovery has planted hopes in the hearts of other Setauket residents. When the gardening season begins next Spring there will be intensive digging, judging from the interest created by the Hawkins find.

Making every one of 2,300,000,000 exactly like every other

Two billion three hundred million drinks of Coca-Cola are sold a year through 415,000 retailers.

In the light of these facts read the following excerpt from a letter to an officer of The Coca-Cola Company:

"You'll be interested in this: A party of twelve of us were touring Kentucky on a mission for our Chamber of Commerce. We visited towns of all sizes, mostly small. We stopped at all kinds of soda fountains and refreshment stands. Again and again everybody ordered Coca-Cola. Though in unfamiliar places, we were certain of its quality."

There are good reasons for this confidence.

Under the United States Pure Food Laws only a beverage made of wholesome products can be offered you without a declaration of its ingredients. With Coca-Cola its name is its label.

Stationed at each of the 14 regional Coca-Cola manufacturing plants is a food expert who tests all ingredients and insures the uniformity, purity and wholesomeness of Coca-Cola syrup.

The Coca-Cola Company itself maintains a Service Section, composed of highly trained soda dispensers, who go behind the fountains of retail stores and teach the soda dispensers the most improved fountain methods, and, most important of all, the fact that one ounce of Coca-Cola syrup to five ounces of cold carbonated water makes a perfect Coca-Cola. Also, as an aid to standardization of the drink, the company has adopted a special six-ounce thin glass, and last year sold more than 3,400,000 of them.

The 1,250 Coca-Cola bottling plants are subject to rigid inspections by experts retained by the organization to insure standardization and purity of the bottled drink. In these plants all bottles are washed and sterilized in a 5 per cent solution of caustic soda, at temperatures of from 130° to 180° Fahrenheit. They pass from these sterilizing machines to the filling and crowning machines without the touch of human hands.

Through a manufacturing system known as "laboratory control," approximately 18,000,000 gallons of Coca-Cola syrup is made each year with every drop exactly like every other. And every possible precaution is taken to make every one of the 2,300,000,000 drinks sold a year exactly like every other—which means that each one is "delicious and refreshing."

Isn't it a remarkable tribute to the industry back of Coca-Cola that this result is accomplished at 5c a bottle or glass?

$25,000,000 GAINED BY VAN SWERINGENS

ALL AMASSED SINCE 1916

Success in Railroad Merger Will Greatly Increase Their Earnings, It Is Asserted.

STARTED WITH $2,000,000

Made More Than $13,000,000 on Lake Erie & Western and First Nickel Plate Venture.

O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen of Cleveland, who entered the railroad industry in 1916 with $2,000,000 in cash and no railroad experience, have piled up paper profits in excess of $25,000,000 through their consolidations, according to estimates made yesterday by railroad bankers and statisticians. Upon the successful outcome of the proposed Van Sweringen merger which includes the Erie, the Nickel Plate, the Pere Marquette, the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Hocking Valley rests their ability to "cash in" this fortune which the two real estate operators have made in a strange business within the short period of eight years.

There are some who predict that the successful culmination of the proposed consolidation will result in profits much larger than they can figure at this time, because of further advances in the stocks which the Cleveland brothers now hold. Just how large these profits might be is a question on which Wall Street does not venture an estimate.

Paper profits mean the profits that the Van Sweringens would realize if they could dispose of all of their present securities at the present market prices. Obviously, under the present conditions, this is impossible because the offering of such a large volume of business would greatly depress the prices of the respective stocks.

It was said yesterday that the sums the Van Sweringen brothers have accumulated as the result of extending their credit to the limit, the ease with which they effected consolidation, and their help from the largest banking interests in the country were so vast as to cause the reported fortunes made by Daniel Willard and William C. Durant to sink into insignificance.

Estimated Gain $25,000,000.

The earnings of the Van Sweringens on the Lake Erie & Western and the original Nickel Plate venture are estimated at between $13,000,000 and $15,000,000, the remainder of their earnings bringing the total up to $25,000,000.

In this is not included the earnings of the two brothers on their Shaker Heights and other real estate developments in Cleveland, on the Cleveland Hotel and the Cleveland Terminal of the rapid transit corporation of which they are the controlling interests. Some of these, including the Shaker Heights development, have brought large sums of money back into the joint treasury of the brothers, who at one time sold newspapers on the streets of Cleveland and who are still under 45 years of age.

One handicap to the Van Sweringens in the way they had continually used their credit to its limit along with their other resources, and had been favored by a good market in the final stages of their undertaking.

When the Sweringens entered the railroad industry in 1916, when they purchased the Nickel Plate System from the New York Central for $2,000,000 in cash and $8,500,000 in five-year notes, as this deal was described, the sterling issues, which consisted of 25,030 shares of first preferred stock, 62,750 shares of second preferred stock and 62,400 shares of common stock.

Their next acquisition was the Lake Erie & Western, which they paid a little more than $4,000,000, buying 59,300 shares of preferred stock and 59,400 shares of common.

In other words, these two properties cost the Van Sweringen brothers $11,411,000. In the first Nickel Plate merger they were exchanged for the following stocks: 87,780 shares of preferred in the new company and 148,430 shares of common stock. Later the preferred shares were sold for $7,680,750 through a syndicate headed by the Guaranty Trust Company, and the common stock today has a market value of about $17,250,000, so that from the transaction in connection with these two railroads the Van Sweringens have realized more than $13,500,000.

Gain on Lake Erie & Western.

This does not include the profit that the Van Sweringens made from the shares purchased from stockholders of the Lake Erie & Western. When they made the purchase from the New York Central they offered all stockholders of the railroad $35 a share for their preferred stock and $15.75 a share for their common stock. Just how much of this they received was never made public, but what they obtain in this manner was purchased on the installment plan, the contract providing that the stockholders should be paid over five years, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent.

Another deal out of which they reaped a large sum of money, variously estimated at between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000, was in their purchase of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western, which when they obtained control had just come out of the hands of the receivers and was in need of credit. The Van Sweringens provided the credit; later incorporated the road into the present Nickel Plate System and exchanged each 100 shares of preferred for 88 shares of Nickel Plate preferred, and each 100 shares of common for 80 shares of Nickel Plate common. The Clover Leaf had common and preferred shares closely approaching 1,000,000. The Van Sweringens announced before including it into the system that they had control. In railroad circles this is taken to mean at least 25 per cent. of the stock outstanding. If such were the case, the bankers say that the profit of between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000 was a simple matter. In fact, they figure that the profit could have been made on much less than one-quarter of the Clover Leaf stock. One hundred shares of Clover Leaf, which sold at $3,750 when the Van Sweringens were making their purchases, today represents $9,280 in the securities of the Nickel Plate system, for which it has been exchanged.

Purchase of the Erie.

One prominent banker said yesterday that the sale of $15,000,000 of preferred stock through the syndicate headed by the Guaranty Trust Company, contrary to the general opinion, did not give the Van Sweringens the money with which they purchased the Erie Railroad stock. This money and the returns from $4,000,000 of 3 per cent. preferred shares which were placed privately were used in repairing the credit structure on which the Van Sweringens were rearing their billion and a half dollar railroad system. It was used to clear off old debts and to place them in a position where they could extend their credit in other directions, which they rapidly did.

Stocks of the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Pere Marquette which they purchased were for the account of the present Nickel Plate System, so they did not add to the Van Sweringen fortune except indirectly as they increased the value of the Nickel Plate shares.

But the Van Sweringens were heavy buyers in Erie shares, according to those familiar with the situation. No public announcement of their private holdings of these shares has ever been made. One banker said that the Van Sweringens brought 85,000,000 of Nickel Plate preferred stock to New York and placed it with a brokerage house as collateral for their transaction in Erie. On the strength of this they quickly purchased 100,000 shares of Erie at between 14 and 18, with the greater part coming into the market at prices ranging from 16 to 18.

As this stock paid no dividend, the interest charge at once became a sizable item, and to overcome this large purchases of Erie convertible D bonds were made under 50. These gave a yield in excess of 8 per cent., besides being convertible into Erie common stock at 50. Just how much of the Erie common stock the Van Sweringens had when the merger was agreed upon is not known, but estimates place the amount as well over 150,000 shares, to say nothing of the convertible bonds. On their Erie transactions alone it is estimated that they netted between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

While this accounts for most of the major operations the Van Sweringens have made in connection with the Nickel Plate consolidation, the financial district has heard of many others, including private purchases of Chesapeake & Ohio shares, private purchases of Pere Marquette and deals in Pittsburgh & West Virginia preferred stock; which has advanced from 77 to 105 in the past few months.

SPEEDING TROLLEY CAR HITS ANOTHER; 20 HURT

One Man May Die as the Result of Crash at 9th Avenue and 42d Street.

A Ninth Avenue trolley car speeding north crashed into the tail end of a Forty-second Street crosstown trolley soon after midnight this morning with such force that about twenty persons on the two cars were cut or bruised and one man was hurt so badly he may die. Peter Kane, motorman of the Ninth Avenue trolley, the only one to go to a hospital, was dangerously hurt when his car hit the back end of the other so hard both vestibules were crumpled. Policemen investigating the accident were told by bystanders that the Ninth Avenue trolley was going at least twenty-five miles an hour and that the motorman appeared to be making no effort to stop it.

Thomas Irwin of 548 West Forty-first Street and Alfred Knopf of 452 West Forty-first Street, who were on the car, said, however, that they rang the bell to stop the car at Forty-first Street. It was going about thirty miles an hour, they said, and ran by their stop, although they could see the motorman trying to bring it to a halt. Convinced that the car was a runaway and that there would be a smash, they ran to the rear platform and thus escaped with slight cuts and bruises.

Calls for three ambulances were sent by policemen who ran to the scene. Then they, with bystanders, helped the injured and the frightened who were struggling with each other to escape. Those who had been hurt or were dazed by shock were taken into all-night restaurants along Forty-second Street, where three ambulance surgeons attended to their injuries. All but Kane were able to go home, though a few found it advisable to get into taxicabs.

Pending more mature investigation, particularly in view of the conflicting statements of witnesses, the police made no charge against any one. The motorman and conductor of the crosstown car were hurt only slightly, it at all.

A wrecking crew soon restored traffic.

DENIES CAPITAL LEVY IS PLANNED IN FRANCE

Government to Carry to Separate Account All Moneys Received From Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—For several days rumors have been current in Paris that in order to enable it to carry out its election promise to repeal M. Poincaré's 20 per cent. increase in taxes the Herriot Government planned a capital levy. The Ministry of Finance today issued a statement which, while vague in terms, is known to be meant as an official denial of these reports, which had even found their way into certain newspapers. The statement said:

The Minister of Finance denies formally reports which have appeared in some papers relative to intentions of changes in fiscal legislation in connection with balancing the budget. It notifies the public that these articles, even if of official appearance, are without foundation.

As a matter of fact, as stated in these dispatches two days ago, the Herriot Government has decided to retain the 20 per cent. increase. It has drafted a tentative budget of 30,000,000,000 francs for next year, which is about 1,000,000,000 larger than this year. This budget will contain all the expenditures of the French Government, including payments for reconstruction and interest on the reconstruction debt. Every effort will be made, it is stated, to find budgetary receipts equal to the expenditures contemplated.

The most interesting decision of the Government is to carry to separate accounts all receipts from Germany under the Dawes plan and to devote this amount strictly to consolidation and amortization of the large floating debt contracted for reconstruction of the devastated regions. This is carrying out M. Herriot's plan of using the moneys collected from Germany directly for carrying for the reconstruction debt, or, in other words, for shifting this debt to Germany's shoulders. It now totals around 65,000,000,000 francs, and it is planned to expend 38,000,000,000 more on reconstruction.

As soon as conditions appear favorable the French will endeavor to convert the short-term obligations constituting this floating debt into long-term bonds. Nothing, however, will be done in this direction until after the negotiations on the interallied debt, which should begin next month.

It is understood that next year's budget will carry an allowance to take care of the loan the French Government will have to float next year to meet the 22,000,000,000 francs of bonds maturing in 1925. This will be primarily a domestic loan, since its main object is to attract subscriptions in the form of short-terms national defense bonds, which are most largely held in France.

FAVOR GERMAN LOAN ON A DOLLAR BASIS

OPPOSITION LIKELY THERE

Credit of $100,000,000 to the Bank of France Is Renewed by Morgan Firm.

BY EDWIN L. JAMES.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Finance Minister Clementel and the Paris bankers have reached complete accord with Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., representing New York bankers, on the details of floating the 800,000,000 gold mark loan for Germany as provided by the Dawes reparations plan. Mr. Lamont left for London today to confer with the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Montagu Norman, head of the Bank of England, and other London financiers.

Under the plan outlined here by Mr. Lamont and the French bankers the loan could be issued in dollars. It would therefore not be a loan of 800,000,000 gold marks but of $200,000,000. Under this tentative scheme $100,000,000 would be subscribed in New York, $50,000,000 in London and $50,000,000 on the Continent. French bankers, acting largely on the advice of Secretary Meilon given on his recent pleasure trip here, have agreed to take $10,000,000, the remaining $40,000,000 going to Belgian, Swiss, Dutch, Swedish and other Continental bankers with a strong possibility of a $10,000,000 subscription in Germany.

For Local Subscription Only.

It is understood that it was also agreed that the amounts allotted to various countries should be strictly for subscription in those countries. In other words, the $100,000,000 allotted to America would be sold there and not elsewhere. There are both financial and political reasons for this move.

Mr. Lamont faces no easy task in getting British adhesion to the plan outlined here. Up to the present the British have shown great hostility to the loan being issued in dollars, wishing it to be either in gold marks or pounds sterling. In favoring dollars, the French not only argued that it would enable them more easily to sell their part, but pointed out that sterling was not at present stable money and therefore the loan would be complicated by the varying value of English money.

Further, they argued that the gold mark was something that did not now exist and that even if the gold standard were established in Germany under the Dawes plan it might not continue, for it might prove to be something the Germans themselves did not want because of the effect of exportations which must necessarily be developed if the Dawes plan is to work successfully.

The French argued that the dollar being the only money now on a gold basis, it was entirely logical that the Dawes loan should be in American money.

Whether true or not, it is hinted here that there may be a connection between the smaller amount allotted to English bankers and the plan to float the loan in dollars.

The French will watch closely Mr. Lamont's conversations with Mr. Snowden and Mr. Norman, for they are naturally anxious to see the loan out on the market at the earliest possible moment, since they are now engaged in living up their economic hold on the Ruhr with the Dawes plan to start working as soon as possible.

Loan to Bank of France Extended.

J. P. Morgan & Co. and affiliated banks have extended the $100,000,000 credit opened for the Bank of France last March for its fight against efforts to drive the franc down. This credit, which was for six months, expires tomorrow. No mention is made of the length of the limit for which it remains available.

When Mr. Morgan arranged the credit last March the franc was 120 to the pound sterling and 28 to the dollar. Within a few days it rose to 19 to the dollar and a few weeks later went to 14.50. The little credit used for an announcement of American backing did more good than the actual money. The authorities used it to replace by Bank of France some months ago, so that the $100,000,000 is intact at the end of the six months' period.

It is believed by bankers here that the mere fact that the credit exists and is available when needed will prove a deterrent to speculative attacks on French money in future months when the consolidation loan and an additional loan France will need next Spring to meet some $20,000,000,000 worth of maturing securities would offer perhaps an otherwise favorable opportunity.

Announcement of extension of the credit was made in the following note issued by the Bank of France:

J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York have decided, in their name and the name of their associated banks, to maintain at the disposition of the Bank of France the credit of $100,000,000 which expires Sept. 12, and of which the fraction utilized was entirely reimbursed by the Bank of France some months ago.

An official of the Bank added:

"This extension of the Morgan credit should permit the Bank of France, if necessary, to throw this sum or any part of it on the market to break any offensive against the franc. The very existence of this credit makes any attack on the franc difficult. It is a sword of Damocles suspended over the head of any would-be speculator on the fall of the franc."

There is an interesting political angle on the extension of this credit, which was accepted, it is understood, with the full approval of the present Government. Yet during the campaign preceding the elections of May 11 the leaders of the Left made violent attacks on M. Poincaré for the promises he made to obtain the credit, saying he had mortgaged the fiscal liberty of France.

Mitchell Expects Loan's Success.

ROME, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank of New York, who is making a tour of the European capitals to study the financial situation, stated in an interview today that "almost all" the difficulties in connection with the flotation of America's share of the Dawes plan loan to Germany had been removed.

Mr. Mitchell added that he hoped the loan would be easily subscribed, continuing:

"We have taken the precautions that were necessary. It was necessary that the atmosphere should be favorable.

"Our responsibility is enormous, and once we assume direction of the operations, we must guarantee success. The difficulties, if they present themselves, will be all ours, since we must assume all responsibilities toward our clients.

"It is our duty to keep our feet on the ground in questions of such gravity. That is why above all political considerations, which do not concern us, and sentimental reasons, which might be dangerous, we asked for secure, precise guarantees. This is the only motive for our insistent demands and for the tardiness for which we have been reproved."

Three Inches of Snow in Wyoming.

LARAMIE, Wyo., Sept. 11.—Three inches of snow fell at Lookout and Medicine Bow, Wyo., west of here, last night and early today, according to word received here. At Sand Lake, in the mountains, the fall was said to be four inches. One inch had fallen here up to 8 A. M.

Penitentiary Guards Threaten to Strike If "Cream Puff" Discipline Is Not Changed

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 11.—A majority of the guards at the Western Penitentiary have issued an ultimatum to the trustees of the institution that unless action is taken at once to enforce discipline, so as to insure the guards from insolence and abuse by the prisoners, the guards will resign on Oct. 1.

In concluding their petition the guards say:

"In view of the fact that the situation is becoming more deplorable each day, we ask that immediate reform be instituted. In the event of our request being ignored, we deem that it will be to our best interests to submit our resignations, to become effective Oct. 1, 1924."

The petition, which bears the signatures of about fifty out of more than seventy guards, demands that disciplinary measures be adopted that will not be ridiculed by the inmates as of the "cream puff" variety.

At yesterday's hearing more than a dozen guards were interrogated by the committee, of which Mrs. Rea Muirhead, former policewoman of New Castle, is Chairman. Members of the committee said the guards told incidents of insolence on the part of the inmates as well as obscene language.

Some of the guards demanded that entire authority for the administration of the prison be delegated to the head, as formerly, and that guards be made responsible to him alone as to all disciplinary methods enforced.

Following a meeting of the Prison Board this afternoon to consider the ultimatum, it was announced that Stanley P. Ashe has been appointed Warden of the penitentiary to succeed Jonn M. Egan, who resigned recently.

It was also announced that the guards had been consulted, and, after being assured that "in the future a policy of strict discipline, with due regard to humanity of the prisoners, will prevail in the institution," were satisfied and will remain at their posts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—Germany today paid to Owen D. Young, Agent General for payments under the Dawes plan, 20,000,000 gold marks, representing the second payment due from her in accordance with the London compact. The first payment of a like amount was made Sept. 1.

Mr. Young stated tonight that he considered it improbable that Germany would have to make any further payment to him during September, since he believed the French and Belgian payments of Ruhr receipts—which are to be credited to Germany—would more than cover the 83,000,000 gold marks due from Germany in September when added to the 40,000,000 which Germany has already paid.

Mr. Young said that the first payment from the French and Belgians on account of Ruhr receipts is in process of being made. He expects a slight delay because the amount is in several different currencies.

40,000,000 Marks on Deposit.

Mr. Young now has the 40,000,000 gold marks on deposit at the Reichsbank, which has agreed to maintain it at gold value. He has requested the French and Belgians to convert into gold marks all money coming to him from them, except what is in French and Belgian francs. In this way he can deposit the amount converted into gold marks in the Reichsbank and have it come under that institution's guarantee that it will be kept up to gold value. Sums in other currencies due from the French and Belgians are to be placed to Mr. Young's credit in various Ruhr banks.

"Probably the entire financial organization of the Ruhr is having nervous prostration getting all these different currencies straightened out in making their payment to me," remarked Mr. Young tonight.

Mr. Young will accept French and Belgium payments with the reservation of Germany's contention that the French and Belgians must turn over to him all Ruhr receipts irrespective of whether they accrued before or after Sept. 1. French and Belgians claim that only receipts accruing after that date must be paid by them during the Dawes plan transition period. This matter will be settled later. Mr. Young will accept payments provisionally in conformity with French and Belgian interpretation.

"Everybody whom I have encountered, both on the allied and German side, is wholeheartedly working to put the plan through," he said. "There is absolutely no obstruction. This is very reassuring. Maybe there will be obstacles later, but so far I have found none. I have tried to cut red tape both in dealing with the Reichsbank and elsewhere. Dr. Schast, President of the Reichsbank, has been perfectly fine in making his machinery work toward putting through the Dawes plan."

Ruhr Evacuation Progressing.

Preparations for evacuation of the occupied districts pursuant to the London agreement continue apace. One of the most noticeable features following the elimination of the French and Belgian customs posts in the Ruhr and near-by regions is a sudden cheapening of certain wares, notably cigars and bicycles. Huge stores of merchandise which had been piling up on the border of the occupied zone have now been released and are being hurried to their destinations in fleets of motor trucks. Hence, a big decrease in the general range of prices is expected.

Much satisfaction is being expressed at the improved train service between unoccupied and occupied Germany. Important express trains between Berlin and Cologne are now stopped less than half an hour at Vohwinkel, close to Cologne, where cursory examination is replacing wearisome inspection of passengers' passports and baggage. It is also much easier for passengers to get through to places like Dortmund, where they were often subjected to personal examination by French officials searching for dutiable goods.

It is announced from Düsseldorf that an almost audible sigh of relief is arising from the population as evacuation preparations progress. Already between 300 and 400 dwellings which had been seized by the French authorities have been returned to their former occupants.

NEW-CUNARD LINER COMING.

The Aurania, Third of That Name, Starts Maiden Trip Tomorrow.

The new cabin steamship, Aurania, of the Cunard Line, will sail from Liverpool for New York on her maiden voyage tomorrow, according to an announcement yesterday by the steamship company. The local offices were advised by cable that the Aurania had been highly successful on her trial trips.

The Aurania was launched last February, and was built on the same ways from which the Mauretania was launched. She is the third ship of that name operated by the Cunard Line. The original Aurania was built in 1883 and was the first ship of the fleet to be fitted with suites of rooms then called "royal chambers." The second Aurania was sunk by a submarine on her eighth voyage during the World War.

The new Aurania is described as a "medium sized Aquitania." She is 540 feet long with 65 foot beam and 43 foot depth. She is 14,000 tons and makes 15 knots.

JAPAN CELEBRATES 'PEACE DAY' TODAY

HELD AS A THREAT TO THEM

Inspirer of Move Denounces the Demonstration Here as Against World Peace.

By WILFRID FLEISHER.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Sept. 11.—Tomorrow will be observed as "National Peace Day" by members of the "Elementary Educational Section," in contrast to the American observance of "National Defense Day."

This movement is being sponsored by Professor Sawayanagi, a member of the House of Peers and a prominent scholar and leader in educational circles.

About 100 members of the society, comprising educational directors and school teachers, will make the rounds of the city, distributing pamphlets which denounce American "mobilization" day. A delegation will call upon the American Chargé, Mr. Caffery, at the embassy and present him with a copy of a pamphlet, the text of which will also be cabled to President Coolidge. Other copies will be sent to Premier Kato, Baron Shidehara, the Minister of Foreign Affairs; General Ugaka, Minister of War, and Admiral Takarabe, Minister of the Navy. The pamphlet, which will also be distributed in Tokio tomorrow, reads, in part, as follows:

"Following the enactment of the Japanese exclusion law comes the American observance of National Defense Day. We fail to understand the motive of the movement, although it has been denied that it is directed against Japan or any other power.

"The movement is harmful to the best interests of the American which has always stood for justice and humanity.

"Peace based on armaments is a frail peace; real peace is realized by extended education founded on enlightened thought."

This pamphlet then calls upon the people to remain calm.

In an interview today Professor Sawayanagi said:

"Our movement is intended to show our opposition to the American observance of National Defense Day because we believe it will have an undesirable effect upon the relations between America and Japan and compromise the future of international peace.

"Our campaign is also undertaken to impress upon the Japanese people the harmfulness of increased armament."

Considerable anxiety has been entertained here, both in official circles and among the public, since it became known several weeks ago that America would hold a day of preparedness. It has been generally felt here that the action is aimed at Japan, and this feeling has been heightened by the recent speech of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur delivered before the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

It is certain that the demonstrations which will be held in America tomorrow will be followed with the keenest interest here, especially in military and naval circles.

It is reported here today that certain naval and military authorities are advocating the formation of a "Council of National Defense" by Japan to bring about coordination by the authorities of the army, the navy and the Government generally in consideration of the questions affecting the national welfare. It is suggested that the council comprise the highest naval and military officers and members of the Cabinet. Officials of the Foreign Office said this afternoon that they had no knowledge that such a plan was being seriously considered. At the Navy Department it was said that while a number of officers are in favor of such a board, no definite steps as yet have been taken to bring it about.

SAYS HUGHES WANTED NOTE

Bishop's Charge That He Prompted Hanihara Letter Is Denied.

TOKIO, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—The strong, frank tone of Ambassador Hanihara's immigration note to the American Government, in which the term "grave consequences" was used, was due to the insistence of Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, who wanted a note "with teeth," Bishop Charles F. Reifsnider said today in an address before the Tokio Rotary Club.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—Secretary Hughes said today there was no truth in the statement made in Tokio by Bishop Reifsnider that the Secretary was responsible for the frank tone of Ambassador Hanihara's immigration note. The Secretary characterized the Bishop's statement as absurd.

FINED FOR ANNOYING GIRLS.

Sidney Smith, 27 years old, of 151 West Eightieth Street, who said he was connected with the brokerage firm of Ernest Smith & Co., 20 Broad Street, was fined $50 last night by Magistrate Louis Brodsky in the Night Court when he was found guilty of annoying young women and girls on subway trains. His accusers were Margaret B. Solen, a policewoman, and William J. Jones, a policeman, both attached to the "subway masher squad."

They testified that they saw Smith, who pleaded not guilty, annoy several women and girls at the stations at Forty-second Street and Eighty-sixth Street of the Lexington Avenue route.

"I am not going to take your fingerprints nor incarcerate you because you are a young man," Magistrate Brodsky said to Smith when he found him guilty. "You have an excellent position and reputation, which I shall take into consideration. But I want to impress on you that you had better change your ways. You have been found guilty of a serious offense, and I shall give you the right one."

ALL NEW YORK JOINS DEFENSE DAY TEST

MILITARY OUT IN FORCE

Patriotic Speeches Will Be Heard at Exercises Calling for Preparedness.

Defense Day will be observed today with military demonstrations, parades, public exercises and various tests intended to ascertain the preparedness of the country and to point the way to quick action in case of threatened trouble in the future.

The foreword of the official program issued by General William Wiegel said: "For the first time since 1776 America has cause to be proud that the Government is able to test plans for the 'common defense' in any future hour of peril."

There will be a sham battle at Fort Wadsworth, drills in planning speed in ordering supplies of war materials, public exercises at many places, military evolutions and meetings to organize public sentiment and increase public information so as to make possible the realization of the vision of William Jennings Bryan of millions of civilians leaping to arms over night in case of threatened war.

The official Defense Day program will include exercises at the Treasury Building at noon, at Seward Park at 2 P. M., Madison Square Park at 4 P. M., Battery Park at 4 P. M., the Mall in Central Park at 5 P. M. and at 155th Street and Broadway at 5 P. M.

Programs at Exercises.

A parade will precede the exercises in Central Park. Forming at Grant's Tomb at 3:30 o'clock, the marchers will move south on Riverside Drive to Seventy-second Street, then east to the Mall. Among the marchers will be a Police Band, the Police Glee Club, the Riot Regiment of the Police Department and police military organizations. Other units will be the Old Guard, the Allied Unit of the Women Overseas Service, Ladies' Auxiliary of Greenwich Village Post 18 of the American Legion, Come Back Club, Dug Out Club, Franklin Post of the American Legion, British Great War Veterans, New York Commandery of the Military Order of Foreign Wars, New York Society of Military and Naval Officers of the World War and the United States Junior Naval League.

Hylan One of the Speakers.

The invocation will be by Bishop Herbert Shipman and the benediction by Father Duffy. After the exercises there will be a military demonstration at the sheep meadow by the 244th Field Artillery, Colonel John J. Byrne commanding. Major Gen. Weigel will be the reviewing officer.

The speakers at the exercises at 155th Street and Broadway under the auspices of the New York Chapter of the Military Order of the World War will be Major Frank Castro, Commander Pershing P. Sweet, Hamlin Garland, Rabbi Jerome M. Lawn and Mrs. William Vanamee.

ARMY AIR SERVICE—Broadcasting over Nassau County, N. Y., United States Army airmen every evening during the week.

Weigel Explains the Call.

Outlining the purposes of Defense Day in an address yesterday afternoon at the Rotary Club meeting at the Hotel McAlpin, General Weigel said:

"The success of this plan depends upon two things: The support of the public and appropriations by Congress. There are altogether too many of our citizens who do not give our national defense a thought, relying as usual on Divine Providence to lead us safely through any emergency or else leaving the matter for George to look after.

"Part of this is the result of so-called preparedness, pacifists, disarmament societies and other cults have been getting in their deadly work to nullify the intent of Congress in the Defense act. Under the rules of economy they have succeeded in reducing our army to 125,000 men and 12,000 officers, regardless of plans of our military authorities and regardless of the fact that this self-same false economy cost us the last war thousands of valuable lives and saddled us with a debt of $24,000,000,000.

"The underlying principle of the Defense act is that the defense of the realm of the people is the duty of all the people. Our principal desire is an assured peace. Peace may be assured only through preparedness to resist whomsoever might attempt to disturb it. The strong man armed keepeth the house.'

"For the first time in the history of this country we have a military policy, carefully worked out in the light of the experience of the World War. Had we such a policy in 1914 the Central Powers would not have treated us with the contempt which finally developed into a hostile blockade of our coasts.

In a statement calling for the cooperation of the public to make Defense Day a success, Assistant Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis said:

"Congress, in revising the National Defense act in 1920, laid down upon the statute books for the first time a definite military policy for our country. This policy embraces two very noteworthy factors. The first is the expression in positive law of the fact which has been so often exemplified in our history that our ultimate military dependence is upon the great body of our citizenry. Our Regular Army is but a first line of defense and a nucleus around which the National Guard and organized reserves can be formed and trained.

Industry's Task in War.

"The second important factor is the recognition which is accorded the tremendous and increasing importance of industry in war. The whole world realizes as never before the importance of munitions. True, manpower is and will ever remain the most vital factor in battle, but unless this manpower can be made effective by the supply of munitions it will be merely offered up to helpless slaughter. A moment's thought of the importance of a modern army without airplanes, without tanks, without an adequate supply of food, clothing, medical attention, and all kinds of modern munitions, will make clear the tremendous importance which the work of the 'army back of the army' assumes in modern warfare. In recognition of this Congress provided that the Assistant Secretary of War shall be charged with * * * the assurance of adequate provision for the mobilization of material and industrial organization essential to war-time needs.'

"Stated in its elementary terms, the problem of munitions production is simple. It is to so marshal and direct all available resources and factors of the country—its farms, mines, it forests and factories, its industrial man power and its transportation—that an adequate supply of munitions may be made available to our troops promptly and at the same time to minimize as far as practicable the disturbance of our normal economic life. Though the problem is simple in statement, its proper solution is one of the most stupendous and difficult tasks which can confront a nation. It involves questions of finance, of industrial organization, of labor, of rigid curtailment in some industries and of enormous expansion in others, the many factors on a scale inordinately larger than that of the greatest of our industrial corporations.

"An idea of the magnitude of the task can be had from the fact that the war expenditures of the United States during the twenty-five months from April, 1917, to April, 1919, were approximately $23,500,000,000, or more than $1,000,000 an hour during the entire period.

"Experience during the World War showed that man power can be mobilized and trained much more quickly than factories can be diverted to the production of munitions. Under the best of conditions it will be nearly a year after the outbreak of war before quantity production of essential items can be secured, and in many cases much more time than this will be required."

Parade in Long Island.

The day will be observed in all sections of the Borough of Queens. In Long Island City and in Flushing there will be parades in which members of veteran and civic organizations, the National Guard, Organized Reserves, Citizens Military Training Camp students, members of the American Legion and Daughters of the American Revolution will march.

The exercises in Long Island City will be held at 8 P. M., at the Queens County Courthouse. The parade will precede the meeting. It will start at Queens Plaza. The ceremonies will begin with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner." The invocation will be by the Rev. Charles F. Chiney, and addresses will be made by Borough President Connolly, Deputy State Comptroller, and Assistant District Attorney Peter M. Daly. There will be patriotic music in charge of Frank Evans of the Y. M. C. A. The benediction will be by the Rev. Arthur M. Davidson.

At Flushing the exercises will be held in the armory at 8 P. M. In the parade there will be a regular army troop, the National Guard reserves, students from the Citizens Military Training Camp, members of the G. A. R., Spanish War veterans, Veteran of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, Daughters of the American Revolution, and members of other patriotic and civic organizations.

Move for Preparedness.

Colonel Walter A. Delamater of the Seventy-first Regiment of the National Guar, discussing Defense Day, said:

"Some of our people believe that the observance of Defense Day is unwise because they think the feature to be stressed is military preparedness for aggressive warfare. This country's wars have been in defense of liberty and the principles fundamental to our Governments, and have never been wars of aggression. Our geographical position and our ample resources for taking care of present and future population, as well as our traditions, make aggressive warfare in the future inconceivable.

"It is generally conceded that thousands of lives and tremendous expense would have been saved if at the outbreak of the World War more of our citizens had had military training and our industries organized to respond more quickly to national emergency. It would be folly not to profit by such experience.

"Men who in times of peace enroll for the defense of their country are not bloodthirsty, nor do they look forward to a time when they may make practical use of their knowledge of implements of warfare. They want to be well trained to serve if needed. They value their own lives, love their families and friends and plan to maintain their homes just as do men not in the military service, and their conception of serving their country through affiliation with the defense organizations is not only preparation to defend in time of need, but to serve their country at all times through mental, moral and physical development, which makes for better citizenship."

In accordance with resolutions adopted approving the National Defense Test Day, the Civilian Club of New York has perfected plans for active participation in the exercises.

Many of the officers, governors and members of the club are men of high rank in the military field, industrial, commercial and professional lines in this city and have given their time toward making the day a success. Members of the club have pledged cooperation and are planning to allow their employes to join in the exercises.

Jersey Town Opposed.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 11.—Mayor William P. Howe of Pennington, N. J., has informed Adjutant General Frederick Gilkyson he will not participate in or appoint committees as requested for a municipal demonstration of National Defense Test Day.

Mayor Howe declared the Defense Day Test will breed militarism and result in a "clanking of swords, when other nations are at peace."

The Mayor, who is a candidate in the Fourth New Jersey District for Congress, adds that instead of war he favors some plan to substitute reason for force.

Since the observance of Defense Day was planned with the idea of having the various communities cooperate voluntarily, the State Military Department is expected to take no further action in connection with the Mayor's refusal to do as other public officials are doing in compliance with the Government's request.

Illinois Labor Against Defense Day.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 11.—The annual convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor today unanimously adopted a resolution which "condemned" National Defense Test Day as a "militaristic demonstration more apt to lead to another war than be helpful in establishing world peace and brotherhood."

Speeder Who Dodged Police For Four Years Gets 5 Days

Four years ago Clarence Clark, 28 years old, of 106 Prospect Street, Brooklyn, ignored a summons for speeding his car. Yesterday when he was arraigned before Magistrate August Glatzmayer in the Traffic Court for driving a car without a license Sergeant John Campbell of the Warrant Squad recognized him.

The Magistrate suspended sentence on the more recent charge and Clark was arraigned on the old one. He admitted he was the man for whom Campbell had been conducting a four-year search. He was sentenced to five days in the Tombs.

TILDEN AND RICHARDS SCORE IN DAVIS CUP

PLAY LASTS 42 MINUTES

RICHARDS IS IN TOP FORM

Sweeps Through O'Hara Wood at Germantown Club in 56 Minutes, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2—Doubles Today.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—The tradition of William Tilden and William Johnston was carried on today when the national champion and Vincent Richards of New York defeated the Australians in the opening singles matches of the 1924 Davis Cup challenge round at the Germantown Cricket Club. Captain Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood found that they could make no greater headway against the new American combination than they did against "Big" and "Little" Bill in 1922, not even to the extent of taking a single set. Tilden defeated Patterson at 6-4, 6-2, 6-2, and Richards disposed of O'Hara Wood at 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

There was never any doubt about the outcome of either match. Forty-two minutes were all that were required for Tilden to win the opening contest and Richards did not lose any time either, bringing the play to an end in fifty-six minutes. All that is needed now for the United States to clinch the cup and set a new record for consecutive victories in the international classic is to take one of the three remaining matches.

Tilden and Johnston meet Patterson and O'Hara Wood at 3:30 tomorrow in the doubles and the two remaining singles matches will be played on Saturday, with Tilden meeting O'Hara Wood and Richards opposing Patterson.

The match between Richards and O'Hara Wood was much the better of the two today, and it was fitting that it should have been. It was to see the young Olympic champion make his début as a Davis Cup singles player that 8,000 spectators came out to Germantown. There would not have been that many had Richards not been on the card, for, as one follower of the sport expressed it, "who wants to come out to see the United States in another walkover."

Takes First Three Games.

Patterson knew that he had no chance of defeating Tilden, and his almost listless play at times was evidence of the fact. He started out well, as so many players do against Tilden, taking the first three games, and after that there was nothing to it.

There have been few challenge round matches as colorless as was this one. As the opposition was not furnished to make him play brilliant tennis, Tilden rose to brilliant heights only in spurts. For the greater part of the forty-two minutes that the men were on the courts the gallery sat in silence, moved to applaud now and then as Tilden sent over a smashing drive for a passing shot across court, or along the alley line, or when Patterson, aroused, made a cannon ball service ace or a terrific smash overhead.

The Australian did not make many of the latter, for Tilden kept his shots low and Patterson's net game, which was expected to be his biggest capital along with his service, failed him. The percentage of volley shots that Patterson brought off was very small, for Tilden seldom gave him the chance to get set to time his strokes accurately, and even when he did have a clear shot the ball would find the net.

It was Patterson's constant errormaking that defeated him, for he made exactly the same number of earned points as did Tilden, each scoring on sixteen placements and four service aces. Patterson was guilty of 68 errors to Tilden's 44.

Richards, like Tilden, was a bit slow in warming up and dropped the first two games to O'Hara Wood, but after those two games the New York youth held the centre of the stage, forcing the attack with full-length ground strokes and volleying as only Richards volleys these days.

From all angles and depths, off the backhand and forehand, the Olympic champion took the ball in its flight or off the ground with a continual succession of volleys and pick-ups that thrilled the gallery and kept them applauding constantly. O'Hara Wood, although guilty of repeated errors, particularly off Richards's severe service, played up better than was anticipated and forced his younger opponent to show his true mettle in numerous driving rallies that were punctuated with staccato volleys at close range.

It was in the final set that the best tennis—in fact, the only real thrill of the day—was furnished. With Richards leading at 5-3, 40—30, and needing only one more point to end the match, O'Hara Wood rallied to put up his most brilliant tennis and fight off defeat until he had taken three more games.

The gallery was in sympathy with the Australian in his plucky effort, even in spite of the fact that it was being made against Richards, and volley after volley of applause greeted him as he passed Richards on the most surprising shots from difficult quarters and kept the American racing from baseline to net and back again with a mixture of lobs and trap shots. It was only by a narrow margin that Richards prevented him from squaring the score at 5-all after O'Hara Wood had led at 30-0 in the tenth game.

Johnston Accompanies Tilden.

Tilden was the first to come out for the opening of the play, accompanied by Johnston in his street clothes. Among the officials who greeted the champion were Dwight F. Davis, Assistant Secretary of War, and former President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, donor of the cup, and President George W. Wightman and Julian S. Myrick, Chairman of the Davis Cup Committee.

Patterson followed Tilden out shortly after, and when they had posed for the photographers Paul W. Gibbons mounted the umpire's chair and play was called.

Patterson won the first game at 4—1 with his terrific service. The Australian broke through in the second game at the same score on Tilden's four errors, one a double fault. Tilden was playing indifferently, while Patterson was hitting the ball hard and to the baseline corners and forcing the champion to work to get to the ball.

Tilden gained a lead of 40—15 on Patterson's errors in the third, but lost the game at 4—3, after Patterson sent over a service ace and scored again on a chop from midcourt that caught Tilden running the wrong way. Tilden got started in the next game and took it at 4—1 on Patterson's four errors, three off service.

The American lot loses his speed in the fifth and scored placements off service and forces court to break through at love. He made it three games in a row and tied the score by taking the sixth at love, Patterson netting constantly. The Australian was playing poorly then and only occasionally were the rallies exciting enough to arouse the gallery. Tilden broke through again in the seventh at 4—2, Patterson hitting four points for the last, two points off service and a fifth from the net. The champion made it five games in a row by winning the eighth at 4—1 on Patterson's errors, most of them forced by Tilden's clever trap shots. After Patterson had won the ninth Tilden brought the set to an end by taking the tenth at 6—3.

Patterson started the service in the second set and won the first game at 4—3 on Tilden's two errors off service, a service ace and a kill. Tilden took the next four games, two at 4—3 and the other at 4—1.

There was little interest in the play and the applause was only occasional. Patterson broke through in the sixth at 4—2 when Tilden double faulted twice. He pulled up to deuce from 0—40 in the seventh on Tilden's outs, but erred in the next two rallies and lost the game at 4—3. Tilden won the set in the eighth, taking the game at 4—1 on a service ace and Patterson's three outs off service.

Tilden Forges Ahead.

The third set started off like the second. Patterson won the first game on service and Tilden then took three in a row, earning only two of the twelve points. The Australian showed a flash of brilliant tennis in the fifth game, scoring twice on beautiful placements and sending his service across the net with so much speed that Tilden was unable to handle it safely. This was only an expiring gesture, however, for the invader went down in the next three games.

Tilden won the sixth at 4—2 on errors, broke through in the seventh at 5—3 with three streaking drives for placements and won the eighth at 4—2 on errors.

Richards and O'Hara Wood then came on the courts, Hallock Sherrard officiating as umpire. Richards began the service and lost his opening game at 4—1 on two outs, a placement by O'Hara Wood and a double fault. O'Hara Wood took the second game at 4—2 on Richards's errors. The latter won the third game at 4—2 with forcing shots that earned points on errors.

The Australian played beautiful tennis in the fourth game, whipping the ball across the net and crowding Richards at the base line to win at 4—2. His last point was a neat drop volley. Richards, with flawless volleying, took the next two games at 4—1 and 4—3 and continued his winning form by taking the next three games also, making five in a row, for the set at 6—2.

Service Is Big Asset.

Richards's service was a big asset to him in the second set. In his first two games O'Hara Wood returned it faultily for six of the American's eight points. The next two games were divided, with O'Hara Wood capitalizing his delivery. Richards broke through again in the seventh after deuce had been called seven times and then speeded up his service and volleying to take the eighth for the set at 6—2.

O'Hara Wood made a big fight for the first game in the last set, but lost it at 6—4 and after Richards had swept through him with dazzling volleys and cross court shots in four of the next five games the Australian rallied to furnish the only thrill of the day, but Richards took the set and match.

Merion Cricket Club Bestows Life Membership on Mrs. Hurd

Robert W. Lesley, President of the Merion Cricket Club, who is here attending the national seniors' championship at the Aspawamis Club, announced yesterday that a life membership had been voted to Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, who, playing from Merion, captured the women's national championship at the Rhode Island Country Club last week. A similar tribute was paid Max R. Marston when he won the national amateur championship at Flossmoor last Fall. Peculiarly enough Mrs. Hurd's victory over Miss Mary Browne in the women's final marks the first time in the history of American golf that the men's and women's titles are held by members of one club. Mrs. Hurd enjoys the further distinction of being one of four women who have won the title three times, the others being Miss Alexa Stirling, Miss Margaret Curtis and Miss Beatrix Hoyt. She is also the only woman golfer with three national championships to her credit. In 1911 she won the British, Canadian and American titles.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., Sept. 11.—The opening guns of the 1924 international amateur golf matches between Great Britain and America—third of the series for the cup donated by former President George H. Walker of the United States Golf Association—will be fired at the Garden City Golf Club tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The members of both teams completed their preparatory practice over the famous old course built on the sandy soil of Hempstead Plains in 1897 and which has since then been the scene of many epochal struggles.

Plans have been made for the accommodation of a gallery of 10,000 persons and, while officials of the U. S. G. A. have received no definite word, one of them stated yesterday that he would not be surprised if among the crowd watching the stars of the two nations engaged in their annual struggle would be H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, formerly honorary captain and now an honorary member of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club at St. Andrews, governing body of golf in Britain. The Prince, an enthusiastic golfer, entertained the American golfers last year when they went over to defend the cup.

The first day's matches will be two-ball foursomes with four pairs on each side, playing over thirty-six holes, the morning round to start at 10 o'clock and the afternoon round at 2 o'clock. One point will go to each winning pair. The singles matches will be played on Saturday with eight players on a side, the matches likewise to be thirty-six holes and the starting hours the same.

Quimet and Guilford Paired.

Francis Ouimet, Boston, and Jesse Guilford, Boston, vs. Tolley, Royal and Ancient, and Major Charles O. Hezlet, Royal Portrush.

Max R. Marston, Philadelphia, and Gardner, Chicago, vs. E. C. Storey, Lancaster, and W. A. Murray, West Hill.

Jess W. Sweetser, New York, and Harrison Johnston, St. Paul, vs. T. A. Torrence, Sandy Lodge, and O. C. Bristow, West Byfleet.

The two Americans left out of the foursomes matches are Chick Evans of Chicago, winner of more important golf events than perhaps any other golfer in the game's history, and Dr. O. F. Willing of Portland, Ore., whose victory over Murray at St. Andrews last year was all that prevented the British from gaining possession of the trophy.

The two British players not chosen for the foursomes matches are W. L. Hope of Turnberry, runners-up to Murray in the recent invitation tournament held by the National Links of America at Southampton, and Dennis Kyle of Roehampton, whose chief claim to fame was the eliminating of Tolley from this year's British championship.

Hope and Kyle, however, will see service in the singles matches on Saturday, as will Hope and Kyle. The first two will replace Fownes and Johnston and the last two Robert Scott Jr. and Bristow.

The pairings for the single matches will bring Marston against Tolley in the top match; Jones against Hezlet, Evans against Murray, Ouimet against Storey, Sweetser against Michael Scott, Gardner against Hope, Guilford against Torrence and Willing against Kyle.

The exclusion of Evans's name from the American side in the foursome matches came as a great surprise to golfers, players and followers, who were out at the club today watching the stars in their last "tuning up" practice rounds. No reason was vouchsafed by Captain Gardner, however, and the general impression was that it was due to the fact that Chick failed to obey the "mobilization order" sent out by his chief.

The time set for the rendezvous was Sept. 10, and neither Evans nor Sweetser heeded the call. Both of them arrived at noon today, and Evans then proceeded to show that he is still the "demon golfer" in spite of his recent failures in championship events, even the Western amateur title, which he won eight times, four of them in a row, slipping from his grasp.

Evans Has Best Round.

Thoroughly familiar with the layout at Garden City, Evans went out yesterday and fairly "ate the course up," turning in a brilliant round of 70, three under par, and by all odds the best score made by any of the Walker Cup players since they began their practice. The other recalcitrant, Sweetser, likewise familiar with the setting, turned in a 72. Guilford had a 74 and Ouimet a 75.

The British players contented themselves with "merely knocking about a bit," to quote Tolley, and a practice putting session around about evening. They had received an invitation to attend the Wills-Firpo fight, but declined, saying that while they would like to be among those present at Boyle's Thirty Acres they felt that the British golfing public who contributed to the fund to send them to America might not look with favor on such a spree the night before the big test. Several of the American players, however, one of whom was Bobby Jones, expressed the belief that a little diversion would do them no harm and ventured forth to Jersey City.

Although every indication points to another victory for the Americans who have yet to lose one of these international affairs to their British cousins, Tolley, captain of the visiting team, was extremely hopeful of a victory.

"They are not going to show the strongest team in the world," said Tolley, "but appearances are deceiving. We expect the worst to turn sometime, you know. Our chances have been materially weakened by the inability of Roger Wethered and Ernest Holderness to get away. The former having just launched into business and the latter being an employe of the Home Office, but I believe that the team is even stronger than was last year's team, which gave your America the elite a fight if you remember. Our players have not the great reputations of Captain Gardner's side, nor are they as experienced, but they are all fine match players who, if in their proper stride, are capable of giving any one a battle.

Gardner was uncommunicative, saying that while the Americans ought to win golf is an uncertain game at best and upsets are always likely to happen.

Of the visiting golfers, only one enjoys the reputation equal to that of at least eight of the Americans. That one is Tolley, who defeated Gardner at Muirfield in 1920 and who was the outstanding figure in British golfdom this season when he won the French open from a field that contained, among others, Duncan, Hagen and Sarazen, was runner-up in the French amateur and finished first among the amateurs in the British open.

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Watson T. Dunsmore of the Tahmondasis Country Club, Utica, N. Y., who led the second half of the field today for the net honors in the United States Seniors' Association championship at the Apawamis Club, is one of the oldest golfers still active in the game. Mr. Dunsmore is 89 years and 6 months old and his gross score today was 92, which, with his handicap of twenty-two strokes, enabled him to lead the field by two strokes. It was only eight years ago that he took up the old Scottish pastime, and today was the first time in his career that he had ever succeeded in breaking the 100 mark. He and H. N. Johnson of Bridgeport, who led the first half of the field with a net total of 132 for the thirty-six holes of play, are nearly of an age.

HODDER IS MEDALIST IN INVITATION GOLF

Special to The New York Times.

ARCOLA, N. J., Sept. 11.—Richard A. Jones Jr. of Westchester Hills, winner of the honors in the invitation tournament of the Arcola Country Club last year, had a great opportunity to annex the medal in today's qualifying round, but frittered his prospects away on the last three greens.

Having reached the turn in 33, four strokes over par, Jones came up to the sixteenth tee needing only three par fours to capture the medal. One of his shots, however, went amiss and ended up in a trap, and not only in a trap but in a bad lie, so that it took him four to reach the green and two more to hole out. Somewhat flustered by the break, the metropolitan junior champion played the last two holes badly, taking a 5 on the seventeenth and a 6 on the home hole. A 35 for the final half would have given him a 74, but he took a 40 and finished four strokes to the bad.

As a result the medal went to Clark Hodder of the Commonwealth Club, Boston, one of the stars of the Bay State district and captain of this year's Harvard University team. Hodder, in spite of a trinity of 6s, one of them coming at the first hole, a par 4, came home in a brilliant 34 to win the medal. He was out in poor figures, taking a 41 against the par of 35. Willie M. Reekie of Upper Montclair, holder of the metropolitan amateur championship, who had previously won two legs on the trophy, had a disquieting time of it during the day and finished far down in the first division with an 82.

The first sixteen closed at 83, the two players to get in with that score being J. M. MacDonald of White Beeches and C. L. Pierson of Montclair. More than 125 golfers, the majority of them New Jersey players, took part in today's qualifying round.

The only game of the day canse when W. H. Taft of Montclair, runner-up for the intercollegiate championship and winner of the Greenwich invitation tourney, failed to qualify. Three players tied with Jones for second place, E. S. Smith of Montclair, Chester L. Maxwell of Trenton and J. E. Billings of Morris County.

COCHRAN A BANKRUPT; SPORTS VENTURES FAIL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—C. B. Cochran, one of the promoters of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, and sometimes called the "King of English showmen," has been made the subject of bankruptcy proceedings. He admitted today that he had not even a £5 note left.

A series of reverses, starting with a difficulty over the Carpentier-Dempsey contest, has ruined the entertainer, who once made $500,000 in one year.

The rodeo promoted by Cochran and presented at the British Empire exhibition this Summer by Tex Austin's cowboys was the last straw. Cochran had hoped to recoup his losses out of it, but he merely broke even.

Another failure was the Mayfair and Montmartre Revue, designed to reintroduce Delysia to London after two years in New York. Delysia lost her voice and Cochran lost $200,000.

R. KINSEY DEFEATS BOWMAN.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Robert Kinsey, Jerry Lang and Henry Bassford reached the semi-finals of the singles matches in the Southern New York State and Westchester County championship tournament on the courts of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club here today. Lang defeated W. M. Cauldwell, 7—5, 6—2. Bassford was carried to three sets by Paul Martin. Martin took the first set at 6—3 after a spirited contest, but Bassford rallied and wore down Martin, winning the next two sets each by a 6—3 score.

The best match of the day brought together Robert Kinsey and Herbert L. Bowman. Bowman swept through the first set to win, 6—3, but after a hard battle in the second set the turning point came when Kinsey emerged the victor by 7—5, and he took the third set and the match, allowing Bowman only two games. The other semi-final set is Leslie E. Dailey, who defeated Fred C. Mayer yesterday.

U. S. GOLFERS BEAT CANADIAN SENIORS

TWO CONTESTS ARE HALVED

Six Americans Score Clean Sweeps and Lyons, Dominion Champion, Wins From Snare.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The United States team today scored a brilliant triumph over the Canadian seniors in the seventh annual team match which was the feature of the third day of the 1924 championship of the United States Seniors' Golf Association at the Apawamis Club. The final score was 24 to 8, the Dominion players winning only three out of the fifteen matches and halving two.

The matches were decided on the Nassau system of scoring and six of the American players, Claude M. Hart of Boston, W. R. Truesdell of New York, A. H. Revell of Chicago, H. W. Croft of Pittsburgh, Marc M. Michael of New Jersey and Frederick H. Decker of New York, scored clean sweeps against their Dominion opponents. The only Canadian player to win three points was C. B. Robin of Montreal, who defeated W. E. Wells of Newell, W. Va.

George S. Lyon of Toronto, the perennial seniors' champion of Canada, and leader of the Dominion forces in today's lost cause, registered a two-point victory over Frederick Suarn of New York, former champion, while W. H. Wright of Toronto, playing against F. M. Bacon, Captain of the New York team, added the same number to the Canadian total. The only other Canadian point-winner was H. G. Wilson of Winnipeg, who, although defeated by H. S. Redfield of Hartford, Conn., who is now tied with Hart for the 1924 individual title, succeeded in collecting one point.

The players whose matches ended without decision were Hugh Halsell of Dallas, Texas, who halved with F. S. Parker of Toronto, and Harriet D. Cooke of Arcola, N. J., who halved with P. D. Ross of Ottawa.

Americans Lead, 5 to 2.

The Americans' victory today made the count five to two in their favor, the Canadians winning the first match, played at Montreal in 1918, by 23 to 19, and taking honors in last year's struggle at Montreal by 18 to 12.

All that the Canadians lacked was a few more Lyons, for this old master of the links, well on in the matter of years but still capable of holding his own with all comers, no age barred, registered one of the finest scores ever made in one of these competitions. He had a 73 for a medal score and would have been 72 but for missing a very short putt. The best score of any of the Americans was around 80.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 11.—The British six-meter team won the fourth race of the series for the British-American Cup, sailed off this harbor today, the point score for the race being 19¼ for the British team to 17 points for the American team. The victory of the British boats evens the series, with two races won by each team. The match will be decided when one or the other team wins four races. The fifth race of the series will be sailed tomorrow and the sixth race will be sailed Saturday.

The winning boat in today's race, which was sailed in a fresh breeze veering from west to northwest and then to south and blowing at twelve knots in the puffs, was Betty, the sloop owned by G. L. Haldenstein of the Royal Thames Yacht Club, and sailed by Colin Newman. Betty went into the lead soon after turning the first mark on the first round of the course and stayed there throughout. After she had headed Heron, the supposedly heavy weather boat of the American team, which sailed well all through the twelve-mile race, Betty merely sailed as she pleased over the rest of the course.

Captain Newman, who sailed Betty, although he may be a stranger to racing on Long Island Sound, certainly gave an exhibition of a racing helmsman who has been over this course many times before. He never overlooked an opportunity to better the position of his boat and played the tides and winds, which were tricky, to say the least, in a masterly way. It was Betty's second victory of the series, her first being scored on Saturday, in the first race, when the British team won.

Betty Has Big Lead.

Betty finished today's race at 3:51:48, her elapsed time for the twelve-mile course being 2:11:48. The Haldenstein six-meter had a big lead over the second boat to finish, which was Heron, Clinton H. Crane's yacht. Heron sailed a fine race under moderate conditions, supposed to be not her best weather. Heron finished at 3:52:59, or 1 minute 11 seconds astern of the winner. Zenith, another British boat, was third, 15 seconds behind Heron, sailed by C. F. Havemeyer. Dauphin, the fourth boat to finish was 56 seconds astern of Zenith and was sailed by Corney Sheilds.

Lea, J. F. Bermingham's American six-meter, which was well sailed by Harry Maxwell, but seemed to get the worst of the breaks, as far as the shifts in the wind were concerned, was fifth at the finish line, 55 seconds astern of Dauphin. Echo, which got a great lift in the breeze just after the start of the second round, was sixth, finishing 1 minute 30 seconds behind Lea, with Thistle, sailed by Joe Hannon, and Paumonok, sailed by C. Sherman Hoyt, finishing seventh and eighth, respectively.

Today's race was sailed under ideal yacht racing conditions, except for unpardonable interference from the following fleet of yachts with spectators aboard. These vessels time and again encroached on the course and interfered badly at times with the racing boats, especially with Betty and Paumonok. There was an especially large fleet of spectator boats out, their number being around ninety vessels. Included in the fleet were a large number of schooners, among them being Flying Cloud, Shawna, Moira, Halcyon, Sonnica, Sea Fox, Blue Water, Malabar V., John Alden's new flier; Bason Rock and Pequessing.

The start was made between the committee boat, the naval tug Sagamore and a mark moored two miles off Centre Island Point. The warning signal was made at 1:30 and the start ten minutes later. The first leg was a westerly run of two miles to a mark moored off Oak Neck on the Long Island shore, the second leg a broad reach of two miles to a mark moored in the middle of Long Island Sound, and the third leg a close reach of two miles, with a course due south, northeast back to the committee boat. The course was sailed twice around, the total distance being twelve miles.

Betty footed very fast from the start, in weather that was supposed to be especially favorable for the American yachts, and had soon worked out to weather of the fleet. Lea was outsailing Thistle at this stage of the race, while Dauphin and Heron seemed to be sailing like a team. Betty went on the starboard tack and just managed to weather Dauphin. Heron was the leading boat at this time, and Betty could not cross her bows. Betty made some short hitches, baffled for a time by the changing slant of wind, but could not weather Heron.

Betty Second Rounding Mark.

The Crane yacht kept going well and rounded the first mark on the first round at 2:08:00, being twenty-six seconds ahead of Betty at this mark. Dauphin was in third place, fifty-three seconds astern of Betty; Lea fourth, fifty-two seconds behind Dauphin; Thistle fifth, seventeen seconds behind Lea; Zenith sixth, twenty-four seconds astern; Paumonok seventh and Echo eighth, two minutes behind Captain Hoyt's yacht.

The second leg of the course was a broad reach, north, northeast, to a mark moored in the middle of the sound, and Betty immediately began to cut down Heron's lead. Heron ran out of the breeze momentarily and her mainsail flapped. Dauphin tried a spinnaker, but could not pull up on Betty with this added sail area. Betty carried the breeze along and half way to the second mark passed Heron, establishing a clear lead over the Crane yacht.

The Haldenstein sloop was reaching very fast and was the leading boat at the second mark of the course, rounding nine seconds ahead of Heron, which was holding on remarkably well. Dauphin was third, rounding fifty-eight seconds astern of Heron. It was very close at the mark among Lea, Zenith and Thistle. Captain Maxwell's boat had the inside position and rounded first, two seconds ahead of Zenith, with Thistle timed one second astern of her teammate. Paumonok was well astern of Thistle and Echo more than a minute and a half astern of the Seawanhaka entry at this stage of the race.

Betty was sailing in great shape and nearing the finish of the first round had opened up a commanding lead. She rounded the mark at the committee boat at 2:47:10, or one minute and six seconds ahead of Heron. Dauphin was still third and was timed twenty-one seconds astern of Heron. Zenith had been coming strong and was only fourteen seconds behind the green yacht. Lea was fourteen seconds behind Zenith and Thistle sixteen seconds astern of Lea.

Zenith Gains Rapidly.

Dauphin crawled upon Heron for a time after the yachts hauled on the wind for the second round of the course. The wind had hauled more to the southward at this time, so that the yachts could almost make a reach of the second windward leg. Dauphin had gone to weather of Heron but was astern. Zenith caught a favorable slant of wind and gained rapidly on the entire fleet, sailing up until she was just to leeward of Betty. Heron went on the starboard tack and passed astern of the Haldenstein boat, which still had a clear lead.

Betty rounded the weather mark at 3:15:28, being at that time fifty-eight seconds ahead of Heron. Zenith had now pulled into third place, jibing around the mark thirty-two seconds astern of Heron. Dauphin was fourth at the mark, thirty-eight seconds behind Zenith, with Lea fifth, fifteen seconds astern of Captain Lewis's yacht. At this stage of the game Paumonok was practically put out of the running by Thistle. The British boat had got to weather of the Seawanhaka entry and held Paumonok off until Echo had rounded the mark, establishing herself in sixth place. Thistle rounded twenty-eight seconds later, with Paumonok eleven seconds astern.

Heron had gained only ten seconds on Betty on the windward thrash. On the broad reach on the second leg of the second round of the course Betty began to outrun Heron. Betty rounded the second mark at 3:32:12, Heron being timed at 3:33:25, or one minute eleven seconds astern of the Haldenstein yacht. Zenith had been coming strong on the reach and was only nineteen seconds astern of the Crane yacht at this mark. Zenith had pulled out on Dauphin and was one minute five seconds ahead of the Gardner boat at the mark. Lea was thirty-three seconds astern of Dauphin and Echo more than two minutes astern of Captain Maxwell's boat. Thistle was seventh, twenty-seven seconds astern of Lea, and Paumonok ten seconds behind Thistle.

Betty had gained thirteen seconds on Heron on the second leg of the second round. After the leaders had rounded the mark for the final leg of the race they sailed to the southward for a time, apparently hoping for a fresh breeze. Zenith finally squared away and started to sail through Heron's lee. This move did not seem to work well, and Captain Lewis finally trimmed his sails and tried passing to weather of Heron. The Crane boat was going very well and Zenith, the fastest boat on a reach of the British quartet, did not get on even terms with the American sloop.

Betty was still moving finely and had a big lead on the close reach to the finish. She crossed the line at 3:51:48 and was greeted by a chorus of whistles. Heron was one minute eleven seconds astern of the winner, with Zenith, sailing very fast, fifteen seconds astern of the Crane yacht at the finish. Dauphin was fourth, fifty-six seconds behind Zenith.

BREAKFAST BELL CAPTURES NASSAU

BREUNING HAS A DOUBLE

Breakfast Bell, bred and owned by the Idle Hour Farm Stable, yesterday afternoon took away first money in the Nassau Claiming Stakes, a mile dash for three-year-olds and upward and the featured number on the card at the course at Belmont Park. The three-year-old daughter of Black Toney and Batter Cake, in with the feather of 91 pounds, led a field of ten past the winning post, earning $2,565 for the Western stable. R. Williams had the mount and the race was run in 1:38 2-5 over a fast track. The winner was little fancied and closed at 6 to 1.

The Salubria Stable's three-year-old filly Fluvanna captured the Kew Gardens Handicap for mares of all ages over the six-furlong course, while the Roxbury Handicap at five and a half furlongs for the two-year-olds was carried off by Robert L. Gerry's little bay colt Peanuts.

Weather conditions of the most enjoyable sort brought out a large mid-week attendance, but players of form met with reversals as only one public choice came home in front. Benny Breuning carried off the riding honors with a double, aiding Mary Agnes to an easy victory in the fifth and winning by a neck with Peanuts in the closing number. George Cooper appeared in the saddle in a race for the first time since his serious accident at Empire City, having the mount on Costigan in the fourth race.

Ten answered the bugle in the Nassau, in which the Rancocas Stable's Rigel was the 7-to-5 choice. After a good start J. W. McClelland's four-year-old gelding Banter set out to make the pace, hard pressed by Breakfast Bell, Rigel and P. S. P. Randolph's King Albert. Banter found the pace too hot and quit. Rigel then came to the front on the turn into the homestretch, while King Albert went wide and lost a couple of lengths on the turn. The race down the homestretch brought the spectators to their feet. At the end the filly came on, having slipped through on the inside, and outgamed King Albert, gaining the decision by a nod.

King Albert was three parts of a length in front of Rigel. R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Wampee, which won at 30 to 1 at Saratoga, was outrun in the early part of the race, but finished with great speed. J. J. Morgan's The Poet, three-year-old gelding by Sir Khayyam, and Golding, was claimed out of the race by Jack Richardson for $6,500. The fractional times were: 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:38 2-5.

Seven smart fillies, all of them three-year-olds, ran for the Kew Gardens Handicap, a dash of six furlongs on the main course for mares of all ages. The winner was the Salubria Stable's Fluvana by Cudgel—High Pass, which beat the Marrone Stable's Anna Marrone II. by a head after a spirited stretch duel. The winner was the favorite at 7 to 5.

The Queenswater Purse, a claiming event at a mile for three-year-olds and upward, was an easy victory for W. L. Hernstadt's filly Mary Agnes. The three-year-old daughter of Trap Rock and Lady Clinton, second choice at 7 to 2, broke fast from an outside position, assumed the lead from the rise of the barrier and showed the way all around the oval to the field of a dozen.

TILLIE BROOKE WINS EMPIRE STATE TROT

Takes $10,000 Race in Straight Heats, Remaining Unbeaten This Season.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 11.—Tilly Brooke, Tommy Murphy's sensational unbeaten trotting leader of the season, added to her triumphs today by winning in straight heats the Empire State Stake, classic three-year-old-trot feature of the Grand Circuit program, at the State Fair. The stake was worth $10,000.

Tilly Brooke, holder of the season's record for the mile trot, in 2:01¼, was in excellent condition, and Murphy had hopes of a record until it was seen that the regulation mile track was heavy. The event had to be shifted to the wet weather cinder track, rated as three seconds slower than the "big ring."

LACEY, IF HE PLAYS, WILL LEAD BRITISH

Challengers' Star May Replace Hurndall as Captain in First Match Tomorrow.

TEAMS IN FINAL PRACTICE

Invaders, With Argentine in Saddle, Have Light Workout—U. S. Four Also Loosens Up.

Although nothing seems to be quite definite in the international polo series, the first game of which has been postponed four times, the invaders from Great Britain are counting on the presence of Luis Lacey in the line-up for the opening match tomorrow. Lacey's attack of shingles which set in last Sunday has been improving steadily and last night indications were that the great Argentine rider and main star of England's forces would be able to lead the team from his regular position of back when the two teams take the field tomorrow afternoon at Meadow Brook, Westbury, L. I.

Should Lacey be able to play, which his present condition indicates, England will again shift its line-up, Major F. B. Hurndall, who has been in charge of the squad during the absence of Lacey, moving up to the No. 2 position, Major E. G. Atkinson going to No. 3 and being replaced by the rider from South America at back. With the shifting of Major Hurndall to the offensive line Lacey will again resume the responsibilities of leadership, the invaders feeling that the directing of the game should be done from one of the defensive positions. Major T. W. Kirkwood will remain at the No. 1 position and Major Geoffrey H. Phipps-Hornby will be relegated to the rôle of spare man.

The return of Lacey to the British team would not only increase the strength of the invaders but would add encouragement and confidence to their task of lifting the International Challenge Cup, which the Americans brought back to this country three years ago. Lacey is the only ten-goal man on the British squad, and with him in the line-up the team would carry an aggregate rating of thirty-five instead of thirty-three goals.

Both teams took light workouts yesterday, the British at Port Washington and the Americans on Phipps's field, Westbury. Neither game was of a formal nature, but was staged only in order to give the players an opportunity to limber their muscles, get their eyes on the ball and bring the ponies back to top form.

The sale of tickets continued at the offices of the United States Polo Association throughout the day. No refunds are being made on tickets, but the officials in charge are exchanging tickets for different games to suit the convenience of the purchasers.

Lacey took part in the British workout yesterday morning, and while he was not at the top of his form, naturally, he was able to swing his mallet quite freely despite a slight stiffness in his right shoulder, which was injured just before the British team departed from England and which was again injured on his first appearance in the United States.

In the opinion of Major Hurndall yesterday, it was a toss-up which team would win the first match. He said that the British chances should not be judged by the way the invaders have played in their practice matches. He admitted that the pessimism as to their ability to perform as a first-class team was justified by their showing in the practice matches, but with Lacey playing back, he said, the challengers might find the defenders on an off day and score a victory.

A report came to the attention of the polo officials that unofficial programs were being sold and announced that their programs would be on sale only within the grounds of the Meadow Brook Club.

MISS ORCUTT REACHES FINAL IN JERSEY GOLF

Beats Miss Parker, 4 and 2, After Being 1 Down at Turn—Miss MacGowan Wins.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 11.—Favorites came through today in the semi-final round of the women's New Jersey State golf championship, being held on the links of the Montclair Golf Club.

The star match of the day brought together Miss Maureen Orcutt, the 17-year-old girl from White Beeches, and Miss Martha T. Parker of Springs Lake and New York. For the first nine holes play was close, with Miss Parker leading 1 up at the turn. Commencing with the tenth hole, where Miss Orcutt squared the match, to the sixteenth hole, where the match finished, the Spring Lake girl halved only two holes. Miss Orcutt won by 4 and 2.

The other semi-final, between Mrs. Walter MacGowan of Glen Ridge and Mrs. Irving Brown of Knickerbocker, was an uninteresting match. Neither of the players performed her best. Mrs. MacGowan faced the eighteenth hole with a lead of 1 up. Both players were on the green in three strokes, but Mrs. MacGowan took four putts to three for Mrs. Brown, squaring the match. Mrs. MacGowan finally won the play-off hole with a 6, Mrs. Brown taking 7.

YANKEES WIN TWICE AS RUTH GETS 45TH

BABE'S HOMER SAVES FIRST

Accounts for 2 Runs and Ties Count in Eighth—Schang May Be Out for Season.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—The Yankees broke camp here and hit the trail for the West in a gay frame of mind late this afternoon. They won two games from the Red Sox, 4-3 and 8-3, and gained half a game on the Senators, who were only able to take the one registration contest today. Also, Babe Ruth struck off his forty-fifth homer of the season, a timely blow, which tied the score in the eighth inning of the second game.

It was a clean sweep for the champions of the four-game series here. The whole-year series of the Yanks and Red Sox also is over, and stands seventeen victories for New York to five for Boston. Tomorrow the Yanks step off in Buffalo for an exhibition game, and Saturday, in Chicago, they inaugurate their final invasion of the West.

In the first game young Walter Beall twirled pretty nicely, with the exception of just one inning. In seven frames he allowed only seven hits, and though he walked five men he fanned five. In the fourth round of Beall's, the fifth, in which the Red Sox made three hits and three runs, would have been quite enough to throw the Yank machine off its balance had it not been for the big bats of Ruth and Bob Meusel, who also made a homer. Long Bob's came in the second, off Howard Ehmke, and cleared the left field wall, while the Babe's went into the centre field bleachers with Dugan on base, as a result of a double.

Meusel's homer was his second in as many games and his tenth of the year. Ruth's was the ninth of his career off the lanky Mr. Ehmke.

Game Won in Ninth.

Ehmke yielded the winning run in the ninth. The Yanks were in no mood to be denied. Meusel opened the final round with a double to right and went to third when McNally, pinch-hitting for Hofmann, beat out a bunt to the pitcher. Ward's long sacrifice fly to Boone drove in Meusel.

Some excellent relief pitching was done the last two innings by Sam Jones, Beall having stepped aside for a pinch hitter. Jones did not allow a hit, though he was a bit wild, no doubt on account of the chill wind and the suddenness with which he entered the game.

The Red Sox runs in the fifth were started by Ezzell's single, a sacrifice and Ehmke's walk. Williams then hit to Pipp and Ezzell was run down trying for the plate, but Wambsganss crashed into a long fly to centre that Witt had no trouble to get. Witt, and was good for three bases, Ehmke and Williams scoring. Flagstead's single allowed Wambsganss to count. But that was all for the Sox. The Yanks out-hit them 9 to 7.

The second game was made easy for the champs by Bob Shawkey's fine pitching. Up to the ninth he had allowed only five safeties and two runs. Then he let down and four more hits and another run happened, but it did not matter, for the Yanks had clinched the game as early as the first round, when they drove Ferguson off the mound and made five hits and four runs.

Yanks Continue to Hit.

Rose took up the pitching burden and allowed the Yanks three more runs before he quit at the end of the seventh, and Joe George Murray the Yanks rang up enough hits to bring their total to 16. Whitey Witt doing the best with four singles and a sacrifice hit. Shawkey had a good time at the bat, as well as pitching prettily. He hit the fence with a double, and scored one run, as well as driving in the Hugmen's final run in the ninth with a single.

Ruth, Pipp, Meusel and Ward also got two hits apiece. The Babe got two passes, bringing his season's total walks up to 130. All of the Yank runs were earned except the one in the fifth, which was let in when Pipp, who had doubled to the left embankment, raced home when Ezzell threw Hofmann's grounder past first to the pavilion for an error.

The Yanks' one error was a three-base muff of Clark's fly by Meusel in the sixth, which allowed Harris, who had walked, to count. Meusel, who played the sunny right field here, had difficulty all during the series in handling lofty balls. Part of it was due to the sun's rays and part to the wind. Bob let Harris's high fly fielding through his hands in the ninth, but it was credited as a double for the Sox first sacker, as Meusel was running backward at the time.

The only earned run off Shawkey was in the third, when Hoving singled and was forced by Ross, who went to second on a passed ball and scored on Wambsganss's double. The former Cleveland second sacker is still about the most entertaining man Lee Fohl has.

Catcher Wally Schang took a train this evening for his home in Philadelphia. He is figured to be out with his broken thumb for practically the rest of the season. However, if it heals quicker than anticipated he will rejoin the team in the West. It is thought he will be ready in case the Yanks get in the World Series.

HEYDLER DENIES PROTEST BY REDS

President John A. Heydler of the National League rendered decisions yesterday denying three protests of games last month. He decided that the Giants had fairly won their game with Cincinnati on Aug. 19 in the latter city, that Pittsburgh was entitled to its victory over the Giants in the Smoky City Aug. 15, and that the Pirates, in turn, had no basis for a protest of the game won by the Phillies in Pittsburgh on Aug. 23.

The Giants protested the Pittsburgh game because Maranville, a base runner, picked up a foul ball on foul territory. John McGraw contended that this constituted interference, but President Heydler in his report shows that Umpire O'Day had already called the ball foul and that it was rolling further away from the foul line when Maranville picked it up. The decision being one of an umpire's judgment, it was not considered subject to appeal.

In the New York-Cincinnati game protested by the Reds, Jackson hit a ground ball over third with two out, driving in two runs. Umpire Pfirman first called it foul but reversed his decision. The Reds claimed that the reversal had affected the speed of the fielding of the ball by Left Fielder Bressler, but evidence presented to Mr. Heydler, he says, convinced him otherwise.

"In my judgment," says the President's report, "the game was decided on its merits and the result will stand in the records as played."

The Pittsburgh protest of the Phillies' victory was based on a hit by Morrison, which struck an object near the right field wall and was deflected to a pocket of the field behind an angle of the stand. It passed from the view of the umpires. The Pirates claimed that the ball passed through a hole in a gate outside the playing field and should have been a home run. The ball was returned by the outfielder in time to hold Morrison to a triple. President Heydler, in upholding the umpires, rules that the arbiters can be guided only by what they see and that the last view either umpire in the full and alert discharge of his duty, could possibly have had of this ball disclosed it within the confines of the playing field."

Their lead cut down to a half game again by Brooklyn's victory yesterday, the Giants will swing into the last lap of the pennant scramble today when they entertain the Cardinals at the Polo Grounds. Branch Rickey's merry men will be the first of the Western teams to start the final invasion here, and John McGraw probably will shoot Jack Bentley at them as an appetizer. The Robins have the day off and will mix it with the Bees tomorrow.

ROCKY MOUNT, N. Reports had it some time ago that the Yankees had bought Walker, but he denied this today.

ROBINS BEAT PHILS IN ELEVEN INNINGS

Quakers Make 5 in Eighth and Tie Score, but Lose in the End, 8-7.

BROWN'S HIT WINS GAME

Single Comes With Bases Full—Doak Knocked Out of Box—Dodgers Gain on Giants.

The Robins had a narrow escape at Ebbets Field yesterday when they came up on the Phillies after compiling what looked like a safe lead. In the eighth the Phillies flashed a batting rally that netted five runs and tied the score, and the Flatbush pennant chasers had to go eleven rounds before they gained the decision. The score was 8 to 7.

Five pitchers were used by the Phillies, and Bill Doak, who started for the Robins, was followed by Arthur Decatur and Dutch Reuther. The victory went to Reuther, who pitched the last three frames. Clarence Mitchell was the first member of the Phillies' staff to perform, and Weinert, Oeschger, Bishop and Carlson followed in the order named.

As a result of their victory the Robins moved up to within half a game of the Giants, who did not play.

High opened the eleventh with a single to left and after Johnny Mitchell sacrificed, Wheat was purposely passed. Johnston was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. It was up to Eddie Brown to end the game, and he did so with a single to right that sent High home with the winning tally. Incidentally, Brown made four of the ten hits collected by the Flatbush outfit.

Robins Take Early Lead.

Robbie's pennant chasers got busy in the opening inning and scored their first run. High walked, took third on a double to left by Johnny Mitchell and scored on Wheat's sacrifice fly to Williams. The Phillies matched the tally in their half of the second, when Wrightstone led off with a single, took second on an infield out and scored on Holke's single to left. In their half of the same frame the Robins increased their attack on Clarence Mitchell and tied the lead. Brown was first up and tripled off the right field wall. He held third while Stock was being tossed out, but scored on De Berry's sacrifice fly.

In the third the Robins increased their lead. High and Johnny Mitchell drew passes and when Johnston bounced a single off Sand's shins, High dented the plate. The Robins chased Clarence Mitchell off the slab in the fourth and scored two more runs. Weinert replaced Mitchell, but before the relief pitcher entered the game singles by Brown, Griffith and Deak, a pass to Stock and Wrightstone's muff of a throw to third base netted the locals six tallies.

Weinert was unable to last through the fifth and the Robins added two more runs to their credit. Wheat first up, was safe on a fumble by Sand, and Johnston drew a pass. Wheat scored on a two-bagger by Brown. Stock drew another pass and De Berry's sacrifice fly to Williams enabled Johnston to score.

Deak Weakens in Eighth.

Oeschger took Weinert's place and prevented further scoring. The Phillies scored their second run in the seventh when Ford doubled with one out and counted on a single by Holke. In the next frame Deak weakened and before the visitors were retired they had knocked the veteran off the mound and tied the score by sending five runs over the pan. Deak started by passing Mokan. Williams made a single, and after Harper was retired Wrightstone singled and Mokan scored. Ward and Wendell followed with singles that scored Williams and Wrightstone. Holke filled to Griffith, but Wilson batted for Bishop and hit a two-bagger to right that scored Ford and Wendell and evened the count. Decatur then replaced Deak and fanned Parkinson, a pinch hitter, for the third out.

Fournier batted for Decatur in the Robins' half of the eighth and Reuther succeeded him on the mound. In the ninth the Phillies got three men on the bases with two out, but Carlson ended the frame with a foul to De Berry.

The season's series between the Robins and Phillies resulted in seventeen victories and five defeats for the Flatbush team.

Giants' Lead Cut to 6 Points; Yankees Gain on Senators

With the Giants idle yesterday because of a break in the schedule, the Robins gained a half a game on the league leaders by defeating the Phillies. The Brooklyn club now is a half a game, or six points in the percentage column, behind the champions. The Pirates, who are in third place and who also were idle yesterday, are now three games behind the Robins.

In the American League all three of the leading teams triumphed yesterday. The Yankees, however, scored two victories and thus made a gain of half a game. They are now only one full game behind the Senators. The Tigers, in third place, are four games behind the Yankees.

The standings of the leading teams in each league, together with the number of games each has to play, follow:

Manager's Drive in Ninth With Two On Clinches Victory—Marberry Has Better of Duel.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Washington made it three out of four in its series with Philadelphia by taking today's game, 7 to 4. For seven innings Marberry and Rommel engaged in a hurling duel with the former having slightly the better of it, but Rommel weakened in the eighth and the Senators scored two more runs.

A homer by Manager Harris with two on in the ninth made victory sure. Marberry eased up in the closing innings, allowing the Athletics to score a run in the eighth and two in the ninth.

BOARD BARS DUNDEE IN FEATHER CLASS

JOHNSTON IS REINSTATED

Ban Is Lifted on Ex-Champion's Manager—To Watch Villa and Genaro at Work.

The New York State Athletic Commission yesterday announced that it had accepted formally the statement of Johnny Dundee wherein he relinquished all claim to the world's featherweight title. At the same time, however, the board also announced the adoption of a ruling which will perpetually bar Dundee from contesting at the 126-pound featherweight limit, either in this or any other State.

This is the first official action taken by the commission since Dundee startled the pugilistic world about a month ago by notifying the board that he would vacate his title, won from Eugene Criqui a year ago, because he felt he no longer could make the weight and do justice to himself.

The commission's move in forever prohibiting Dundee from appearing as a featherweight, it is explained, was made to avoid complications in the event that Dundee would return to the division after a new champion had been crowned. No feasible plan for producing a new titleholder, however, has yet been advanced, but Commissioner George B. Brower indicated that the New York body soon hopes to be in a position to take some definite action whereby a successor to Dundee would be brought forth by the process of elimination.

The commission also announced yesterday the reinstatement of Charlie Johnston, acting manager for Dundee. Johnston had been suspended by the commission after repeatedly failing to sign Dundee for a bout in defense of the featherweight title against Louis (Kid) Kaplan. Dundee at present is in training at West Orange, N. J., in preparation for his fifteen-round battle with Jack Bernstein at the Queensboro Stadium next Monday, and apparently has no intention of returning to the featherweight ranks. Dundee expects to come in close to the 135-pound mark for Bernstein.

Announcement also was made by the commission yesterday that a close watch would be kept on the condition of Pancho Villa, world's featherweight champion, and Frankie Genaro, who will clash in their postponed title match at the Nostrand A. C. on the night of Sept. 23. Genaro, whose sudden illness last week caused the postponement, reported to the commission in person and pronounced himself satisfied that he was physically fit. He said that he would resume training at once at Stillman's gymnasium. Villa is continuing his training at Summit, N. J. Chairman Brower issued instructions that a deputy of the board should visit the camps of the two boxers every other day and keep the commission in close touch with the condition of the boxers up to the day of the bout.

INDIANS WIN TWO FROM THE BROWNS

Ellerbe's Homer, With 3 on Base, Helps Take Opener, 12-7—Score in Final Is 10-6.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—Cleveland defeated the Browns in both games of today's double-header, winning 12 to 7 and 10 to 6. Both games were marked by heavy hitting. In the ninth inning of the first contest Frank Ellerbe, Cleveland third baseman, hammered out a home run, with the bases full. He was the first batter Dave Danforth faced after relieving Vangilder.

Jacobson, the Browns' centrefielder, rapped out a circuit drive in the eighth inning of the first game, with McManus on base. Ten pitchers were used in the two games by Manager Sisler, seven in the last contest.

To Keep Hair Curly, Wavy and Beautiful

Here is how your hair can be curled nicely, easily and harmlessly, to "stay curled." Before doing it up as curlers apply a little liquid silmerine with a clean tooth brush. This will give you just the prettiest curls and waves—and they will look and feel so natural you'll never think of doing without silmerine thereafter. You won't be troubled any more with hair straying around over face—nor with that dull, dead appearance. The hair, whether long or bobbed, will remain in curl ever so long.

Any druggist can supply you with liquid silmerine. At cost to exceed 50 cents an ounce. It is neither sticky nor greasy, and is really a delightful thing to use. It is doubly beneficial because of also acting as a beneficial dressing.

STRIKE ON CANADIAN PRESS.

Operators Refuse Wage Cut Offered by News Organization.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—Telegraph operators employed by The Canadian Press went on strike this afternoon in accordance with an ultimatum served by the operators' general committee that the men would leave their keys if the news gathering organization did not withdraw its recent proposal to reduce the wages of the telegraphers.

Before the strike was made effective, J. F. B. Livesey, General Manager of The Canadian Press, made public a telegram which he sent last night to Rooke Johnson, International President of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, offering to arbitrate the dispute under an agreement signed on Sept. 1, 1923.

Mr. Livesey, in discussing the strike tonight, said his organization was in direct touch with New York, Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Vancouver, in addition to its Ontario membership. He asserted that every morning newspaper in Canada would receive today's news and stated that messages of approbation on the stand of the Canadian press had been received from members as far west as Saskatchewan.

"A message from the union's international President, Rooke Johnson, at Chicago," he asserted, "seems to condone the action of subordinate offices of the Commercial Telegraphers Union of America in breaking their agreement with the Canadian press. So far as this company is concerned that union has ceased to exist."

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Paul F. Schnur, Vice President of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, at Toronto, is in full charge of all details in connection with the strike of telegraph operators of the Canadian Press, Rooke H. Johnson said today.

He said he sent a telegram to Mr. Livesey to that effect.

RAILROADS READY FOR HUGE TRAFFIC

BIG SYSTEMS OPTIMISTIC

Store-Door Delivery Plan Approved by Shippers' Board—Trucks' Waste of Time at Piers Costly.

A recent decrease in carload freight shipments, largely due to the falling off of coal movement in the East, was reported yesterday at a conference in the Hotel Comodore between railroad executives and the Atlantic States Shippers Advisory Board, representing 500 of the largest railway shippers in the country. Reports from six of the large railroads supplying the Atlantic States, however, were optimistic in trend.

"I believe it would be well to call attention to the appreciably slack movement of coal during the Summer," J. O. Halliday, Superintendent of Transportation of the New Haven and Central New England Railroads, reported. "The receipts for 1924 have thus far been below what they should be if we are to avoid an unduly heavy coal movement this Fall and Winter, when operating conditions are less favorable than in the months of open weather and when we have a heavier movement of other commodities."

Throughout the Pennsylvania Railroad System there are no accumulations of freight or operating conditions that would merit special mention, Vice President C. S. Krick reported.

H. G. Pierson, General Freight Agent of the Lehigh and Hudson River, reported that his line was free from congestion and was prepared to handle any business offered.

Soon to Absorb Surplus Cars.

"The movement of freight is unimpeded and terminals are clear of congestion," D. E. Spangler, General Superintendent of Transportation of the Norfolk & Western, reported. "The prospect is that Fall movement of stock and coal will soon absorb our surplus cars."

Donald Wilson, for the Long Island, said the expansion program under way will materially increase the road's ability to interchange with the trunk lines.

"For the thirty-four weeks of 1924 ending Aug. 23 the carloads of freight were only 4.8 per cent. less than for the similar period in the record year of 1923," W. J. Basham, General Traffic Manager of the Otis Elevator Company, chairman of the Advisory Board, "the decrease being largely in coal. We are safe in predicting a rapid rise in coal production in the coming weeks, and an added burden that should have been spread over a longer period will be thrown on the carrier. Northwestern crops are now beginning to move and are making an appreciable dent in the surplus of equipment."

Recommend Store-Door Delivery.

A report by the Store Door Committee appointed in May to see what could be done to expedite the movement of freight from terminals to the premises of consignees, was adopted. The committee declared that increased flexibility of terminals is of greater importance than an increase in car supply.

The committee found that most rail terminals have not been enlarged of recent years, despite increasing traffic, and that store-door delivery might be a step in the right direction. The report continued:

"It is the opinion of your committee that in the establishment of store-door delivery, these principles must be observed if the system is to be successful: (1) The service must be optional. (2) The carrier must assume full responsibility to and from the store door. (3) The cost of store delivery should be borne by shippers and receivers. (4) The trucking charge must be just and reasonable. (5) Store-door delivery should be established gradually.

"The trucking charges for the service must be such as to attract the business to the carrier. The charge should reflect the advantages to the carrier of increased terminal flexibility. Unless the trucking charge is at least as low as the present cost to shipper or consignee, your committee believes there will be no inducement to them to entrust this service to the carrier. Any attempt on the part of the carrier to profit on terminal service will defeat the object to be attained."

Shippers' Board Praised.

"The Shippers Advisory Board is proving the means by which the sincerity of the railroads to give adequate service is guaranteed and will safeguard both railroads and shippers from legislative and other regulatory policies, Vice President W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad told the shippers. Eventually there will be a liberal understanding between the railroads and the shippers, he added, that fair rates enabling the railroads to pay liberal wages to their employes will pay in the long run.

The Port of New York Authority's plan to establish a subterminal for freight in each of the eight lateral zones on Manhattan Island to relieve pier congestion was presented by Major Hilbu Church, transportation engineer. He said every motor truck sent to a pier took sixty-eight minutes to unload, wasting fifty-four minutes at 6 cents a minute or $3.24, a sum sufficient to move the truckload 400 miles on a railroad.

He believed his unified terminal plan to replace the present pier system would relieve the city's merchants of a burden of $100,000,000 annually. All goods in a certain zone would go to the central depot, regardless of their destination, and from there would be rerouted.

HYLAN CAUSES FLURRY BY SUMMONING AIDS

Department Heads Troop In Anxiously, but It's Only to a Heart-to-Heart Chat.

Mayor Hylan summoned his thirty-seven Commissioners and bureau and department chiefs to a twenty-minute talk behind closed doors in the City Hall yesterday. The summons caused a mild sensation among the officials, who trooped into the Mayor's meeting room looking like men who hoped for the best but feared the worst.

When the Mayor was asked what the conclave meant after it was all over, he replied:

"It was just a sort of an after-vacation get-together talk. You see, I had not had the Commissioners together in some time and I wanted to have a heart-to-heart chat with them. I think these talks help keep up the morale of departments, because the Commissioners, when they leave here, will do so with the assurance that I will back them up when they are in the right.

"I told the members of my official family to see to it that the departmental politicians, the fellows who are always trying to dodge work on the pretext that they have more pull than the average worker, shall be compelled to perform 100 per cent. service or get out and look for another job. No special complaints have come to me, but I thought it would do no harm to let the conscientious workers, who are in the majority, know that I am with them.

"I also spoke to the Commissioners about the ball game to be played between the picked baseball teams of the New York City and Philadelphia Police Department Sept. 19 and asked them to do all in their power to make the sale of tickets for this game unusually large. After deducting 10 per cent. for uniforms the receipts of the baseball game will be deposited in the fund of the Mayor's Committee on Reception to Distinguished Guests."

WOLF FUR TAKES LEAD AT AUCTION

OPOSSUM ALSO IS ACTIVE

Prices for the Australian Variety Are 50 Per Cent Over Spring Rates—Total Now $1,450,000.

Although mink was the principal offering at the Huth fur sale in the Hotel McAlpin yesterday, the real feature was the bidding for wolf and Australian opossum. The snap to the demand for wolf came as a surprise to most of those present, as this article had not been in very active demand.

While it was said on the floor of the salesroom that quite a little of the buying of wolf was of a speculative nature, there was no question that the dealers wanted this fur. The attendance was good while it was being sold, and prices averaged about 10 per cent. above recent levels of the open market. The highest price, $17.25, was brought by a lot of fine, extra large Northwestern and Canadian skins.

A good part of the day was given over to the selling of trimming furs, including, in addition to wolf, such skins as kolinsky, fitch, Chinese weasel and Australian and ringtail opossum. Of these the opossums did best. The Australian variety showed a rise of 50 per cent. over the Spring averages, while a rise of 40 per cent. was shown by the ringtails. Bidding for Australian opossum, while no more determined than that for wolf, was faster and at times the "ups" at the spotters came almost with the rapidity of machine-gun fire.

Competition for fitch was good, and while the call for kolinsky was stronger than some buyers had expected, it dropped 10 per cent. in comparison with Spring sale averages. Mink moved rather slowly, despite its importance as an offering, and the result was that part of the collection had to be put over until today. Selling will begin with catalogue lot 5509. Of the mink sold yesterday, the best lot brought a price of $13.75 each. An interesting offering was the first one of the day, that of house cat. Good quality black and blue skins brought a top price of 75 cents each, while blue skins of good size fetched 65 cents.

Due to the character of the skins sold yesterday, and also to the necessity of holding over part of the mink collection until today, sales did not run as high as earlier in the week. They reached $200,000, however, which brought the grand total for four days up to $1,450,000.

	High Price.	(Per cent.)
House cat	$0.75	*10
Wild cat	10.10	* 5
Wolf	17.25	10
Timber wolf	45.00	10
Ringtail cat	2.10	15
Kolinsky	3.75	*10
Fitch	3.45	15
Chinese weasel	1.35	*-
Japanese raccoon	3.60	*-
Australian opossum	3.45	50
Ringtail opossum	1.10	40

*Decline. †Unchanged.

In addition to the mink and polar bear left over from yesterday, these skins will go on the block today: Bear, Japanese marten, beum marten, stone marten, marten and squirrel. Of the last-named 328,084 will be sold.

Gray Goods Slightly Firmer.

Some constructions of gray goods, more especially standard printcloths, took on a slightly firmer tone here yesterday. Sales of 39-inch 68-72's and 39½-inch 64-60's were made at 9½ and 8½ cents, respectively. While reports were heard of sales at an eighth lower in both cases, they could not be confirmed. Some 39-inch 80-squares were let out at 12¾ cents and there was trading in 39-44's in that width at 7 cents. For 39½-inch 64-60's buyers paid 5⅝ cents. Not a great deal transpired in sheetings, apparently, although further sales of 37-inch 48-square four-yard goods were made at 10¼ cents. Trading also took place in 36-inch 5.50-yard sheetings at 7¼ cents. Additional spot business in 72-80 pajama checks was done at 10½ cents.

Brushed Sweaters in Lead.

The demand for brushed sweaters with convertible "choker" collars in both the thirty-inch and three-quarter lengths features the business that is now being done here in novelty knit goods for women. In mohair yarns these garments may be had to retail around $7.50 for the thirty-inch length, while the same length sweater made of vicuna yarns retails at about $10. The three-quarter sweater retails from $16.50 to $35, according to the king of yarn in it. Unbrushed two-piece knitted suits, smartly tailored and with brushed vicuna trimmings, are coming into vogue as a result of the cool weather. These retail from $25 up. In the more expensive garments of this type imported Scotch marles with heavy fibre silk stripes running horizontally through them are much in favor. Suits of these materials retail around $45.

Cool Weather a Great Help.

The cool weather is a marked factor in the good start which retailers of both men's and women's apparel are getting on the Fall season. Wholesalers comment that its influence is being felt by them to a very noticeable degree, in that retailers are now very anxious to speed up immediate delivery purchases. If the situation continues as it has been for the last two weeks, it will present very different aspects from the same time last year and even later, when complaints of lack of selling weather were very common. It is figured that the September figures of the department stores will show a healthy increase over that month last year. The figures for August now available indicate that that month was not particularly satisfactory for the stores, as the average shows a decrease.

Deliveries Are Running Behind.

With brushed goods playing a prominent part in the business being done in knitted novelties for women, manufacturers of this merchandise are again facing the problem of speeding up production. Several leading producers of the goods are reported to be as much as four weeks behind in deliveries, with little chance of catching up for some time. Some of the mills are working two shifts in an endeavor to meet the demands of buyers, and are running their brushing machines an average of twenty hours a day. The machines are stopped only to permit them to cool off.

Furniture Sales Somewhat Slow.

According to reports in retail circles the Fall sale of furniture has not started in a satisfactory way. The demand is spotty and retailers in some sections not experiencing good results in their department have inquired as to what was being done by retailers in other sections. No particular reason is set forth for the slowness thus far, except ing that the season has not yet had time to well started. Retailers figure there is no real lack of consumer purchasing power, as bank deposits are growing, and believe that the present condition will shortly change. In quite a few stores, however, it is recognized that the consumer is buying furniture with definite price limits in mind and that the instalment system is being used more.

Fur Operators Are Scarce.

If anything was needed to round out the reports of improved business conditions in the fur trade, the scarcity of operators which now confronts manufacturers would supply this. A casual walk along the streets of the fur manufacturing centres reveals many signs pasted on the windows to the effect that operators are wanted inside. Some of the manufacturers who have had their scouts out even in the operators usually congregate on Sixth Avenue in the morning and at noontime have had them come back reporting their efforts were not particularly successful. The condition, manufacturers say, necessitates their running short-handed for a while and, in the case of makers of low-priced garments, they cannot handle all the orders that are beginning to come in. The coat and suit contractors cannot afford relief to the fur trade now as they are also busy on Fall garment production.

Are Using Standard Invoice.

Dry goods retailers throughout the country are impressing on the manufacturers who sell them merchandise the necessity of using the standard form of purchase invoice. This invoice was recently adopted by the Conference Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association and 400,000 copies of it have been sent out to member stores. The retailers in turn have sent copies to their manufacturing accounts and Theodore L. Blanke, director of the congress, said yesterday his office has had many personal visits and mail communications from manufacturers, who express their willingness to meet the retailers' views on the standard invoice. "If it means the saving of a large item of expense to the retailers," said Mr. Blanke, "the manufacturers realise this and are cooperating very satisfactorily. It would be a good thing, in my opinion, for the manufacturers and jobbers to form a similar standard form for the people from whom they buy their requirements."

Raw Silk Situation.

The local raw silk market has quieted down somewhat after the large buying of last week and prices have eased off a trifle in consequence of a weaker tone on the Yokohama market. It is thought, however, according to H. L. Gwalter & Co., Inc., that the reaction is of a temporary nature and that the market is likely to move again to higher points. The lower prices are already beginning to attract renewed interest on the part of buyers. Conditions in the fabric market are decidedly encouraging and a better tone is beginning to make itself felt in the hosiery industry, which promises to become an active factor shortly. The Yokohama market has lapsed into dullness since the end of last week, influenced by operations for a decline on the bourse. Canton is quiet and holders are willing to make concessions in order to revive the American demand. All activity is at a standstill at Shanghai owing to military operations. Europe is doing all the buying at Milan.

Jewelry Business Is Improving.

Business in jewelry continues to improve slowly here, but the orders coming in could be substantially larger without indicating a boom condition. Office business keeps up fairly well from day to day, and a fair volume of orders is coming in from men now on the road. Most of them are from points in the Middle West and South. Quite a little of the business received by makers of the more expensive goods calls for remounting or other special work. Platinum continues firm at $120 an ounce for the soft metal, $128.50 for the medium and $137 for the hard.

Dresses Are Doing Well.

In both sleeved and sleeveless models, dresses are selling more freely for Fall in this market than had been generally expected. With the new mantles and capes, they are favored particularly for wear to tea, bridge and mah jong parties and other indoor functions, as well as for street wear until colder weather comes. Silk dresses are topping the demand just now, with satins the most favored materials. The favor with which chenille dresses are generally regarded was said yesterday by a well-known factor in the trade to be due largely to the excellent models the designers have turned out this season. In these garments it was further said, more progress has been made from the style point of view than in any other kind of apparel for women.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The centre of financial interest in the markets shifted yesterday. There was a moderate though irregular advance on the Stock Exchange, but it attracted little notice; the extent to which it was based on professional activities was shown by the shrinkage of the day's transactions to the smallest total since the week before Labor Day. In only two days since June has the business been so light. But yesterday's grain markets came emphatically into notice, and a somewhat aggressive move taken by the Bank of France drew attention to the Paris market and the foreign exchange rates.

Wheat rose 4 cents a bushel at Chicago, reaching the highest price since Aug. 23; the September delivery, at $1.97, sold 8 cents above the low figure reached in the downward reaction toward the close of August. Apparently this abrupt advance was a somewhat belated reflection of the very large orders for export known to have been lately placed in the American market. It would seem that prices had been kept back through belief that Tuesday's raising of the Spring wheat estimate would emphasize the downward tendency; but yesterday's market made no such responses.

That the foreign buying is at present exceptionally large there has been abundant evidence; it is not wholly reflected even by the recent exports of two to three million bushels more per week than in September and August of last year. Yesterday's market also had before it a new official estimate of Canada's wheat crop shortage. The indicated yield is marked up 9,000,000 bushels from the August forecast; but Chicago had been predicting a much more radical correction, and the present estimate is still 194,000,000 bushels short of last year's harvest. On top of this, the Department of Agriculture estimates a total decrease of 278,000,000 bushels from 1923 in all producing countries north of the Equator. The 4-cent rise in corn was probably a speculative move in "sympathy" with wheat.

Although reflected only slightly in the foreign exchange market, yesterday's marking-up of rates on collateral loans by the Bank of France from 7 to 8 per cent. was an action of considerable significance. It was taken by international bankers as part of the corrective policy indicated by the renewal and extension of the bank's $100,000,000 American credit, by which the fall of the franc was stopped last March. Recent weakness of the franc has not been unconnected with the persistent rise in the French paper currency. This increase of Bank of France note issues, which now stand nearly at the highest point in their history, has not been due to borrowing by the Treasury; the bank's loans to the State are this week 800,000,000 francs below this week last year, while note circulation is higher by 2,000,000,000. It has resulted from an increase in the twelvemonth of more than two billions in the institution's private discounts. With the outstanding note issues uncomfortably close to the legal maximum, the purpose of the bank's advance of the rate on other than commercial loans is evident. Yesterday's weekly statement showed that reduction in discounts and circulation had begun already.

Money was again very easy yesterday; in the market for Stock Exchange demand loans the 1¼ per cent. "street rate" which marked the dullest midsummer period has again come into evidence. The weekly Federal Reserve statement reflected the situation quite unmistakably. The system's rediscounts, which had increased $39,400,000 the week before, were reduced this week $40,600,000, almost entirely at the New York bank. Even the note circulation, after increasing for two successive weeks, has fallen $10,000,000.

Advance in prices on the Stock Exchange was more noticeable in the industrial shares than in the railways. A number of what Wall Street calls "the specialties" rose 1 to 3 points without any reference to any news. The bond market continued firm, with larger total transactions than on any day since the closing week of August.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 11, 1924.

Stock Exchange call money continued soft at 2 per cent., charge of 1½ prevailing in outside market. Aggregate turnover, however, was much below total hitherto taken, a sum running into five figures remaining unloaned at close. Time money enjoyed a spurt, there being an especially keen demand for ninety-day funds, which were quite freely taken at 3 per cent., compared with 2½, which ruled earlier. Four to six months continued 3@3½ per cent., while borrowers' bid of 2½ per cent. for sixty days was unattractive, for banks refuse to lend under 3. Situation in merchants' paper has brightened; dealers say, paper coming in in better volume and the demand about matching paper for sale.

ASKS AUTHORIZATION TO SELL MORE SHARES

Certain-Teed Products Directorate Calls Stockholders' Meeting in Baltimore Sept. 30.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Certain-Teed Products Corporation has been called for Sept. 30 in Baltimore to authorize the issuance of 500,000 shares of additional common stock. At the same time the directors ask for the power to issue or sell any amount of this common stock from time to time at not less than $40 a share.

George M. Brown, President of the company, in a letter to stockholders in connection with the call for the special meeting said in part:

"In order that our company may secure greater financial strength in various respects we are proposing to empower the Board of Directors to sell additional amounts of common stock, with proper limitations as to prices, thus enabling the directors to act without delay when most favorable conditions are found for such action. It is also proposed to increase the authorized common stock of the company. The stock which it is now proposed to give the board authority to sell has already been authorized.

"We look forward to the continued growth of the business and additional funds will be needed to take care of such growth. It may be desirable to take action for the retirement of bonds prior to maturity, and also toward redemption of preferred stock. We have reason to expect to be able to proceed favorably with some of these matters at an early date. The largest stockholders who have been consulted on these matters have already given their full approval to these proposed plans."

P. R. R. Revenue Freight Drops.

The Pennsylvania Railroad handled 168,078 loaded revenue freight cars during the week of Sept. 6, compared with 161,807 in the previous week and 162,116 in the same week of last year.

CITY OF BERLIN PLANS TO SEEK LOAN HERE

Will Open Negotiations When German Government Completes Its Financing, Paris Hears.

The City of Berlin was reported yesterday to have decided to turn to the American money market for a loan.

The move, as told in Paris advices, has not yet reached a point where formal negotiations have been opened, but it was said that city officials had considered the advisability of getting an American loan and planned, soon after the German Government loan, to negotiate with American bankers, who in the last two weeks have received in the neighborhood of three or four hundred requests for loans from German corporations and several from municipalities and corporations in other European countries.

Proceeds of such a loan, it was presumed, would be used principally for helping to straighten out the finances of the city. Improvements have been going on fairly well despite the chaotic condition of Germany's currency. Other German cities, it was believed, would also seek loans in the course of the next year.

The company will pledge $7,500,000 of first and refunding mortgage 4 per cent. gold bonds as collateral.

Selling Radio Concern's Shares.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Tower Tour in Stocks in Late Trading.

Following an irregular opening on the Stock Exchange yesterday, in which advances and declines were reversed by many of the active issues, prices extending by a point or more, the stock market hardened in the late dealings and firmness prevailed at the close. There were exceptions to the general trend, especially in the case of the Northwestern railway shares, which were chiefly responsible for the irregularity in the early dealings; but on the whole the market closed higher, and both the railroad and the industrial averages ended the day above the previous closing. Most of the active leaders ended at or near the high prices for the day, this including Steel common, Baldwin, American Can, Studebaker, Mariand Oil, New York Central and Norfolk & Western.

Oil Shares in the Lead.

The oil stocks, especially the independent issues which have been featured of late under leadership of Mariand Oil, continued to attract attention yesterday. Next to American Can, Mariand Oil was the most active stock on the list yesterday. It closed at the high price of 60¾, at which level it was up 1¼ points for the day and almost 4 points above Monday's low level. General Petroleum gained ½ point and other independent issues were up ranging from fractions to a point or more. The recent reported improvement in the statistical position of the oil industry, aided by the fact that the stocks had not largely participated in the Summer advance in the stock market, was given as the chief reason for the recent rise. The reports of further reductions in crude prices seemed to be ignored. Yesterday Wall Street heard that another reduction in mid-continent crude would presently be announced, within a week. It was insisted, however, that if the reduction were announced Prairie Oil & Gas would take all oil produced at the lower price level, also the oil carried in storage for the account of producers which accumulated during the Summer period of restricting.

Augusta Railway Earnings.

Before the end of next week, a number of the earning statements of railways for the month of August will have been made public, and from the present indications, executives declared yesterday, there is good reason to believe that they will be favorable when compared with other months this year. In the first place the recent improvement in freight movement resulted in the total car loadings for August being within 7 per cent. of the same period last year, while that of previous months was 10 and 11 per cent. below the corresponding periods in 1923. Coupled with this, according to the same officials, is the important fact that the railroads have the expenses well in hand as the result of economy programs which started earlier in the year.

St. Paul Reads Warning.

Following the sharp break of Wednesday, bonds of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company gave firm again yesterday. This was explained as due to two things, the denial by President Byram of a contemplated reorganization for that system, and short covering. As on the previous day, the bonds of the other Northwestern railroads seemed to show little concern over the price movement in the St. Paulis.

Outlook for "Little Four"

With the return of L. F. Loree to the city, there was started, yesterday, a warm discussion of just what would become of the "Little Four" railroads. In this list railway men include the Lackawanna, the Lehigh Valley, the Central of New Jersey and the Delaware & Hudson. None of these roads can be considered as small, but the term is used by way of contrast with the four larger systems which are rapidly taking form in the eastern part of the United States around such lines as the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio and the Van Sweringen system. It was generally admitted yesterday that the "Little Four" would be content to operate independently and that for the most part the officials prefer not to be joined with the big systems if they can avoid it. Some of them who have been watching recent developments pointed out, to-day, however, that the situation is for the most part now in the hands of the bankers rather than in the hands of the railroad officials, although it is considered that in any case the officials will have the final word. The statement has been made, on apparently good authority, that the officials of the Lackawanna were approached and invited to join the Van Sweringen system some time ago but were not responsive.

Ninety-Day Money at 3 Per Cent.

Fairly active trading developed yesterday in the market for ninety-day loans, with the quotation at 3 per cent., representing a concession of one-quarter of 1 per cent. from the figure asked earlier in the week by money lenders. Call loan rates also had an easier undertone, although this was not reflected in the Stock Exchange rate, which has been more or less arbitrarily fixed at 2 per cent. On the outside market money was again loaned at 1½ per cent., the amount loaned on the outside having about equaled the amount loaned on the Stock Exchange.

The Northwestern Railroads.

Uneasiness on the part of the stockholders in the Northwestern railway shares was the result of the recent talk of a financial readjustment of the St. Paul, coupled with the publication of an old report yesterday were believed by some people in the financial district to have been the factor that caused the sharp decline to the shares of the Northwestern group yesterday. The report published yesterday was that of the Great Northern Railway for the first six months. These figures had been already made public several weeks ago, when the market was in a more optimistic mood. Yesterday, market conditions being reversed, the report played a part in the fact. The shares of St. Paul both showed a net loss for the day. Great Northern preferred and shares of Norfolk & Western closed with fractional losses of 1¼ and Northern Pacific 1¾, reaching 61¼ at one time during the trading. Chicago & Northwestern showed a net loss of 1¾ for the day.

Reduction in Reserve Bank Rediscounts.

The total of rediscounted bills held by the New York Reserve Bank on Wednesday, as shown by yesterday's weekly report, was $125,910,000, against $174,290,000 the week before and $981,000,000 for the corresponding week of last year. On the surface, these figures would seem to indicate a sudden falling off in business for the week, a decline that would be said to explain, but in this connection the point made last week in throwing light on the cause of the sharp monthly drop the last full week of August, was made again by bankers. In these weeks which are interrupted by holidays the banks draw heavily upon the central institution for money to accommodate the cash needs of depositors going on trips. In addition, drafts during the week in question were above the average because of month-end requirements. As a result the current week's reduction of $48,167,000 was not at all out of line, for in the latest report the two factors that swelled the total of the week before are entirely missing. Comparison with the year before is recognized as a different proposition.

BOSTON BORROWS ON A 2.14% BASIS

$3,000,000 Short-Term Notes Awarded to Shawmut National Bank of That City.

LOAN HERE TO MILWAUKEE

New York Firms Pay Wisconsin Municipality Good-Sized Premium on 4½ Per Cent. Bonds.

Two municipal loans were awarded yesterday at a cost to the respective cities that was close to the record minimum figure for them, if it did not break the record.

The City Treasurer of Boston awarded a $3,000,000 temporary loan to the National Shawmut Bank of that city on a 2.14 per cent. interest basis. The loan is to be dated today and will mature on Nov. 10. A premium of $11 was paid by the bank. Competition for the loan, which was particularly desirable because of its short maturity, was keen. The bid next highest was tendered by a New York bank.

Boston has adopted a borrowing policy which keeps its credit at a high point. The city seldom floats large issues of long-term bonds, using a few such issues as nuclei for its financing work and filling in with short-term loans at frequent periods.

The other municipal loan awarded was one by Milwaukee. The Northern Trust Company, Harriman & Co., and Wells, Dickey & Co. offered the successful bid of 102.4397 for $712,500 4½ per cent. school bonds. Public offering of the bonds will be made shortly.

Public offering is made today of $350,000 Camden, N. J., park and water 4½ per cent. bonds by M. M. Freeman & Co. of Philadelphia and Ludwig & Banchle at prices to yield from 4.05 to 4.10 per cent. The bonds will mature in 1928-1974.

Harris, Forbes & Co. are offering $175,000 Town of Belleville, N. J., 4½ per cent. bonds at prices to yield from 4.10 to 4.30 per cent. They mature in 1925-1952.

A. R. Leach & Co., Inc., are also offering $144,000 of water bonds of Belleville at prices to yield from 4.10 to 4.20 per cent. for maturities in 1925-1963.

DIVIDENDS RAISED ON SEVERAL STOCKS

Bank of Manhattan, American Milling and Edmunds & Jones Show Prosperity.

ONLY ONE CONCERN PASSES

That Is the Eaton Axle & Spring Co., Which Was Hampered by Slackness in Motor Industry.

Yesterday's collection of dividend declarations included several favorable announcements, while one company suspended the payment of dividends due to be declared at this time.

Directors of the Bank of Manhattan Company, which heretofore had been paying at the rate of $3 a share quarterly, together with an extra dividend of $1 a share, will declare quarterly dividends of $4 a share in the future. The $4 dividend declared yesterday is payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 18.

The American Milling Company declared a stock dividend of 33 1-3 per cent. on the common stock, to be delivered to stockholders of record Sept. 30. This company has been unusually liberal in its dividend disbursement, during the past year. In December, 1923, a 10 per cent. stock dividend was declared. A cash dividend of 10 per cent. extra also was paid last December on the old stock, just prior to the 20 per cent. stock dividend, and in June this year a 5 per cent. cash dividend was declared on the doubled capital stock. The company manufactures feed for horses, cattle and poultry.

Directors of the Edmunds & Jones Corporation yesterday declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share. Both dividends are payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 20.

The only unfavorable dividend announcement made yesterday was that of the Eaton Axle and Spring Company of Cleveland, which passed the quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share due to be declared at this time. Officers of the company explained that the passing of the dividend was due to the curtailed schedule in the automobile industry last spring. The plants of the company as a result, have been operating at about 45 per cent. capacity during the past three months.

The following companies announced the declaration of regular dividend payments yesterday: Acme Road Machinery Company preferred, American La France Fire Engine Company common and preferred, Asbestos Corporation preferred, Barnhardt Brothers and Spindler first and second preferred, Belgo-Canadian Paper preferred, Bell Telephone of Canada, Canadian Locomotive common and preferred, Chicago, North Shore & Electric preferred and junior line, Electric Auto Lite Company, Electric Light and Power of Abington and Rockland, El Paso Southwestern, Fleischman Company preferred, General Baking common and preferred, Joliet & Chicago, Kentucky Securities preferred, Kinney Department Stores preferred, Laurentide Company, Magor Car common and preferred, B. F. Mallinson Company preferred, Manufacturers Trust Company, Mortgage Bond Company, New York Transportation, Park City Bank, S. Phelps Dodge Company, Royal Baking Powder common and preferred, St. Maurice Paper, Silver King Consolidated Mining, Southern Railway common and preferred, Tintic Standard Mining, Texas Products, United Gas and Improvement common and preferred, Utah Power and Light preferred, and Warren Brothers common and first and second preferred.

THE OHIO FUEL MERGER.

Terms of Exchange of Shares of Old Companies Made Public.

The organization of the Ohio Fuel Corporation with a capital of $96,000 was announced yesterday. This company was formed in connection with the proposed merger of the Ohio Fuel Supply Company, the Union Natural Gas Company and the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company. G. W. Crawford, President of the Ohio Fuel Supply Company, will be President of the consolidated company. The new company will be organized under Delaware laws.

Of the capital stock, $500,000 will be retained in the treasury and the remainder, $95,500,000, will be issued for shares of three companies merged on the following basis:

For each share par value $25 of the Union Company, 1.2188 shares of the new company; for each share par value $25 of the Ohio Fuel Company, 1.29706 shares; for each share par value $50 of the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company, 2.0664 shares. The terms of the merger will be submitted to the stockholders later.

NIAGARA GORGE RY. SOLD.

BUFFALO, Sept. 11.—It was unofficially announced here today that the Niagara Gorge Railway, extending from the City of Niagara Falls to Lewiston, has been purchased by the Niagara Falls Power Company. The purchase price was reported to be approximately $2,000,000.

No official statement regarding the sale was forthcoming from the offices of Bert L. Jones, President of the Niagara Gorge Railway Company, and the local offices of the Niagara Falls Power Company and the Niagara, Lockport and Ontario Power Company, the Niagara power distributing company, declined official confirmation.

Reports were current in financial circles that the scenic railway line might be abandoned to make way for power developments in the gorge.

CONSOLIDATION IS PLANNED

Special meetings of the directors of the American Bosch Magneto Company and Gray & Davis, Inc., will be held next Tuesday in Boston to consider a plan to consolidate the two companies. So far as could be learned yesterday, no new financing will be involved. The American Bosch Magneto Company is expected to issue some of its stock in exchange for the stock of the Gray & Davis organization.

Both companies are closely affiliated now through sales contracts. In 1920 Gray & Davis contracted to sell American Bosch products on a 10 per cent. commission basis, while Bosch agreed to sell Gray & Davis parts at the same price that Gray & Davis received from dealers.

TO BUILD GAS HOLDER 333 FEET IN HEIGHT

The Public Service Electric and Gas Company awarded yesterday to the Bartlett-Hayward Company of Baltimore, Md., a contract to build one of the largest gas holders in the United States. The holder is of a new type, will be erected in Harrison, N. J., and will have a capacity of 18,000,000 cubic feet. Engineers from all over the country are expected to inspect the construction, which will be unique.

In the gas industry the proposed holder is known as a "waterless" holder in that a tarcoated fabric will be used as a seal instead of water, as has been universally employed heretofore. The contrivance was first developed in Germany and only recently was introduced into this country. At the present time the United States Steel Corporation is said to be negotiating for such a holder to be erected at Gary, Ind., with a capacity of 50,000,000 cubic feet.

The new Harrison holder will be 324 feet in diameter and 333 feet high. It will be polygonal instead of circular and will consist of a single shell frame instead of a series of three cylinders, as the lifts, which telescope one within the other, the upper lifts rising and lowering as the quantity of gas in the container varies. In the ordinary holders water seals are used to prevent gas from escaping, thus adding much weight to the structure and requiring heavier steel construction. The new type does away with water and also obviates the need of steam heat to prevent freezing, using electricity, which will keep the sealing fluid in constant circulation. Lighter steel plates can be used in the new type holder.

Big Oil Companies Pay Premium.

The independent refiner in Northwestern Pennsylvania, who posted a premium of 25 cents a barrel for Pennsylvania crude early in the week has withdrawn the premium having received enough oil to fill his requirements. The larger companies, however, continue to post the premium and some companies are offering the premium for five years provided the producers agree to deliver their production to the larger companies for that period.

The total compares with a daily average production of 2,036,700 barrels in the previous week and 2,280,700 barrels in the corresponding week last year. Moderate sized gains were reported in production in Oklahoma, Kansas and Central Gulf, California, Wyoming, Arkansas and several other fields registered small declines in output.

The detailed figures covering the production of the important fields compared with one week ago and the same week last year follow:

RAIL LABOR BOARD FACES COURT TEST

ITS AUTHORITY CONTESTED

Unions Will Assail Transportation Act and Charge Interference With Freedom of Contract.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Action in a Federal Court to test the authority of the United States Railroad Labor Board to compel testimony was brought a step nearer today by the refusal of two employes' representatives to respond to the second subpoenas served upon them by order of the board.

The language of the new subpoenas was slightly different from the original documents, and it is understood that these will be used in the court action; also that the defendants will be David B. Robertson, Cleveland, Ohio, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firmen and Enginemen, and John McGuire, Chicago, a General Chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, upon whom the modified subpoenas were served.

The board is now preparing its records for the case. Formal commission of Weymouth Kirkland, Chicago, as counsel for the board is expected early next week from Attorney General Harlan F. Stone, who has agreed with Chairman Ben W. Hooper of the board upon the choice of Mr. Kirkland.

It was indicated that the board will file action against Robertson and McGuire before a United States District Judge in Chicago promptly after the arrival of the commission. Donald R. Richberg, Chicago, counsel for Robertson and McGuire, is preparing to meet the action of the board.

The original subpoenas, served upon McGuire, Robertson, another grand officer and nearly ninety other general chairmen of the two engine service brotherhoods, said the subpoenaed persons were summoned to testify "in behalf of the employe" in a dispute before the board involving wages and rules on nearly all the railroads west of Chicago.

In the new subpoenaes, the words "in behalf of the employes" were replaced by "to give evidence in an inquiry being conducted by the Railroad Labor Board."

The board contends that its assumption of jurisdiction was taken in accordance with the Transportation act to avert interruption of commerce, and that the Transportation act expressly empowers it to subpoena witnesses and require testimony.

The employes' representatives will attack the action of the board as an interruption of negotiations, therefore an interference with freedom of contract, and will attack the clause in the Transportation act which authorizes the board to subpoena witnesses as contrary to the clause in the Federal Constitution forbidding the depriving of citizens of liberty or property without due process of law.

MACDONALD HAS STOCK IN BISCUIT CONCERN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—According to a document registered on March 12 last at the Office of Joint Stock Companies in Edinburgh, "James Ramsay MacDonald, 10 Downing Street, London, member of his Majesty's Privy Council," was allotted 30,000 preference share of £1 each in the biscuit firm of McVitie & Price. The head of this company is Sir Alexander Grant, Baronet, who, metering the firm as a baker, worked his way by sheer ability to its control. He has given large sums to public objects, such as libraries and parks, and has recently entertained Mr. MacDonald, whom he has known since boyhood, despite a difference in their political views.

Mr. MacDonald recommended Grant for a Baronetcy in the last list of King's birthday honors. A fortnight ago, speaking at the opening of a park Grant had presented to Forres, Mr. MacDonald said he had included the donor in "what I had made up my mind should be a very small and very select company of men who had reached this honor before the nation recognized that fact. Why? Because he is simple, sincere and loyal, the greatest and best of friends, and the heartiest and most genial of companions. His wealth has only enabled him to make his hand as open as his heart has always been."

The Prime Minister made a statement at Lossie Mouth tonight concerning the shares held in his name.

"The capital is not mine and I only technically own the shares," he said. "The matter has nothing to do with politics. Sir Alexander Grant got his Baronetcy for public services, including the gift of a national library to Scotland, of which most people know and for which he has received the freedom of Edinburgh."

MacDONALD IN WALL STREET

Malcolm MacDonald, son of Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of England, who is in this country as a representative of the Oxford Union to debate with seventeen colleges in the United States and Canada, has become quite well known in the financial district. After a visit to the New York Stock Exchange he was guest at a dinner at the Bankers' Club, his hosts being leading financial and business men, among them Otto H. Kahn, Dwight Morrow, General Guy E. Tripp, Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, Walter E. Frew and other bankers.

He also has been studying welfare work as carried on by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and has visited the model apartment houses built recently by the company to help relieve the housing situation. A similar problem now faces the British Government.

BANK OF FRANCE RATE UP.

Is Increased to 8 Per Cent. From 7 Is Announced.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The Bank of France today raised its discount rate from 7 to 8 per cent. The reason currently given was that under the existing market rate for French Government securities 7½, 8 and 9 per cent. could be had for invested money. Discounting operations in these conditions resulted in a profit at the expense of the Bank of France. It is explained, and therefore the rate was raised to 8 per cent., which would make such operations less attractive.

In addition there is probably the desire of the Bank of France to assure its ability to keep circulation under the legal limit of 41,000,000,000 francs. It has been over that 40,000,000,000 for three months and the regular end of the year needs of business might well make calls on the bank which would cause the legal limit to be reached.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Combination of Bank Purchases and Covering on Strong Cables, Sends Rates Higher.

Strength in the foreign markets, which was communicated here in the shape of higher cables, helped the European exchanges to new highs on the present movement yesterday. The volume of business also bounded with the forward swing in rates. Banks were the heaviest purchasers, the inquiry from this source drafting a similar movement by those who had been on the short side, thus strengthening the technical position of the market. Specific explanation for the rise was lacking, except that it be satisfaction over the renewal of the American bankers' credit to the Bank of France.

Sterling opened at an improvement of ¼ cent, at $4.44⅝, later demand pushing this beyond Wednesday's best price to $4.44⅞. French francs started at a 4½-point gain at 5.32 cents, swinging to 5.33½ cents. Italian and Belgian each improved 2 points at 4.35⅛ cents and 4.96½ cents, respectively, with proportionate gains in other Continentals. Far Eastern dropped into an irregular movement, but South Americans were buoyantly higher.

GOVERNMENT BUYS BANK OF NICARAGUA

DEAL AIDED BY FIRMS HERE

The Nicaraguan Government has obtained complete ownership of the National Bank of Nicaragua as a result of the sale by the Bank of Central & South America of its 51 per cent. interest for $300,000. The step marks the conclusion of an operation begun in 1912 by the Nicaraguan Government and by the New York banking houses of Brown Brothers & Co. and J. & W. Seligman.

The acquisition of the National Bank of Nicaragua was part of a program to reform the currency of Nicaragua. In 1912, when the plan was initiated, the Nicaraguan peso was selling at a heavy discount; and under the plan a new currency was adopted, with the national bank having the sole right of issue. This currency was known as the cordoba and was equivalent to the gold dollar. The present outstanding paper currency of this issue has back of it a 60 per cent. gold reserve, which is on deposit in New York. This has been utilized to steady the Nicaraguan exchange and also as a means of providing the Government with necessary funds at par to meet interest payments on Nicaragua's foreign debt.

The National Bank of Nicaragua has a paid-in capital of $300,000 and surplus of about the same amount.

NASH CO. PREPARED FOR LAFAYETTE LOSS

Has Set Aside Reserves to Cover Investment in Motor Concern Facing Liquidation.

The Nash Motors Company, which will be the heaviest loser in the proposed liquidation of the Lafayette Motors Corporation, has ample reserves set aside to cover this loss, according to a statement yesterday by bankers closely affiliated with the company. The difficulties of the Lafayette organization, it was made known yesterday, have been apparent to the Nash Company for some time, and a reserve of more than $2,500,000 has been set aside for this contingency. The investment by Nash in Lafayette was made about two years ago when the company was reorganized.

Regarding the proposed liquidation of the Lafayette company, the directors in a letter to stockholders expressed the opinion that it would be virtually impossible to rehabilitate the company even if additional funds were advanced to straighten out its present difficulties. The opinion is further expressed that the proceeds of the sale of the company's properties will be sufficient to wipe out all merchandise creditors and pay off a substantial percentage of the bank loans.

The bankers, it is understood, have agreed to such settlement and steps are expected to be taken immediately to liquidate the company. Several bids have already been received for part of the Lafayette assets.

TO VOTE ON DISSOLUTION.

Directors of Hudson Companies to Act Next Monday.

The Hudson Companies is the holding company for the Hudson & Manhattan Railway Company, which operates the tubes between New York and New Jersey. Its assets consist of 251,713 shares of Hudson & Manhattan common stock and 23,076 shares of preferred stock.

COTTON PRICES UP ON BETTER BUYING

SHORTS DRIVEN TO COVER

Trade Purchase Develops After Price Decline of Two Cents in a Week.

Following the decline of about 2 cents a pound in less than a week, cotton ran into more resistance yesterday, and, with grain and securities, recovered. The trade buying that proved so general the previous day continued and absorbed all cotton for sale at a slight advance in prices. With interior receipts only 500 bales over last year's movement and cotton in the South available 5 cents under the level of a year ago, spinners are increasing their purchases of raw material. Several operators covered contracts sold recently and final prices showed a gain of 30 to 42 points on the day.

Instead of weakening with the sharp break of three-quarters of a cent in American markets Wednesday Liverpool developed considerable steadiness yesterday. After an early loss of 26 English points, foreign quotations made a complete recovery later in the session, and when New York opened prices were only a few points off on the day. In view of the action abroad, early sales of October around low figures of the week represented a poor response, and a further recovery developed as the session advanced. New Orleans, after reading the previous day's downward movement, strengthened and recovered nearly 40 points during the day. All these contract markets had declined to a level where an increasing volume of trade buying was encountered. Orders that have been on the books of houses doing an active trade business for several months past have been executed this week.

As has happened frequently the last month the first show of resistance to selling pressure led various operators to cover cotton sold earlier in the week and a rally of 30 to 40 points occurred throughout the list. Scattered price fixing and execution of orders for foreign account brought highest prices of the session in final trading.

Sales of spot cotton increased to 42,000 bales at Houston and Dallas yesterday. At Dallas, middling quotations were 21.60, compared with a closing price of 23.08 for the October position in New York. A year ago middling at Augusta was 26½ cents, while October in New York was 27½ cents. A large spot business was reported in many parts of the belt during the day, the recent decline in prices bringing a better demand for cotton, particularly from the European trade.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
Oct.	22.80	23.14	22.80	23.08@23.09	22.78

VAST COPPER CONSUMPTION

Domestic Industries Use More in First Half of Year Than Ever.

Domestic consumption of copper metal increased 10 per cent. in the first half of 1924, compared with the corresponding period last year, and established a new high record for any similar period, according to figures given yesterday by George A. Sloan, Secretary of the Copper and Brass Research Association, in an address before the Purchasing Agents' Association.

"Prior to the World War the yearly consumption of copper in the United States had never touched a billion pounds," said Mr. Sloan, "and, although there was a tremendous increase to meet the military necessities between 1914 and 1918, we find that domestic consumption during 1923 was far in excess of any previous year uninfluenced by war or inflation. The consumption of copper in the United States was 917,470,000 pounds in 1921; in 1922 it was 1,074,625,000 pounds, and in 1923 1,465,900,000 pounds.

"There is every evidence that the ratio of increase noted during the first six months of the current year will be maintained, if not exceeded, during the last six months, establishing a new high record. This gain is attributable to a 15 per cent. increase in the use of copper in the electrical industry and a 12½ per cent. increase in building construction."

Export copper prices were advanced 18 points yesterday because of the firmer tone in the London metal market and the improvement in exchange rates. Prices are now 13.25 cents a pound, f. a. a. New York Harbor, and 13.60 cents, c. i. f. London, Hamburg or Havre. There was an improvement in demand with the higher prices.

TO SOLVE PROBLEMS OF TRAIN CONTROL

All angles of the train control problem will be discussed by representatives of practically every railroad in the United States and officials of many of the equipment companies at a meeting of the Signal Section of the American Railway Association to be held at Swampscott, Mass., on Sept. 24. This day has been set apart in the three-day session of the Signal Section meeting, Sept. 23, 24, 25, for the exchange of ideas on one of the improvements on which the railroads will expend between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 during the next two years if they carry out the present instructions of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In the announcement of the meeting the committee in charge of the program says:

"The distribution of time for presentation of several papers involved will be posted in the meeting room on the day in question. On account of the large number of requests for opportunity to address this meeting the session will start at 8 A. M.

"Papers will be read covering installations now in service, tests conducted, relation of air brakes to train control and analysis of accident records.

"This is the first national meeting ever called to consider the subject of train control, which has to do with the automatic stopping of trains to prevent collisions with trains ahead, derailment on account of open switches or other accidents. Presentation of the subject will be divided into three parts; the first covering tests conducted on the Pennsylvania, the Northern Pacific & Santa Fe, the Union Pacific, the New York Central and the Southern Pacific Railroads; the second part will cover the relation of air brakes to train control and the analysis of accident records; and the third will cover installations now in service on the Delaware & Western Illinois, the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroads.

WHEAT UP 4 CENTS, CORN ALSO RISES

Trade in Wheat Amounting to 7,000,000 Bushels Gives New Impulse to Markets.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Estimates on sales of export grain for the last two days range up to 14,000,000 bushels, including wheat, rye, oats and barley. Removal of hedges on export sales of wheat today, estimated as high as 7,000,000 bushels, including business late Wednesday, with heavy buying of futures for foreign account, absorbed the surplus in "the Pit" and, later, a stampede of buying on the part of shorts.

These found little for sale and the finish was 4@4¼ cents higher, while Winnipeg moved up 5¼@5¾ cents, wet weather in the Canadian Northwest being a factor in that market.

The Canadian report was instrumental in making an advance of 2¼@3¼d in Liverpool, in the face of firmness in exchange and the breaking of the drought in Argentina. The latter country received general rains, although late cables claimed that irreparable damage had been done to flaxseed in some sections and that the yield of wheat would not be normal.

Cash houses bought September and sold December on a liberal scale at 5¼ cents difference. Local interests were heavy buyers at Winnipeg, partly attributed to spreading operations.

There were 720,000 bushels of cash wheat sold here to exporters with charters for 800,000 bushels, at 2¼ cents to Buffalo. Reports from the interior indicate that the movement of Winter wheat has fallen off materially, while the Kansas State report showed that 52,000,000 bushels, or 58 per cent of the crop of 154,000,000 bushels, had already been moved from farms.

Primary arrivals today were 3,857,000 bushels; week ago, 2,584,000; last year, 1,568,000. Shipments were 1,443,000 bushels; week ago, 2,342,000; last year, 1,486,000.

The sensational Government and private crop reports, combined with the strength in wheat, resulted in general short covering in corn and, at the last, net gains were 3@4¼ cents.

Primary arrivals of corn were 823,000 bushels; week ago, 837,000; last year, 868,000, and shipments, 320,000 bushels; week ago, 475,000; last year, 328,000.

Oats were influenced by the action of other grains and talk of a liberal export business and gained 1¼@1¾ cents.

Sales of barley for export in the past two days are estimated at around 1,500,000 bushels.

Rye closed 4¼ cents higher with wheat and removal of hedges against export sales of around 1,000,000 bushels.

Cash Markets Move in Decisive Forward Swing—Grains Feature.

There was a general straightening out of the trend in cash markets yesterday, grains running from good size fractions up to as much as 4¼ cents per bushel in wheat, interspersing the subnormal list of spot articles. The movement in the grains was most noteworthy. Flour, corn, oats and wheat reporting substantial advances. Butter and eggs also share in the improvement with cotton and lard both rallying from recent low ground. Metals and securities were maintained without variation.

Following are the spot prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Thursday, a week before, and a year ago:

Another of the old Murray Hill residences will make way for the advance on that section of business building construction. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday when Arthur Greenbaum and Nathan Wilson, operators, leased for twenty-one years, with renewals, the property at 232 Madison Avenue and 15 and 17 East Thirty-seventh Street. The site is the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, and is opposite the residence of J. P. Morgan.

The property is one of the old Murray Hill residences and has been in the lessor family since the early '60s. The plot contains 7,800 square feet. Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins is the lessor.

The lessees are to erect a fourteen-story store, office and showroom building to be completed by January, 1926. The deal involves over $2,000,000.

The lessees were represented by William J. Henderson as broker and Albert B. Ashforth, Inc., Stephen H. Tyng Jr. & Co. as associates negotiated the lease.

On each floor there are three four-room apartments, three of five rooms, one of six rooms and one of seven rooms. The rent is about $40,000. This parcel was held at $250,000. MacDONALD SCORES REDS.

In Book British Premier Tells Fear for Genuine Socialism.

LONDON, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—That the present-day tendencies among the workers threaten the ideals of genuine socialism is the fear expressed by Premier MacDonald in a preface he has just written for a new addition to his well-known book on socialism. After defending socialism as evolutionary, not revolutionary, the Premier writes:

"The revolutionary and materialistic frames of mind created by the war are becoming a serious menace to the socialist spirit of common service. Profiteering has become universal. * * * The evil is not confined to the classes generally designated as profiteers, but has infected all sections.

"The Premier complains that in the legitimate struggle to remedy their hard and unjust conditions the workers are being tempted to force. They are all interdependent members of a social unity and consequently only injure themselves by punishing those against whom they have grievance to such an extent that they injure the society to which they belong.

JURY TO GET SCHOOL CASE.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 11.—Charged by Miss Mary O'Brien that her application to teach school in Berlin had been rejected because of her religion will be taken up by the Camden County Grand Jury next Tuesday.

After a meeting of the Berlin School Board today William Haines, the Secretary, admitted he had told Miss O'Brien she could have the position if she was a Protestant.

"She accepted the position," he continued, "but resigned before she assumed charge of her duties to accept another position. Catholicism was not mentioned. I simply said if she was a Protestant she could have the position."

Haines said the matter of religion had never been discussed by the School Board, but he said the other members were aware of what was being done.

King's Army in Retreat as Cavalry Presses Hedjas Invasion.

JERUSALEM, Sept. 11 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—The warfare of the Wahabite forces, which have invaded the Kingdom of Hedjas and are fighting against King Hussein's army, has assumed a grave character, according to telegrams from Mecca.

The despatches say the Wahabis, who are stronger in numbers and whose forces consist mainly of cavalry, have attacked the centre of the Hedjas territory, having carried on their operations on the lines between the two Moslem holy cities of Medina and Mecca. Numerous towns and villages between Medina and Mecca have been occupied by the invading forces.

According to the despatches the army of King Hussein is in retreat, pursued by the Wahabis.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 11.—Rashid Bey, Governor of Constantinople, has been dismissed by telegram because during the night of Friday last he had ordered trial mobilization of all police and gendarmes at his disposal and had completely paralyzed the normal life of the city for four hours.

All persons returning homeward were forced to spend hours in the streets in which the only traffic was made up of street cars filled with armed gendarmes. In reply to the immediate outcry the Governor gave two explanations; first, the possibility of a Communist rising and, second, rehearsal of precautions in case of a visit from Mustapha Kemal Pasha. Neither explanation was accepted by the press which, guided by statements of officials who had been routed out of beds roundly accused the Governor of having been drunk.

BULLETIN 1

A year and a half ago our office felt that there was a great need for small apartments with moderate sized rooms, which could be rented at lower figures than anything else in the neighborhood of Park Avenue, south of 59th Street. The result was 277 Park Avenue. Mr. G. Maurice Heckscher, whose father is one of the most expert investors in the real estate field, backed the scheme also with his support and both he and his father have taken large suites. Many other people of social prominence have also decided to live there.

ASKS MISSOURI TO BAR INDIANA STANDARD OIL

State Attorney General Files Suit Charging Company With Violating Anti-Trust Laws.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—A motion seeking to oust the Standard Oil Company of Indiana from Missouri for alleged violation of the State anti-trust laws was filed in the Supreme Court of Missouri today by Attorney General Jesse W. Barrett.

The suit is based upon twenty-six contracts between the Standard of Indiana and other gasoline and oil companies, introduced as evidence by the State in the Missouri investigation of the oil industry which closed yesterday.

These contracts cover patent "cracking" refining processes held by the Standard of Indiana. Companies granted the use of the patents under the contracts agree not to ship gasoline to the Standard of Indiana territory. The Attorney General maintains that these contracts violate the State anti-trust laws in that they seek to destroy and prevent competition.

The motion asks the court to suspend the conditional ouster issued against the company by the Supreme Court in 1912 and requests that the Standard Oil Company of Indiana be barred from doing further business in Missouri.

In 1912 the court issued a judgment declaring that the Standard of Indiana was guilty of violating the State anti-trust laws and that it should be ousted from the State. The ouster was made conditional, however, and the company was allowed to remain upon the express condition that in the future it obey all the laws of Missouri, "particularly the State anti-trust laws."

DRY RAIDS IN JERSEY JUST BEFORE FIGHT

SECRET SERVICE MEN BUSY

Asserting that he was determined to make Jersey City, and particularly the fight arena, dry, R. G. Merrick, prohibition enforcement chief in this State and Northern New Jersey, yesterday afternoon sent sixty agents to Jersey City. At 510 Montgomery Street, Agents Brown and Simonson seized five quarts of liquor and arrested George Robinson, the bartender. Other agents seized 500 gallons of beer at 137 Freeman Street, arresting John Fey and James Donohue, owner and bartender, respectively.

Secret Service men were on the lookout in Jersey City meanwhile for bogus $50 bills, which it had been rumored would be circulated there. Ticket sellers at the arena were warned.

Two hundred and fifty cases of whisky seized early yesterday by a police boat were intended, the police believe, for use in Jersey City during the fight night. Two men who jumped overboard from a pursued rum boat, the fast Sagitta, either got to shore by swimming or were drowned. Their names were not learned. Many shots were exchanged in the race before the Sagitta was captured.

While the police tug Manhattan was cruising at Quarantine at 5 A. M. a motor launch, without lights, sped by. Sergeant James Ward, the tug's master, started in pursuit, but the other craft kept on. Ward started firing. As the fugitive launch neared Governors Island, Police Launch No. 8, Sergeant Thomas Hayden master, took up the chase, firing continuously. The fugitive launch, the Sagitta, headed up the North River, but was forced to turn back when cut off by another police boat, commanded by Captain Patrick O'Connor, which also fired many shots as it started out from the Marine Police Station at Pier A.

The Sagitta, from which shots had been fired, tried to ram O'Connor's boat. It missed and turned toward Communipaw. It was about to enter the Morris Canal when two of its crew leaped overboard. Sergeant Hayden put on full speed and rammed the Sagitta, then jumped into the water to catch the men who had gone overboard, but could not find them.

The remaining members of the crew said they were Edward Dangear of 2,514 Fifty-second Street, Brooklyn, and Edward Baker of 45 Essex Street, Jersey City.

We Challenge You!

Try to Beat the JEWETT SIX

PAIGE BUILT

Up Fort George Hill

Saturday, September 13
Between 2:30 and 4:30

Any Car May Enter

Car owners and car dealers are invited to enter any gasoline car or cars they think will stand a chance. There are no restrictions. Big or little, high priced or low, all cars of whatever make are challenged by Jewett Six on a real hill that proves what a car can do.

Two Classes Only

We will have several Jewett standard demonstrators at the big hill ready to meet all comers who state that their cars are strictly standard mechanically, as are these Jewetts. No price limit, or power limit, whatever.

We will also have two special Jewetts with shortened wheel-base and slight mechanical changes from standard, to prove what a Jewett can do when "dressed for the part." These specials will meet all comers.

No Entry Fee

This is a genuine open-to-all challenge—not a money making or gate admission proposition. No formality. No previous notice required. Just drive your car to the starting line and enter.

Every car that comes within 5 seconds of Jewett's time will be given another chance. The course will be properly policed for safety and order. Disinterested officials will do the timing and announcing.

Events will be practically continuous for the two hours—2:30 to 4:30. Cars will start up the hill at two-minute intervals. It will be a great sight and new records will be established. Now Jewett's competitors will climb up or shut up!

The public is invited and urged to attend this greatest open-to-all event ever undertaken

Say It With a Packard Limousine!

IT'S sweet to say it with candy, it's romantic to say it with flowers, and it's best of all when it's said with kind words, but the man who says to his wife "Any time your shopping's heavy just call a Grand Central Packard and charge it to me" is some man! Actions speak louder than words but the kindest thing you can do for your wife is to send a Packard round occasionally for her convenience.
